12-3t HENRY GOLDWATER, Sec.

A reformed burglar says that when they went into a town to work the stores, the first thing they did was to examine the local paper and see what merchants advertised, as these were the ones who did the business and were the most liable to have money.

The prison team took a little pasear on their own hook, Wednesday, starting in A. Frank's corral and ending at the prison. Time, something over three seconds, no damage.

A farmer in Apache-co. recently sold his wife to his hired man for two dollars and fifty cents. The way some farmers swindle their hired men is scandalous.

A burglar recently broke into a store at Prescott, but disturbed nothing. It is supposed that he was frightened away by seeing the goods marked so high.

The musquitoes in Yuma are so numerous and present their bill so often that they keep the people all broke.

Police court business has been very lively this week, and our celestial citizens has had to pay for it.

The steamer returned from Lerdo on Monday noon, making the trip in three days and a half.

The Gold Rock Mining Company are scattering considerable money in Yuma.

The bible class meets every Sunday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Post.

A JAUNT DOWN THE COLORADO.

On the 12th inst., "when the morning stars sang together," the staunch river steamer Gila, Capt. Godfrey, the genial at the wheel, Commodore Polhamus, supervising, shot through the bridge draw, in her wake barge No. 2, Capt. Joaquin Mendez handling the spokes, the objective point, Lerdo Colony in Sonora.

As complimentary guests of the Gila, were Mr. G. Ginocchio and wife, of San Francisco; Mrs. Capt. Ingalls and child, wife of the Superintendent of Territorial Prison, Yuma, Mrs. Fred Fredly and son, Yuma; Mrs. H. S. Muzzy and Miss C. Williams, wife and daughter of Chief Engineer Muzzy, of the C. S. N. Co., Yuma; and the writer. Staterooms were occupied on the down trip by Gen. Guillermo Andrada, President of the Compania Mexicana, Agricola, Industrial y Colonizadora de Terrenos del Colorado, (of which more will be said hearafter.); Commodore G. E. Bateman, Superintendent of Colony; Col. George Eggleton, capitalist, San Francisco; Major Fred Reed, civil engineer, San Francisco; Judge Henry Cox, representing the Blythe estate, Colton, Cala.; Col. N. C. Powers, San Bernardino; and Judge Ira Mabbett, Yuma. One hundred and ten colonists occupied the steerage.

A more perfect day never fell to the lot of mortal man; a gentle breeze just tinged with coolness, dry and invigorating, fanned the cheek and sent the blood throbbing and tingling with healthfulness thro' the veins; on either side the brown-grey banks, now fringed with the light green of young willows blending gradually with the darker color of the lines of cottonwoods, marking the site of some inland lagoon; again, long stretches of yellow sand bars upon which the erect arrow weed and graceful willow have taken root, and like Jonah's gourd shot up in a night. In the distance, lending enchantment to the view, the dark, sombre lines of mountain chains, blue and hazy their rugged outlines softened and framing the picture of quiet restfullness. Swinging gracefully toward the California shore, cleaving the yellow waters and tossing the foam from her paddle wheel, the Gila glides gracefully by the charming villa of that noted frontier character and gentleman, Don J. L. F. Ineger. A few miles yet Sonoraward and we sight the Hall Hanlon estate, the low commodious residence, like a pearl in an emerald setting, the line of white gleams among the groves of lofty cottonwoods. At 8 a. m. the well known land mark, Pilot Knob, is passed, thro' which runs the frontier line of survey between "The Land of the Free," and our neighbor republic, "El Tirra de Manyana."

Just within the Mexican boundary, on the starboard shore, was seen a section of the Yuma bridge, carried away in the rise of '84, upright and perfect as tho' placed there by the hand of man. With throbbing, pulsating jar steadily we continue our journey gulfward, until on a wide, smooth bar, three other bridge sections and two piers were sighted stranded about a fourth of a mile inland, and from Algodones station on the S. P. R. R. not over two miles southerly. One having no knowledge of this section of country would readily believe this to be on the line of a railroad, so regularly were the sections in place and line, standing erect perfectly intact, with telegraph poles in place and as perpendicular as the character of a good citizen before he runs for office. And now the high, yellow sand dunes which constitute the point known as the Algodones, (cottonwoods), are off our starboard bow, at their base extensive groves of lofty cottonwoods, and on the wide bar grazing on the succulent young growth of willows and herbs, a band of fat, pied cattle creating a happy pastoral view, which with a green-gray back ground of wood, the long line of green tinted brown sand bar, in the foreground the murmuring river lighted, and glistening in the rays of the morning sun, the musical splashing of the water as it lapped the vessel's side, the rare deliciousness of this all too perfect day, vigor, vitality, restfulness in every inhalation of the rarefied air, and it needed but the undulating dots of white upon the distant shore, where the huge white crane, startled from their accustomed quietude, with spread pinions, floated lazily to a more quiet retreat in some distant marsh or lagoon to complete the picture.

Of like nature with the channel of the Colorado is the experience, in legal complications of the average sojourner on this "Terrestrial Ball," from your position with the rank and file on deck it would appear there would be but a slight deviation from a direct line to your objective point, but soon from the pilot house and thro' the eyes of experience the channel is woefully tortuous and in one instance of many 12 miles were run, when but a mile of a neck of sand bar intervened. Now off our port bow a red signal flag floats from the top of a slender and lofty pole, and a corps of lusty aboriginals, of the Yuma persuasion, roost on lines of neatly stacked cordwood, attesting a "wooding up" point. While the Indian boat crew were packing on board, a rush of colonists toward the shore, the thud of clubs beating the bank and the cause thereof was soon evinced, when Capt. Godfrey brought on board three huge, wriggling rattlesnakes which were soon beheaded, skinned, stuffed and presented to Mrs. Ginocchio as a souvenir. At 9 p. m. all fast to bank, whist the order of the day in cabin; for the gentlemen so inclined yarns, and the soothing influence of that

"Sublime tobacco! which from east to west,
Cheers the tars labor and the turkman's rest."

