

one son, and gives to our request, as we humbly conceive, a special claim to your benevolent consideration and regard. We come, then, with our petition, and unite with our fathers, our husbands and brothers and sons, in imploring you to refuse the sanction of your authority to a traffic whose results are deeply afflictive.

The 324 signers of the first named petition constituted a large majority of the legal voters of the town. The Court granted the prayer of the petitioners, so far as to refuse license in Middlebury, excepting to 1 tavern, and two apothecaries shops, the keepers of the latter of which were understood to be pledged to sell for medicinal purposes only. There remained, however, one retailer whose former license run to the late term of the Court, having been granted in December 1842.

At the late term the whole subject was again brought before the Court upon several applications for licenses in this town, and a remonstrance against the granting of them, signed and presented by a committee in behalf of the Young Men's Temperance Society. The following is the remonstrance.

The undersigned, a Committee appointed by the Young Men's Temperance Society of the town of Middlebury for the purpose of petitioning the Court to withhold licenses for the sale of spirituous liquors in said town, except for medicinal purposes, beg leave, in the name and on the behalf of the Society to represent—

"That the daily experience proves, not only that the use of intoxicating liquors is pernicious and destructive of the best interests of individuals and the community, but that their use as a beverage, cannot be wholly prevented, nor, indeed, can much farther progress be made in the temperance reform, while men are licensed by Judicial Tribunals to hold out the temptation to indulgence. The Young Men's Temperance Society has been organized for the purpose of reclaiming the intemperate, and persuading men to refrain from the use of intoxicating drinks. But how can they succeed in this laudable undertaking while establishments are maintained, with the sanction of public authority, whose business it is to resist their efforts, by drawing men into intemperance? With what a fearful odds must they contend when there is arrayed against them the combined force of appetite to drink and the love of gain to tempt to indulgence? Can the community approve the efforts of temperance Societies, and at the same time sanction the giving countenance to rum sellers by public authority? It seems to the undersigned that there cannot be a greater absurdity than this. And this absurdity has come to be so strongly impressed on the mind of this community that the desire to have license for the sale of intoxicating liquors withheld, has become nearly if not quite co-extensive with the desire for the suppression of intemperance. Such we believe to be emphatically the case in Middlebury. The sentiment to this effect evinced at the last term of the Court by the petitions of 324 legal voters, and 447 women, of this town still retains its full strength. We believe, indeed, that it has grown stronger—that the people are more universally and thoroughly convinced that licenses must be stopped, or that all hope of consummating the temperance reform must be abandoned. The undersigned therefore, approach your honors with the confident hope that you will continue to respect the voice of this community, and persevere in the determination manifested at the last term of the Court to withhold license for the sale of intoxicating liquors in this town, except for medicinal purposes.

And in duty bound we ever pray,

JONATHAN A. ALLEN,
M. D. GORDON,
WILLIAM SLADE.

Dec. 19, 1843.

Two able lawyers appeared before the court in behalf of the applicants for license, and the subject was fully discussed. A refusal to grant any license has been the result; so that, henceforth, no spirituous liquors can be lawfully sold in Middlebury, in a quantity less than twenty gallons, except by one Inn keeper, and two apothecaries, the latter of whom took license at the last June term, with the understanding that they would not sell except for medicinal purposes. Whether the implied pledge under which these licenses were taken, has been violated, or if it has, to what extent, I do not undertake to say. If the persons licensed have taken advantage, or shall, hereafter, take advantage, of the necessity of having places where spirituous liquors may be had for medicinal purposes, to sell them for a beverage, I have only to say that there will rest on them a very heavy responsibility to this community—a responsibility rendered the more weighty by an addition of a violation of pledges, to the positive evils inflicted by the sale of intoxicating liquors for a beverage. They ought, moreover, to understand that not only are the eyes of the friends of temperance upon them, but that they are watched by those to whom license has been denied, who will be ready to bring the withholding of licenses into disrepute by claiming that nothing is gained by it, but the transferring of the business of selling for a beverage from their hands to those of others, and giving to them under the name of apothecaries a monopoly of the business.

The friends of temperance have reason to rejoice that so much has been gained, since none are now authorized to sell in Middlebury excepting one tavern keeper, and the two apothecaries referred to, who are under a pledge to keep the monster chained so that he shall not have full range to deprave upon the community.

