The True Policy.

RICHMOND, April, 1873.

To the Editor of the State Journal:

In view of the approaching campaign in our state, and the great importance at tached thereto, I have concluded, with your permission, to express my views relative to the same, through your valuable paper. No one who watches the action and course of a certain class of Republicans in this city, can fail to observe that the afferents of certain class of Republicans in this city, can fail to observe that the afferents of certain class of Republicans in this city, can fail to observe that the afferents of certain class of Republican as they are in this day of their pride and glory. The man of this can the property of the same through your valuable paper, in the control and run the party in their own interest of their favorites, without regard to availability, or even any line of policy to be pursued by the Republican party. Notwithstanding the adverse experience we have had in Virginia, there are some individuals who still assume the absolute right to control and run the party in their own individual interest, or that of some personal favorites. This course is humiliating and destructive to the success of our party. They have to some extent the public ear, They have gained it by insinuations and by crying down every one who does not come into their favorite ring or clique. When we consider that this class of persons are of themselves the embodiment of a clique, of the most pernicious and dangerous charater, it is amusing to hear them denounce others as essentially the ring or clique. These persons are double-faced, double in the celling, and well calculated to deceive and play the hypocrit.

If there ever was a time in the history of the Republican party in this state that fair and many dealing should be the ruling principle with united tharmony in the party, and the present administrative term than she has lost in the last terms, since Jack-

If there ever was a time in the history of the Republican party in this state that fair and manly dealing should be the ruling principle with united harmony in the party, this is the time—for we have an ever vigilant and active party foe to fight—whose political sagacity and shrewdness are second to none in this or any other state. It therefore behooves us who are not slaves to position, nor to the expectancy of one, to deliberate calmly upon the political situation, and duly consider the material of which our party is composed, before attempting to forestall the nomination of any person prior to the assembling of the convention. We have seen the demoralizing vention. We have seen the demoralizing effects of this course in the past, and it is not the part of wisdom to repeat blunders in politics. Let us rather take advantage of our past mistakes and be guided by discretion in the future.

Letters from Colonel R. W. Hughes, Senator Lewis, and Representatives Platt, Stowell, and Sener were read before the meeting of the Republican association of Washington Monday night. Colonel Hughes letter is as follows:

"I am glad to know that a leading object with you is to promote the success of the Republican party in the coming election in Virginia. With harmony in our counsels, a patriotic abnegation of self in the hearts of all individuals, and united exertion, success will be easily obtained.
But if strife and bitterness arise, and contention and distraction rule, we shall neither nor deserve success. I am very nt that we shall present a picture in our next state convention of harmony and personal disinterestedness, and that we

her children.

"From the establishment of the Republic down to the day of Jackson, Virginia was a national state; national in her sentiments, in her associations, and in her policy. While so she steadily advanced in material greatness, wealth, and power. She did not begin to decline, either relative or absolutely, until she abandoned the counsels of Washington and Jackson and betook herself to the doctrines of Calhoun.

"I am not the one to blame her for this change of position. Her agitation of the slavery question seemed to compel her to look to the tenets of state rights, which had always loud advocates, as a refuge from the danger which threatened. When the autonomy of the states was so seriously threatened, as by a proposition from the threatened, as by a proposition from the outside to interfere on moral grounds with their domestic institutions, especially an institution planted with the first planting of society itself on these shores, what more natural, in the alarm that was produced, for Virginia and her associated states to plant themselves on extreme state rights doctrines as their only fortress in the emergency.

"But slavery is now past and gone, and with it has passed away all necessity for a resort to the extreme state rights doctrines that were advocated from compulsion in the period of social danger. I see no further need for those doctrines, except as they may serve the convenience of the Republic, the expansion of which to embrace the whole North American continent depends upon leaving to the states the unrestricted management and control of all local concerns.

"I believe that our commonwealth sees "I believe that our commonwealth sees the subject in this light, and that the vote which she cast for General Grant gave earnest of her intention to abandon the extreme sectional politics and return to the national doctrines which were espoused by Washington, embodied in language by Madison in the Farewell Address, and compendiously proclaimed by Andrew Jackson, "The Union must and shall be preserved."

"Parties in this country seem to have that sort of metempsychosis which some philosophers have imputed to animals; and I have often thought and said that the Republican party of 1872 was a revival of the Jackson Democratic party of 1832.
"Go back to the controversies of forty years ago, and you will be surprised to find how identical were the positions and arguments of that day on one side or the other with those of 1872. Then it was a military here and imperial despot threatmilitary hero and imperial despot threat-ening the liberties of the country, just as it was last year in the imagination or pre-tenses of the party out of power. Then it was maintained that the country beheld its last president and was about to sink it was last year in the imagination is last president and was about to sink into a consolidated despotism conducted by an irresponsible military usurper. Then all hope of free government was abandoned by men who had no faith in human liberty, in the popular virtue or intelligence, or in the destiny of the republic. But who will deny now the truth of those will retain time? the truth of those evil vaticinations? Who will pretend now that General Jackson was not a man of the people, imbued with the spirit of democracy, devoted to the cause of liberty, a champion of free institutions, a servant rather than a master of his country in

"Having thus retrieved her political fortunes this commonwealth will then have removed all obstructions to that material development and growth which have so auspiciously commenced since her vote in November last. As a loyal friend and supporter of the Union, she will accomplish more of material development in the present administrative term than she has lost in the last ten terms, since Jackson."

