Proposed Increase of Army Burdens Fills

Tax-Payers with Dismay. While France, England and Australia are confronted by more or less destructive civil broils in the shape of strikes and lockouts, Germany is somewhat grimly preparing for the international conflict which we are constantly told is inevitable, but which somehow or other has not yet come off, says the Review of Reviews. In order to bring the German army up to the numerical strength They also propose to add $20,000,000 a many over this increase of the burdens of the Fatherland. Already German industry suffers to an extent almost inconceivable in countries which are not plagued with conscription. The prospect of increased taxation on beer, to- per day. bacco, etc., fills the common man with dismay. Bismarck also has lost no time in letting it be understood that he an anti-government Catholic nearly defeated a ministerial supporter of the center, has caused grave uneasiness in Berlin. Negotiations are going with the pope, who, curiously enough, seems likely to have the commanding voice in fixing the quota of soldiers in the army of the first Protestant power on the continent-the Luther celebration notwithstanding.

BELIEVED IN WOMAN'S RIGHTS. She Saw No Reason Why She Should Not Stop and Get a Shine.

"Lena, I'm going to get my shoes blacked.

"Here, boy." "Oh, don't, Mabel. Think how it'll look!" "Don't care. That wagon splashed mud all over them," said Mabel.

It was a case of woman's rights. It was at Thirty-ninth street and Broadway, yesterday afternoon, says the New York Record, and the two girls were stylishly and elegantly

While crossing in front of the Metropolitan opera house a wagon splashed the shoes of both girls, and Mabel insixted that she would assert her rights.

"Here, boy! say, boy! come here'n black my shoes!" The young gamin grinned, unslung his blacking kit, and set to work on the dainty boot set before him.

"I just think I've got as much right to get my shoes blacked in the street as men have," said the girl, saucily. "Oh, Mabel, you mortify me. Come away, that's a dear."

"Not till I get a shine." Men passing by looked once, twice, even thrice, smiled and passed on. A group of youngsters gathered and gazed at the novel sight, but the girl never flinched.

When the shine was finished she tossed the boy a dime and started down the street, answering tartly her companion's "How could you? Just think any with black hair and blue eyes?" The superintendent hunted through the institution and found nothing of the color wanted. It is rather a rare combination anyway, I have heard. Then the woman got mad.

"Why don't you keep a proper assort-ment of orphans?" she demanded. "What's the use of running a place in this one-horse way? Over in the Brooklyn home they've got orphans of all colors. You'll ruin the business if you act like this. Don't you find your customers are going elsewhere? When do you think you'll have orphans with black hair and blue eyes?"

"The colors aren't fashionable," said the superintendent, "but I shall be pleased to communicate with you and fill your order when I am able to do so.' "Well, see that you do," answered the woman, a little mollified. "These institutions aren't half what they used to be. Don't keep me waiting longer than a week.' And she left the red-haired one and

BOTH WERE BENT ON MARRIAGE. How the Young Man Happened to Get a

Week's Vacation So Easily. These are busy times among the world's fair people, and the man who gets "a day off" is counted fortunate. This state of affairs, says the Chicago Tribune, bothered a clerk in one of the departments who had arranged to get married last Wednesday. He wanted at least a week to get used to the new order of things, and, what is more, he did not want his fellow-laborers in the cause of Chicago's great fair to learn of his matrimonial intentions until after the agony was over. So it was with fear and trembling that he waited on the chief of his department. "Mr. Smith," said he, "I would like to get a little vacation, say a week from next Wednesday."

"Um-," said the chief. "What's that about Wednesday? You want a week's holiday, eh? What for?"

The matrimonially inclined young man blushed a trifle, stammered a little, and finally blurted out:

"I'm going to get married on that day and I don't want anybody to know anything about it."

"Going to get married Wednesday," echoed the chief in surprised tones, "Well, my boy, so am I, and I don't summons (if served within this county, or want anyone to know about my case if served out of this County, but in this either. Take the week. I'm going to District within twenty days, other-

NORTON'S Automatic WaterGate

TO PREVENT OVERFLOW IN

Irrigating Canals. Ditches and Reservoirs.

The above cut illustrates an AUTOMATIC WATER GATE, to regulate and keep in subjection the rise of water in canal, due to an over-abund ant flow, or to sudden rises in the canal owing to severe rains or storms.

It is porticularly valuable to have such a Water

Gate placed in lower bank of canal, at such point along its line Where there are Eavines, Gullics Arroyos, Foot Hills, Buttes, or Tableland, as any rains or storms bring down at such points a surplu of water that is very dangerous to the banks of canal. The Waste Gate, however, will prevent such damage, as it is SELF-ACTING AND A PERFECT SAFETY VALVE.

Religving the canal, at short intervals, of its surplus water, thus preventing the washing away o banks, and cousing great damage generally, not alone to canal, but property owners all along the line, who may suffer more or less damages there after for the want of water owing to the damages omittion of canal, and while such repairs are being rade. Not only is it valuable to relieve canal or its surplus water, to prevent damage and expense, but by its use the first cost of canal construction will be materially lessened, as the banks need not be made so high or wide. The device is extremely simple, and compara tively inexpensive Its plan of operation is this; There is a pipe fastened to an opening in the vertical gate, I. When the body of water rises to the level of the upper end of pipe, 2, water runs freely into the tank, 3, which is immediately filled, thus overhalancing the weight, 4, which is on the other end of lever, 5, thus forcing open the gate, which suddenly relieves the canal of a large sur plus of water. When body of water recedes below a certain level, no more water is admitted to the authority of the Company, remove, take tank; it therefore empties itself by a small faucet opening, 6, at the bottom; this being done, the weight overbalances tank, and brings down the lever, which, being right to the swinging gate, closes it. This operation continues at short in tervals, so long as the body of water keeps rising over a certain level. The lever, gate, pipe and tank are all rigid, and hinge, or pivot, on a horicontal shaft. The gate, flume or bex can be made any height, width, or length designst. The gate car be hinged between any bulkhead without hox. The Water Gate is a Perfect Safety Valve, and is to a body of water what a safety valve is to ateau They can be made any size, corresponding with only of water and size of canal. It is secured in letters patent, and for sale only by
