Bevans, of Redwing, Mingesota; Urinh Jamison, of Mansfield, Ohio; and L. H. Terrell, of New Brunswich, N. J. It is thus manifest that there "all be a conflict upon the first day as 'o which indictment shall be tried. The defence will insist upon the murder indictment, and the prosecution upon that chargang engaging in rebellion. The prosecuting officers say that they will not consent to go to trial except upon the last-named indictment, and they seem disposed to admit Surratt's discharge upon the first, and contend that the minutes of the court show that to be the fact.

The Times has a long article on American affairs this morning. The writer believes the American Minister (Mr. Johnson) has a carte blanche from his Government to settle the Alabama claims difficulty, and says the case itself presents little trouble. The only difficulty is the reluctance of the American Government to settle the difficulty growing out of war resentments. No American statesmen can believe that the Alabama escaped with the concurrence of Great Britain. There might be a question of inadequate laws, making England answerable; but this could be easily settled. The real grievance of the United States was the indifference of England in the civil war, and her willingness to see the Union dissolved. Of this Americans were conscious at the time, and they remember it keenly now. They think we should have had an active sympathy with the North, and that the Confederacy, based upon human slavery, should have been at once condemned. We copy the following succinct and comprehensive statement of the latest intelligence of the conflict between the brave and indomitable Paraguayans and their adversaries the allies, who have not at all commended themselves to the world by the manner of their war upon a nation so much their inferior in numbers:

"The details of recent operations on the Parana river show that the Paraguayans were not driven from the powerful fortifications of Humaita, but abandoned them for a new and still more powerful line of defensive works near the mouth of the Tibicuari river. Before retiring, however, Lopez inflicted a most murderous repulse upon the allies. Marshal Caxias discovered on the 25th of July that the garrison were preparing to leave, and he accordingly dispatched a heavy force to intercept them. "The Paraguayans kept perfectly quiet until the allies had got within almost gunshot range, when they opened a most sweeping and destructive fire of grape and canister, which swept down entire regiments of the advancing columns and sent the survivors fleeing back in confusion and dismay to their lines. Caxias did not attempt a second time to interfere with Lopez's plans. The latter withdrew, and on the 25th the allies occupied Humaita, finding 200 cannon spiked or rendered useless, and about a dozen wounded soldiers in hospital. "A few days before, the Paraguavans performed one of those daring feats which have distinguished them in their memorable defence and elicited the applause of the world. Three hundred brave fellows pushed boldly out into the river in open canoes, and boarded and captured, in the face of a terrific fire of small arms, two of the Brazilian iron-clads. They held them for some hours, but were finally compelled to relinquish them, owing to the severity of an artillery fire opened upon them from Fort kept the surviving crews of both iron-clads locked up in the hatches, whither they had driven them. "Later advices from London state that the allied army was on the march to lay siege to Lopez's new line of defence in coniunction with the fleet. It is probable, however, that the plucky Paraguayan commander has made preparations to meet them. The whole conduct of his soldiers thus far proves unmistakably that they partake of all his valor and determination, and do not look upon him as a 'tyrant.' The occupation of Humaita has occasioned much rejoicing through Brazil, the Argentine Republic, and Uraguay, though with it are mingled clamors for the removal of Caxias because of the previous disastrous

DO YOU WANT TO MAKE MONEY?

We have the best money-making business ever offered. The great AUTOMATIC CLOTHES WASHER AND BOILER, now on exhibition at W. J. ANDERSON'S, $25 Main street is the most successful and wonderful invention ever offered. This boiler is self-acting, and dispenses entirely with labor and the wear of clothes. The hot suds and steam, by the action of fire, are driven up through tubes, poured upon the clothes, and forced through tubes, poured upon the clothes, and the rapidity, cleansing it perfectly without any rubbing. All fabrics, from the finest laces to the bed-blanket, can be washed perfectly and with ease without the aid of the rubbing-board. The invention can be used in any common wash-boiler, and the low price of the article places it within the reach of all. The right to a single county on this valuable invention is a small fortune, and the right to a whole State is untold wealth to a man of enterprise. Ladies and gentlemen are invited to call and see its wonderful operation at W. J. ANDERSON'S store.

State and county rights for sale for the southern States only.