Senator Lewis says: "It will always give me pleasure to co-operate with the association in forwarding any measure calculated to advance the interests of the Republican party. Owing to my multifatious engagements and duties I cannot hope to meet you in council often, but will be pleased to do so as often as I can."

Mr. Platt writes to the association as follows: "I shall be glad at all times to render any assistance in my power in furtherance of the objects for which your State association was formed, and trust you may prove a valuable auxiliary to the party by promoting harmony and good

Mr. Stowell, chairman of the state Republican committee, concludes his note of thanks by expressing "the hope that your organization may be prosperous and vigorous, a source of benefit to our party, and a channel of social communication to us individually."

LOCAL MATTERS.

THE APPROACHING STATE FAIR.—
The executive committee of the State agricultural society held a meeting last night,
W. H. F. Lee in the chair. Mr. Thomas
Branch of this city, and Major W. T.
Sutherlin, of Danville, were appointed delegates to the National Agricultural Congress, which meets at Indianapolis on the 4th of next month. Colonel Withers was then added to the delegation.
The president stated that the former arrangements of the society with the four THE APPROACHING STATE FAIR.

rangements of the society with the four railroads centreing here were continued. Mr. Nowlin, of Fauquier, offered the fol-lowing resolutions, which were unanimouslowing resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

Resolved. That this committee have heard with pleasure of the action of the citizens of Richmond looking to a co-operation on their part with the State society in the approaching fair.

Resolved, That the committee on premium list be instructed to confer with the committee of citizens, and make such arrangements as will afford the amplest facilities for carrying out the commendable object had in view by the citizens of Richmond.

The committee then went into the revi sion and correction of the premium list as reported by the committee. Section 1st was so amended, on motion of Colonel Harrison, as to give the premium for the largest crop raised on any kind of It was further determined that as the time of the annual fair was too early for time of the annual fair was too early for planters to season, strip and prepare tobacco properly to compete for the prizes offered, the award of premiums be made at the quarterly meeting of the executive committee in January, 1874, and that contestants have their samples and statements as early as possible at the office of the secretary of the society.

The Second Police District.—
The new station-house in the second police district has been completed and Captain Disney and his force moved into their new quarters yesterday. We have already given our readers a general idea of the building and its adaptability to the purposes for which it is designed. The reoccupancy of the old headquarters was made the occasion of a most elegant banquet at Monticello Hall last night, to which many prominent city officials and citizens were invited. Four long tables were bountifully spread with all the substantials and delicacies of the season. Every thing was arranged in the utmost good taste, reflecting much credit upon the committee who had charge of the affair, which was composed of Captain John Disney, Sergeant George W. Folkes, and privates E. P. Hulse, A. T. Walton, Henry Charters, and C. De Priest. The tables were handsomely decorated with flowers, &c., and were presided over by Mayor Keiley, Judge White, Mr. Thomas H. Wynne, and Major Poe. After the more substantial portion of the feast had been discussed by the company, wines and other liquors were served to those who indulged, and several hours of social convivality ensued. Everything passed off pleasantly and harmoniously, the only thing which appeard to us to be in bad taste being a reference to politics by one of the speakers, and a slap at newspapers by another. It gives us pleasure to bear testimony, which the general good order of the city amply corroborates, to the efficiency and activity of the police force of Richmond, and to the hospitality and uniform courtesy of the force in the second district. CAPTAIN ADAMS' LECTURE.—Captain Samuel Adams delivered a very fine lecture in St. Alban's Hall, last night, to an intelligent audience. He stated that he had consumed over five years in exploring the great canons of the Colorado river, and the great mineral and agricultural country drained by it, covering an area ten times as large as the state of New York. He had prosecuted his explorations under the direction of Secretary Stanton, receiving encouragement from the ablest men of both political parties. His services were valuable to the entire nation, yet he received no remuneration for them from the government. He had ascertained that the colorado river was navigable for over six hundred miles, furnishing an outlet for inexhaustable mines of precious metals. He gave descriptions of ancient cities, canals, missions, fortifications, &c., in that extensive, valuable, and comparinely unknown portion of our CAPTAIN ADAMS' LECTURE .-

of ancient cities, canals, missions, forthications, &c., in that extensive, valuable, and comparatively unknown portion of our public domain, and gave facts to show the superiority of the southern route to the Pacific. He had explored canons over 3,000 feet deep, and valleys from twenty to seventy-five miles in extent, and described the magnificent scenery there presented.

