The Trolley party, given by Mr. R. D. Apperson last Thursday evening, for the pleasure of his little daughters, Jesse and Maggie, was in every particular an occasion of the utmost enjoyment to the many little girls and boys participating. Two cars were filled with the jolly little party, which passed several times over the entire loop line, giving vent to their merriment by shouts of laughter and the waving of handkerchiefs, their voices mingling with the strains of the string band which accompanied them and afterwards furnished music for the dance which took place at the house where refreshments were served.

A Mistake.

It was stated last week that Mr. Julius C. Scheffer of this city was a member from the Virginia delegation on the committee to notify McKinley of his nomination. This statement was copied from a correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, but is a mistake, as J. C. Brown is the man, who is not as big a man as Scheffer.

Rev. Job Turner.

The Messenger of May 30th, published at the Alabama Institute, for the State of Alabama, contains a good likeness of Rev. Job Turner with an interesting brief sketch of his life from the time he was three years of age. Of him it says truly that "Rev. Turner is known throughout the length and breadth of the United States, and that his genial presence is hailed with pleasure everywhere. He is always cheerful and carries a cheery presence."

Mr. Turner is now spending a few days in Staunton.

Misplaced.

In making up the personal column last week the lines—"Both the groom and bride are dear mutants and graduates of the D. D. & B. Institution"—were detached from the paragraph to which they belonged. We publish them now in the proper connection—

Mr. Withrow's bid was $45,000, and he had deposited a certified check of $500 as a guarantee of the completion of the building under a guarantee company.

The supervisors insisted on this and Mr. Withrow then declined further negotiation and the contract was awarded to W. E. Spier of Washington, D. C., at $40,700, the lowest bid.
