I have had occasion to use them three or four times since then and am glad to say that they have given the most satisfactor, result. Off and on I had a dull ache across the small of my back and it was always worse if I did much stooping or heavy if ting. I also Ind trouble from the kidney secretions, the passages being irregular and distressing. When I read about Doan's Kidney Pills in the local papers, I got a box at P. H. ## A GREWSOME REVENGE

By PETER C. DOHONOF Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

In Russia there is a custom among the rural classes in certain regions which is very curious. Instead of a man asking a girl to marry him, a girl who wishes a man for a husband goes to his house and asks him to marry her. If he declines and turns her out her relatives will be revenged upon him, so she may stay on, if she likes, till he succumbs or concludes to take a thrashing from her big brother.

Peter Hazielvich while living in a region where it was customary for the man to propose met a young girl at a dance and afterward courted ber. dance and afterward courted her. She listened to his lovemaking, expecting every day that he would propose to her. But Peter delayed and, finally meeting another girl he liked better. ceased his attentions to the first and

Five years later Peter was living, a single man, among those people whose marriages were arranged by the woman's making the first advance. He had failed to win the second girl he had courted, and his attentions were not renewed to the first. Indeed, the filted girl, Katherine Dronsky, gave every evidence that if he came courting her again he would eatch a tartar.

One day Katherine, while attemptthe day Kanaerine, while attempting to kindle a fire by pouring kero-sene oil on it, caused an explosion. She was badly burned, and on recov-ering her face was a mass of scars.

One day Peter was at work on his farm in his new home when he saw a woman go into his house. She being veiled, he could not see her face. At once he suspected that one of his neighbors was intending to make him a proposition of marriage. This disconcerted him, for he had not seen any woman in his neighborhood whom he would like to marry except one, whom he did not believe wanted hlm. But the thought that it might be she filled him with pleasure. At any rate, anxious to know who had fa-vored him, he threw down his implements and went to the house.

There, standing in his living room, was Katherine Dronsky, the girl he had Jilted.

"Peter, hearing that you had come this country, never having been able to conquer my love for you, I concluded to come too. We-my moth er, my brothers and myself-have bought a farm near yours, and 1, hearing of the custom of this country by which the girl instead of the man pro poses marriage, have come to ask you to be my husband."

Peter qualled before the look she gave him-a look of hate, revenge, tri-umph. It froze the very marrow in his bones. He stood looking upon the horrible face confronting him 2. An account of all taxes definquent or otherwise on the land mentioned in the bill.

An account of any other matters deemed accessary by the Master or required by any of the parties in interest.

Notice is hereby given to all parties of the state and had she willed it would have punished him. Now, doubtless, they were ready to support her in this revenge she had evidently set her heart upon

You don't seem pleased to see me. Peter," the woman said scornfully, "I'm not so beautiful as I was when you courted me, but I have the same heart. At any rate, if there is any change of heart you have caused it, so yours is the fault. They tell me here that when a girl goes to a man's house to propose marriage she remains there if she likes till he accepts her. I have come here to stay."

And so the two entered upon a new tife, the one of endurance, the other of revenge. Peter never spoke to her, and after her proposal she never spoke to him. She cooked her own food in the outhouse, and Peter cooked his in the farmhouse. Peter grew lean and haggard, and his eye after a time had the look of one whose mind is on the his farm from early morning till as late as he could see, never going into his house except for his meals. Katherine kept in her own quarters except for about an hour after Peter gult work, which she spent in the farmhouse with him.

One night the neighbors saw a lurid glare in the direction of Peter's house and, going there, found it on fire. Katherine rushed out of her quarters and, seeing the fire, called on Peter to come He came to a window, and she begged pitcously for forgiveness. those present held her. Then the roof and all knew that Peter Hazielvich had perished.

Katherine was taken away from that region and was never again heard of in those parts.

GROSBEAK IS OUR FRIEND.

Much Maligned Little Bird Is Active Enemy of Destructive Insects

The grosbeak is a very much maligned bird and instead of being destructive to crops he is, on the contrary, of great benefit, according to farmers' bulletin 456, just issued by Secretary Wilson. The bulletin states that seven kinds of finches, commonly known as the grosbenk, summer within our boundaries. A majority of these are good friends of the farmer and de serve to be widely known in order that their services may be appreciated. The grossbeaks are easily distinguish ed from other finches by their stout form, bright plumage, massive bills and melodious voices. The bulletin in its plea for the pro tection of the grosbeak says; "Present investigations prove that the services of the grosbeak in destroying insec pests are invaluable. Each kind pays especial attention to which if unchecked would cause enormous loss. Few of our birds are to be credited with more good and with fewer evils than the grosbeak, and none more clearly deserves protection by the practical farmer."

SOUTH SEA FASHIONS.

The Dusky Native Belles Have Queer Ideas About Dress.

It would be hard to find a spot where the subject of dress does not sway the feminine mind. To the world at large its observance causes either a great deal of pleasure or a good store of amusement. In the category of amuse ment may be placed the proceedings of the dusky belies described by Beatrice Grimshaw in her book, "In the Strange South Sens:"

A lace trimmed garment of mine usually worn at night under the shell ter of sheets and quiits, went to a Sun day morning church as a best dress in full daylight on the person of the laun-dress intrusted with my wash. The funny side was so conspicuous that she never got the reproof she deserved.

The bride wore fourteen silk dresses, not all at once, but one after another, changing her dress again and again during the reception until the white spectators were fairly glddy.

JOY IN THE SCHOOL.

How Infant Classes In Some Foreign Countries Are Handled.

The man in the club had been talk-ing politics with the school inspector until that gentleman declined to discuss the subject any more.

"We'll talk about the youngsters themselves for a change," he said. "Do you know that both in France and Beiglum rending, writing and arithmetic are being omitted from the subjects taught in infant schools? The children are simply taught to be happy instead. And when they bring their dinners to school the food has, under the official regulations, to be put into a basket, which must be labeled at the school and set on a special shelf in a clean, airy pince. Fancy such regulations in England! Any old newspaper and any cupboard is good enough for our children. "In Germany toys are provided for play time, and all little children are compelled to bring clean pocket handkerebiefs to school, and they must have a bath once a week.

"In Finland the tiniest children are taught to wash dolls, dust, sweep, look after flowers, and so on, and in some Japanese schools a resting room, with a bed, is provided, so that overtired children may have a nap!"-London

Bill and His Watch. "Bill, can you give me the correct time?" says one of Bill's friends.

"Sure," says Bill, dragging out his atch. "My watch was just leven seconds slow at twenty minutes of day before yesterday afternoon, and 1 don't believe it's varied more than a quarter of a second since. It's now twenty-two minutes and seven seconds past 5."

"Thanks, old man," says Bill's friend, who then drops his own watch into his pocket and goes on his way. Really he wasn't so particular about knowing the time himself as desirous of giving pleasure to Bill, for he knows that Bill is one of the few million men in the world who think each that his watch is a wonder and who feel them selves flattered when their friends ask them for the correct time.-New York