The lecture was highly interesting throughout, and developed facts which cannot fail to have a beneficial bearing upon the future of our city and state. Captain Adams contemplates delivering a lecture in Norfolk one night this week, and will most likely return here and address the people again. He has done much to open up the great southwestern country, and is capable of entertaining the most intelligent audience. We promise our Norfolk friends a rich treat in his lecture.

FASHION OPENING.—Mrs. M. J. Davis, the fashionable milliner of this city, gives her spring opening to-morrow, at No. 907 Main street, on which occasion, it is safe to say, all the beauty and fashion of Richmond will "put in an appearance" to see how the real, as well as the ideal, lady of the city is to be artistically adorned and fashioned for the season. Of course, here is a theme for the imagination to revel, if not run wild, in luxuriance and beauty—to take in the fragrance of a thousand spring flowers, artificial though they may be, and to be weighted down with more than oriental splendor in adornment, as one after another of the beauties of the season is disclosed to him in the line of female fashion and dress. But we are positively one FASHION OPENING .- Mrs. M. J. Davis.

other of the beauties of the season is disclosed to him in the line of female fashion and dress. But we are positively one whose imagination refuses to take flight upon so gorgeous a theme as is here suggested. Like Diogenes in his tub, we say to all such beauty and gorgeousness, "stand out of our sunshine." And yet we don't object to beautiful flowers and fabrics to adorn beautiful women, when the graces of the heart and mind are in harmony with external adornment.

The most fashionable colors of the season are mustard, (show-chow,) sulphur, and other subdued hues, mixed in with heavenly blue ("cerulean," as a term is played out) and other divine tints, to make woman look just as angelic as possible; and which of them cannot look angelic when she tries, especially after coming from the artistic hand of our fashionable milliner? But Fashion must rule in its high court, and that court will be held to-morrow in the opening of Mrs. Davis, the accomplished and fashionable milliner of Richmond.

The New York Gas Strikers—Collision with the Police.

New York, April 9.—The gas men and police came into collision last evening, and after a sharp tussle the policemen were victorious. The strikers made a demonstration on the Manhattan gas works, on the Tenth avenue side, but the attacking party was repulsed with but little damage. Rallying, a rush was made for entrance, but the police quickly appearing there, the strikers distance, where they had a consultation, and, the police say, obtained arms. Subsequently the whole force of strikers were massed and a rush was made, that the police might be taken by surprise and an entrance gained. The police, however, were on the alert and routed the gas men, many of whom had bloody heads and many of whom had bloody heads a were overawed and retreated to a safe well belabored bodies. Pistols were used on both sides. It is understood the attack was made on the works, that the valve room might be gained and the gas shut off, so that citizens generally might be inconvenienced and made to sympathize with the strikers. During the conflict outside of the works, there was great excitement inside. The men were armed and expressed the deter-mination to defend themselves.

SO MISSISSIPPI. The rise in the Mississippi.
St. Louis, April 8.—The rise in the Mississippi river was so rapid last night that large amount of freight on the levee, including grain, flour, sugar, pork, bulk meat, and miscellaneous merchandise, was submerged, and although a large force of laborers have been employed all day endeavoring to save the property, much of it will be lost. Accounts from the interior of this and other states say all the tributaries of the upper rivers are pouring out great volumes, and a general freshet is feared.

The Illinois river particularly is expected to overflow its banks, and the peo-ple living in the bottoms are driving their live stock to the bluffs and removing their portable property to places of greater safety. At Hannibal the Mississippi river rose eleven feet in twelve hours, and at other points a similar rise occurred. It is feared there will be great destruction to property all along the western and northern rivers. HT OWT UTAH.

Brigham Young Resigned and Makes His Will-Problem Probably Solved. SALT LAKE, April 8.—The Mormon conference was largely attended to-day. Brigham Young addressed the Saints this evening and said he was getting old and wanted the young men to carry on the work he had commenced. He wanted seven counsellors to aid the first president, and finally he resigned the position of trustee in trust of the church.

NEW YORK, April 9 .- A special from Salt Lake says Brigham Young has made a will dividing his immense property be-tween his sixteen wives and sixty children, and carefully stipulating the method of division. It is believed that the old Mormons will follow the changed fortunes of the self-deposed leader, and that so far as Utah is concerned the Mormon problem may probably be considered solved.

A Spaniards Tirade Against the United States.

NEW YORK, April 9.—A Madrid letter to The World says: "Deputy Garcia Ruiz, inveighed forcibly against the United States in the late debates on slavery, saying Spain might as well ask England to initiate reform in the East Indies as for the United States to advise the release of slaves by Spain. After a long tirade against the course of Anglicizing the American continent, pursued by the United States, he concluded by saying he would rather see Spain in the power of Charles VII, than divided among English, French, Portuguese, and Americans,
