Tributes to Washington From French Contemporaries

WASHINGTON is dead. This great man battled against tyranny. He has made the liberty of his country a solid fact.

All his answers are pertinent. He shows the utmost reserve and is very diffident, but at the same time he is firm and unchangeable in whatever he undertakes.

The soldiers, jealous of his praises, feared even his silence. Never was a general better served and obeyed.

Washington did the two greatest things which in politics it is permitted man to attempt. He maintained peace the independence of his country.

Washington were united the rare talents of a warrior and the virtues of a sage.—Voltaire.

An Orator on Oratory. W. Bourke Cockran was discussing oratory once at a dinner. "The modern style of oration," he said, "is plain, direct and simple."

Selling Goods in Lisbon. Around Lisbon are certain entrances, generally gateways of the old walls. All persons bringing chickens, eggs, butter or any other product into the city for sale are stopped at the gate.

These Faddists. "I am afraid Mrs. Wapping is a ter-magant," remarked Mrs. Pilcher. "Indeed," said Mrs. Bluntstone, with a slight elevation of her eyebrows.

Looking Ahead. She (bored)—No, Mr. Lytle, I can never love you. I honor and respect you. I am sure you would make some other woman a good husband.

SPEED OF OSTRICHES.

The Swiftest Birds Are Chosen by Buyers For Menageries. In selecting ostriches for menageries or zoological gardens the swiftest are chosen.

A buying agent visited a pen of ostriches in Africa. At his call two beautiful birds came up to him.

The ostriches were held while the visitor walked to a certain distance. At a signal they were set free and began to run for the flag.

They ran neck and neck for more than half the distance, their wings working like arms and making a great sound. Presently one drew ahead.
