PUBLIC EMPLOYEES IN STATE 78,671

WASHINGTON - The Census Bureau reported that Arizona had 78,671 public employees last October, 21,625 of them working for the U. S.

The state employed 15,556 and 41,490 worked for local governments.

The payroll of state and local government employees in Arizona was approximately $24 million, the report showed.

Arizona had 337 state and local government employees for each 10,000 population. Among the states the highest proportion was 405 per 10,000 population in Wyoming, and the lowest was 261 per 10,000 in Arkansas.

REP. POWELL ENDS TRUCE WITH JFK

WASHINGTON, - Rep. Adam Clayton Powell Jr. indicated his civil rights truce with the Kennedy Administration had ended.

In an interview, he said the Administration was "slowing up" in the rights field. Consequently, he will no longer refrain from offering or supporting anti-discrimination riders to Administration bills.

Mr. Powell became chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee in 1961. He announced then he would withhold support from antidiscrimination amendments - often called "Powell amendments" - while the Administration moved vigorously on the civil rights front.

Mr. Powell said that he no longer felt bound to the pledge inasmuch as President Kennedy had rejected the Civil Rights Commission recommendation to cut off federal aid to Mississippi.

He also criticized the performance of the Health, Education and Welfare Department. He cited its 1962 pledge to cut off federal subsidies to segregated school systems attended by the children of servicemen from Southern military bases. "The whole climate is not one I can operate in," Mr. Powell said.

Asked if that meant he now would begin offering riders to White House bills, he said: "I have to."

4 GROUPS WORK TO HELP UN DELEGATES TO FIND HOMES

NEW YORK - Four different organizations are working to end housing problems faced by members of foreign United Nations delegations here.

Most of the obstacles are caused by racial or religious prejudices. The groups are the United States Mission to the UN, the N.Y. Mayor's office, the UN Secretariat, and the volunteer hospitality committee for UN delegations.

The main purpose is to help foreign visitors have a better impression of our country and to assure them of comfortable living conditions.

The housing situation became critical overnight almost in 1960 when 17 newly independent African nations sent delegations to the UN.

Better accommodations are hard to find because New York City and surrounding areas have long rental waiting lists with plenty of persons wanting larger quarters.

One African delegate said he was less enamored of the United States after having been house-hunting.

Other photographs show a few of the large group of junior and senior high schoolers who attended the youth education workshop at the YMCA, Sat., May 4.

Dr. Howard Seymour, supt. Phoenix Union High Schools was the main speaker.

Grand opening ceremonies are in progress at Harman's new Food-to-go Department in South Phoenix at South 7th Street and Broadway, the fourth Valley location of Harman's growing chain of Kentucky Fried Chicken outlets.

At Harman's southside outlet, there is plenty of free parking and a spacious waiting room. Charles Perret, architect, designed the new facility, which is devoted exclusively to the preparation of Kentucky Fried Chicken.

Dave Harman and Ken Harbaugh, owners of Harman's, first introduced Col. Sanders Kentucky Fried Chicken to the Valley 10 years ago at the big red barn landmark on the Mesa-Tempe Highway in Tempe. During the past 18 months, three new outlets have been added in Phoenix, and another will be added in northeast Phoenix. Two additional locations are planned for opening in 1964.

Since introducing the familiar Col. Sanders Kentucky Fried Chicken, Harman's has served over two million chicken dinners. According to Harbaugh, who personally supervises the operation of all four locations, "The popularity of our Fried Chicken and the growing trend for 'food-to-go' have been largely responsible for our recent rapid growth."

Nuptials were performed Tues., April 28. Shown after the ceremony are Mrs. and Mrs. James Mills, 1830 E. Broadway.

The bride is the former Johanna Walker, of 4202 S. 24 St. From left are Mrs. Prentiss Walker, bride's mother, Mr. and Mrs. Williams, newlyweds, and Mr. Walker, bride's father.