I know we are threatened with a continuance of the traffic, without license, as it is said to have been continued, by an unlicensed establishment since the June term of the Court. If, however, this threat shall be carried into execution, there will still have been much gained, because it is to be presumed there will not be as much sold in the clandestine operation of violating the law, as there would have been with the full sanction of law, while the public opinion connected with it will be vastly greater.

And besides, it remains to be seen who that has any respect for the voice of this community or the sacredness of law will deliberately disregard the one, and violate the other for the sake of the uncertain gains; for though there may be present gains from it, yet who that believes in the existence of a Providence at whose will we hold all our possessions, & who can give them wings that they shall fly away, but must feel that he holds by a fearfully uncertain tenure, wealth for which he has given no equivalent, but which has been given from the indulgence of depraved appetites, and at the expense of the noblest elements that man can sacrifice, and the highest hopes that his unlicensed indulgence can blast and destroy. How many terrible examples have there been of this sort of retribution, either immediately upon those who have thus "gotten rich and not by right," or upon their children, it may be to "the third and fourth generation." And then there is to be balanced against the present profit, the retributions of the great day of account. We should never balance our accounts of profit and loss without bringing into them this item; for that day will surely come. And who can calmly count over the dollars he has made in the sale of intoxicating liquors, without thinking of the meeting he must then have with the ruined and the lost victims of his guiltless profits!

Though the friend of temperance have gained much, they must remember that they have not gained the privilege of exemption from labor and care and watchfulness in the cause. Appetite, alas! remains to crave indulgence, and the love of gain to tempt it, and a perverted ingenuity to find ways of escape from the meshes of the law, and the just indignation of an injured community. "Eternal vigilance" is the price to be paid for success in the temperance reform. The ground we have reached must be maintained. It can be. It only needs courage, firmness, perseverance. And it will be the more easily done because it is manifest that there is a rapidly increasing conviction in this community that the law ought never to sanction a traffic which, in the language of the petition of 324 freemen of this town, "reduces families to want; sends misery and wretchedness into the domestic circle; kills men; makes widows and orphans; produces pauperism; breaks the peace; stimulates to crime; and taxes the community to support poor-houses and paupers."

The common sense of the people is beginning earnestly to press such questions as the following—

Why should men claim to have license to engage in a traffic which has been, and is, and must be, connected with such terrible evils? Why should horse racing and gambling, and the printing and selling of obscene books, prints &c. be prohibited under heavy penalties, while men are authorized by the Judicial tribunals to engage in the demoralizing and destructive traffic in liquors that intoxicate—that deprive men of their reason—that lead them to commit crimes, that turn the domestic fireside into a bedlam, and a hell, and send men to untimely graves? What compensation can be given in the form of license money, for the infliction of such evils as these on the community?

Even the intemperate themselves find their sober hours, when agonized with recollections of the past, and tortured with the thirst which the spent force of indulgence has left to urge on to new and deeper drafts of the maddening beverage—even they, at these moments when appetite and resolution are struggling in a conflict on which hang the issues of life and death, often revolve in their minds the anxious enquiry—why should the public authorities sanction the keeping up of these establishments which draw me by such an irresistible power to the coveted, yet hated and horrible indulgence? Where is the courage and firmness of those to whose "discretion" the law has committed the question whether these temptations shall assail me at every corner, to say No to the application for their continuance? Oh for some kindly aid—some power to banish these temptations forever from my sight!

And there then is the reclaimed, with wife and children, now made happy in the great transition, tremblingly alive to this subject, & anxiously enquiring—why should there come from the highest judicial tribunal in the county a license to tempt back the husband and the father into the jaws of the great destroyer, and turn the home now made cheerful and happy into an abode of want and wretchedness, and woe!

The eyes of the people are more and more opened to the true character of the traffic in intoxicating drinks; and a feeling of quiet gratification runs through the masses at every step that is taken in the progress towards the great result which is at no distant day to free the community from the pestilence of rum selling establishments. The rum sellers and their advocates may talk of reactions; but they will find that this revolution does not go backward. Where has been the reaction since the decision of the Court last June against the applications then made for licenses? There were threats enough of reaction; but how impotent they have proved—No. The action has been onward—not backward. And it will be onward. The great mass of the people rejoice that so much has been effected—some openly, others secretly. And now if those who talk of reaction are disposed to bring it to the test, let them get up a petition to the Court to grant license to all the late retailers and tavern keepers in Middlebury, and see how many can be prevailed on to sign it. Why did they not try this at the late term of the Court? Why did they present their own solitary applications backed by the arguments of ingenious lawyers instead of the people's petitions? The truth is, they dared not make the experiment. They knew that it would be an uphill business to attempt to get men, at this time of day, to record their names in favor of rum selling. But I must close this communication, already, perhaps, too much prolonged. I have more to say, which will be forthcoming in due time. I close with a single word to the friends of temperance—PERSEVERE.