Like human heart beats, the throb, throb of the swiftly moving boat first gives knowledge to some of our continued journey, and those who fortunately were on deck witnessed a very pretty and skillful piece of work by Capt. Godfrey shooting in a rapid current through a channel like the letter Z, at the lower end, where the waters boiled and foamed in its mad rush against the shore, swinging the steamer as though on a pivot in less than half her length, and successfully plunging again, at right angles, into the wider channel, the green leaves of the cottonwoods on the banks sweeping the afterdeck as we shot into mid stream. At points the channel ran so close to shore, that the stemer guards plowed thro' and we carried off a portion of Sonora, an outrage of sufficient magnitude, if occurring in enlightened Europe, to justify grave diplomatic investigations, galore!

With Commodore Polhamus at the wheel a shallow bar near the Sonora shore impeded our progress when a lesson in river navigation was afforded the novices, when the Gila's stern was thrown upon a bar, her nose pointed down stream so that a strong current was deflected on to a certain point, and but a few minutes sufficed to cut through a channel over which we passed readily.

High mesa bluffs now appeared and soon the buildings of the town of Lerdo hove in sight; rapidly we neared our destination on the high banks of which Mexican Caballeros mounted and in their picturesque garb enlivened the scene. In less than two hours freight and passengers were landed, when Commodore Bateman's trim yacht, Doubtful, with white sails filled, swept like a swan 'round the bend and with her crew and officers of Indian sailors swung gracefully along side, and willing hands hastily transferred her treasures of luscious clams and oysters, and appetising blue fish to the custody of our Steward, and when next

"That all-softening, overpowering knell,
The tocsin of the soul—the dinner bell," called us together, a vote of thank was tendered the jovial Commodore Bateman for this tangible evidence of good will, the cabin tables were decorated with garlands of wild flowers gathered by the ladies from the mesa adjacent to Commodore B.'s Lerdo home.

Homeward bound wood was taken on, and head Chief Hockorow, of the Cocopah Nation, his dark face beaming with pleasure, saluted our commander with "How! Polhamus, long time me no see, no catch 'um boat comida heap long," which states manlike and diplomatic salute was duly recognized with a bounteous repast at the galley mess, and the distended abdominal recess of the Chieftian gave ample evidence of his labor of love.

It is a known fact, beyond dispute, that Commodore Polhamus has more influence for good, with all of the river Indian tribes, than any other living man, all owing to the perfect confidence placed in his word, the outgrowth of a system strictly fair and honorable in dealing with these people since the year '56.

Without other incident of note, save the startling of immense flocks of crane, pelican, duck and other aquatic birds, and the passing of a lone trapper, one of those characters peculiar to the frontier, who with contempt for civilized ways with gun trap and dog,

"Hath fixed his face
In many a solitary place
Against the wind and open sky!"

Viewing this terra incognita from a traveler's standpoint, and the evidence of the virgin game country at the Colorado's mouth, waterfowls, fish, seawater bivalves in prodigal quantity, with deer on the main land, and then to tourists weary and satiated with a continued round of monotonous sameness, this is a rejuvenating and happy change.

When it is known I look for this to be, a favorite route of the popular excursion trips. Tending much to the enjoyment of the voyage would be the novelty of the Yuma Indian crew, all stalwart specimens of physical manhood, from the magnificent superbly modeled "Yuma Charley," wheelsman and pilot, barefooted, blue trousered, the thin gauze shirt showing the play of brawny muscles and broad shoulders, adown which his straight, black, glossy hair hangs near to his waist, guiltless of hat, his massive face, keen eyes, looking in all like some demi-god in bronze, to the bowsman whose monotonous chant at low water of "'Af-f-f three-e-e, fo-o-o f-e-et," rings in musical notes to the listening pilot above, all go to make up a scene rare, delightful, soothing.

A round-robbin vote of thanks was presented the genial gentlemen comprising the officers of the Colorado Steam Navigation Company for the exceeding courtesy extended, and Commodore Polhamus, Capt. Joe Godfrey, Purser Taylor, and Chief Engineer Muzzy will always occupy a favored nook in the hearts of the guests of the Gila on this her maiden excursion down the Colorado of the West. TAYLOR D. MACLEOD.

ISAAC LEVY,
Probate Judge and ex-officio Superintendent of Public Schools.
Per J. J. STEIN, Deputy Supt.

Not Symptoms, but the Disease.

It would seem to be a truth appreciable by all, and especially by professors of the healing art, that to remove the disease, not to alleviate its symptoms, should be the chief aim of medication. Yet in how many instances do we see this truth admitted in theory, ignored in practice. The reason that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is successfull in so many cases, with which remedies previously tried were inadequate to cope, is attributable to the fact that it is a medecine which reaches and removes the causes of various maladies to which it is adapted. Indigestion, fever and ague, liver complaint gout, rehumatism disorder of the bowels, urinary affections and other maladies are not palliated merely, but rooted out only by it. It goes to the fountain head. It is really, not nominally, a radical redemy, and it edows the system with an amount of vigor which is its best protection against disease.
