SOUTHWEST FIGHTS NICHOLS LINE-UP

Development Association, Backed by Tacamans, Goes After Good Roads Funds.

With their entire program suddenly changed because of the lineup on the appropriations for good roads which they discovered when they arrived here this week, about 200 delegates to the eleventh quarterly meeting of the Southwest Washington Development association have been devoting all their energies for the last three days to obtaining for their section of the state the recognition they believe it deserves.

In this they were joined by Tacoma and Pierce county, 100 members of the Tacoma Commercial club having come to Olympia on a special train Thursday evening to attend a mass meeting protesting to Senator Nichols' dictatorial tactics. A definite program was adopted at this meeting.

Particular objection will be made to the selection of the Columbia river as the dividing point between Eastern and Western Washington. Instead of the mountain range, which was chosen by the State Good Roads association. The Southwest boosters also will present a bill of their own by which the state will contribute two dollars to every one spent by a county in road construction.

BIG I. W. W. STRIKE.

Seattle Times Says Leaders Plan to Tie Up State's Lumber Industry.

May 1, 1913, "International Labor Day," first anniversary of the day when the Stars and Stripes were trampled in the streets of Seattle, will mark the complete paralysis of the lumber and logging industries in the Northwest and British Columbia, if plans now being matured at the hands of Industrial Workers of the World are carried into effect, according to the Seattle Times.

That the general strike will be on the basis laid out in the Grays Harbor country one year ago, when an attempt was made to tie up the lumber mills and logging plants in that section, is understood among those conversant with the situation. It is pointed out that practically no intimation of the impending walkout is held by the manufacturers.

VAN EPPS PROBE ENDS.

Present City Engineer Tells Council No Records Are Missing.

The council's investigation of former City Engineer E. L. Van Epps on the charge that he had taken with him some of the city maps and plats when he retired from office ended Tuesday evening when it was shown he had been given a receipt by his successor for all the city records enumerated in the 1912 inventory of the department and when the present city engineer, Weddell, stated he knew of no records that were missing.

Mayor Mottman stated he had made no direct accusations that Van Epps had taken any records but that it seemed to him there must have been records supplementing those in the office and that if there were they belonged to the city. The mayor's examination of Van Epps was blocked by the latter's attorney, T. M. Vance, who declared it appeared to be general in nature when the inquiry was limited solely to the matter of the records. In this he was sustained by the council.

House and Senate Game Laws Conflict.

While the Senate was discussing and finally passed, a measure creating the state game warden system for the preservation and protection of the wild game in the state, the house committee on game and game fish, this week, introduced and urged a bill to retain the present county game warden system.

The game code passed by the senate gives to two state game wardens the entire supervision and control of the wild game, under the direction of a commission to be appointed by the governor. One of these wardens is to be appointed from east and the other from west of the mountains. Each county is to pay and place at the disposal of the state officers a deputy.

The bill introduced in the House places entire charge of the preservation of all game laws and the protection and propagation of all game birds, game animals, game fish and harmless birds and animals in the hands of the county wardens.

The Hanson plan, which is to develop land not owned by the state and consequently does not conflict with Metcalf's idea, is also favorable viewed. The plan of making the cost of the improvement a direct lien on the property is the same as is followed by some of the Middle Western states in the reclamation of thousands of acres of swamp lands and has been found very successful.

The Robe plan allows the local banks to accept first mortgages on logged-off lands, after a thorough investigation into the prospects of the land, the character of the owner and the value both before and after clearing, and loan money at a low rate of interest on condition that all of the money loaned will go to the improvement of the lands. These mortgages will be in the nature of bonds, and will be deemed bankable paper and can be transferred as any other security. This bill is patterned along the lines of the European credit system.

Tom Murphine, the house Progressive leader, is chairman of the special committee which is considering these various plans. The general belief is that the Metcalf and Hanson measures will be united.

G. W. Rutledge, a Puget Sound Pioneer who lived in Thurston county for many years prior to moving to Oakville to live with his daughter, Mrs. L. A. Bradley, Oakville, Mrs. Fred Sargeant, Grand Mound, Mrs. C. C. Sullivan of Raymond, and George Rutledge of Oakville and J. M. Rutledge of Little Rock.