LICENCES.

Having the good of the community before their eyes and not the privileges of rum sellers or the menaces of a class of politicians who are rejoicing at every opportunity to make political capital at the expense of the best and dearest interests of community we understand, the last County Court refused licenses to retailers throughout the County. The rummies had a fair trial. Their cause was advocated by two of the most able legal gentlemen in the County. The constitutionality of the law, the rights of rum sellers, to vend, and of those who drink to purchase the liquid poison were ably advocated. But all would not do. The Court were firm. They should be crowned with laurels. They are the first to set a noble example before the State. They are entitled to the thanks of every patriotic christian and philanthropist. The people will sustain them. And after the expiration of several licenses, now extant, it will depend upon the faithful execution of the law and the vigilance of the prosecuting officer whether the enormous proportion of crime and want and beggary which spring from intoxication shall continue its existence in the County of Addison.

SELECTION.—The Rev. L. Reed, Pastor of the Presbyterian Church in this village, was brought before the Champlain Presbytery, on Tuesday last, upon the charge of seduction. The trial continued three entire days and evenings, and after a most impartial investigation, he was convicted of the charge and deposed from the ministry. The Victim was a girl only 17 years of age, and a member of his church. But we forbear to remark on the enormity of the offence, as disclosed by the witnesses—our church mourns, our community suffers, and mercy itself weeps over such exhibitions of the depravity of poor human nature.—Plattsburgh Republican.

The Spokenmen Restored.—See Congressional Proceedings for a specimen of locofoco economy. The House has appointed those old bloodsuckers Blair & Rives, printers, and out of sheer pity—perhaps—for these suffering nabobs, voted to pay them 20 per cent. more than was paid by the late Whig Congress. This needlessly takes something like $20,000 a year out of the Treasury, and puts it into Blair & Rives' pockets for party services. Or it is a gift to them. Do you remember how sorely the locofoco editors complained when a Whig Congress directed President Harrison's salary to be paid to his poor widow? Mark, now, whether these same presses complain of making a present of $20,000 a year to these nabobs, Blair & Rives.—Id. Watch.

COUNTY BIBLE SOCIETY.

There being at present in Addison County no Bible Society except as connected with some of the particular denominations, it has been deemed desirable that a Society should be formed auxiliary to our State Society exclusively devoted to extend the circulation of the Holy Scriptures, and that it should embrace all denominations of Christians and all persons who are willing to aid in promoting so important an enterprise. To secure this end, the subscribers have been appointed to call a Convention, the object of which shall be to consider the importance of having the circulation of the Bible universally extended and to organize a County Bible Society.

Notice is hereby given that a Convention for the above purpose will be held at Middlebury, in the Vestry of the Methodist Episcopal Church on Friday the 19th day of Jan. next at 10 o'clock, A. M.

Attest, J. MERRILL, Judge. 28

STATE OF VERMONT,
District of New Haven, ss.
BE it remembered that a Probate Court, holden at Bristol in said district on the 6th day of December 1843. Warren Williams Administrator on the Estate of NATHANIEL J. STEARNS, late of Monkton in said district deceased presented his petition in writing praying that he may be licensed to sell so much of the real Estate of said deceased as will raise the sum of five Hundred and fifty dollars, at public auction or private sale, for the purpose of paying the debts against said Estate and expenses of Administration, and therein sets forth the amount of debts due from said deceased, of the charges of Administration, the value of the personal Estate and the situation of the Estate to be sold and that it is necessary to sell a part of the real Estate of said deceased for the purpose aforesaid; it is therefore ordered that the application for license to sell a part of the real Estate of said deceased be considered at a Session of said Court to be holden at the office of the Judge of said Court in Bristol in said district on the first Monday of January 1844 at 10 A. M. and that the Administrator cause notice thereof to be given to all persons interested, by publishing a certified copy of this order in the Northern Galaxy & Middlebury Peoples Press a newspaper printed at Middlebury in the County of Addison, three weeks successively previously to the term of said Court.
