

Orders Are Issued in Numerous Cases in Court of Glacier

Special to The Daily Tribune.
Cut Bank, Dec. 18.—Judge John J. Greene held a two-day session of district court here ending Friday.
Damas Bruneau charged with assault. W. W. Taylor charged with larceny and Carl Rucker charged with burglary were arraigned, and all three were held for the next jury term of court which will probably be held in March. Rucker was released on $500 bail but Bruneau and Taylor were unable to furnish bail.
Sverin Skjelveland petitioned the court to be allowed to change his name to Sam Christensen, which was allowed. He told the court that his name was too hard to pronounce and as his friends had nicknamed him "Sam" he preferred the latter name. He was also granted naturalization papers.

Queen Hosea was granted a divorce from M. S. Hosea on the grounds of inhuman treatment and she was granted $30 per month alimony.
Gladys Puthoff was given her freedom from Chas. F. Puthoff, she claiming desertion.
Mary McGovern was given a decree against John McGovern on the same grounds and Harry A. Feinberg was granted a divorce or desertion from Pearl Feinberg.
A divorce was also granted Bernice O. Cameron from H. S. Cameron for desertion.

CAP ROCK REACHED IN WINIFRED WELL WITH OIL SHOWING

Hole Is Down 2,467 Feet and Drilling Into the Sand Will Be Started Soon.

Special to The Daily Tribune.
Lewistown, Dec. 18.—That what is supposed to be the cap rock overlying the oil sands has been reached in the Montana-Kansas well near Winifred is the word which has just reached Lewistown from the well and, coming from wholly reliable sources, is given credence here. The report tells that the drill reached the cap rock at 2,467 feet and that excellent oil indications were found in the hole at that depth.

The hole was in good condition all the way down and casing has now been run to the rock and cemented. Manager W. T. Brown is now waiting for the cement to harden and the job of drilling on through the rock and into the sand will then be undertaken. That part of the job will be a short one.

Plenty of time will be allowed for the hardening of the cement, but the well will be completed into the sand where production is expected next week, probably toward the end of it.
It is both interesting and encouraging to see the bottom of the hole for some distance with rock in order to assure a straight bore and then getting on gradually to the present depth.

Several Are Injured in Automobile Smash Which Killed Gordon

Special to The Daily Tribune.
Lewistown, Dec. 18.—Details of the fatal auto accident that occurred Friday evening in which Jack Gordon was killed, show that Gordon had gone out to the Judith place with Pleasant Smith, the wrestler, in the latter's car. They then rode out a short distance on the Grass Range road and picked up Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cauley, and son who were walking to the city, their car having become stalled on the road. Smith speeded up his car as he neared the city and not being familiar with the road was almost upon a sharp turn before he knew it was there.
The car skidded for some distance and then went over several times. The weight of the car fell upon Gordon, crushing him to death. Mr. and Mrs. Cauley were thrown clear of the car, the former escaping with a mere scratch, while Mrs. Cauley was badly bruised. Smith was injured about the head and shoulder and was taken to the hospital. The Cauleys, a family of age, were unconscious for hours and probably suffered concussion of the brain.
Jack Gordon was a popular member of the volunteer fire department and had made Lewistown his home for five years. He is survived by a wife and babe.

SHERIFF OF GOLDEN VALLEY SUCCEUMBS TO GUN SHOT WOUND

Was Shot December 6 by Insane Homesteader Who Was Afterward Killed by Posse.

Billings, Dec. 18.—Jesse Garfield, sheriff of Golden Valley county, was shot December 6 by E. F. Lamson, a supposedly insane homesteader who was afterward burned to death in his cabin near Tuffey, died today at a hospital here.

Garfield, on the day of the shooting, had gone to the Lamson place to take Lamson into custody upon a complaint charging him with insanity. Lamson had refused to accompany him without a warrant and the sheriff had been compelled to return to the county seat to procure such a paper. As he was leaving his car on return to the Lamson place he was shot by Lamson, who discharged a shotgun from the door of his cabin. The charge took effect in Garfield's back, but despite the wound he managed to drive his car a number of miles to within six miles of Franklin where the gas gave out and he then walked two miles until a wagon was procured in which he was carried the remainder of the distance.

By telephone the undersheriff at Rye-gate was notified of the shooting and he took a posse to the Lamson place to make the arrest of Lamson who barricaded the place and stood off the posse for a number of hours until the cabin was finally set afire with the idea of smoking Lamson out. He remained in the building until it was reduced to cinders and it is believed he may have died from bullets previously sent into the building by members of the posse although when his body was recovered it was found in a position which indicated that he may have been overcome by the fire while still on the defensive.

MUST TEST METERS IN THE GAS SERVICE ONCE EACH 5 YEARS

State Commission Adopts Rules for Standardizing of Service of Gas Plants.

Helena, Dec. 18.—After investigations covering nearly six months the Montana public service commission has issued new regulations, effective December 15, prescribing standards for gas service, testing gas meters and regulating service of every concern in Montana furnishing gas to the public for heat, light or other purposes. These standards were taken from those adopted by the federal bureau of standards and changed only insofar as necessary for compliance with conditions in this state.

The new rules prescribe that utilities shall adopt a method whereby all consumers may learn to read gas meters, either by printing the method on the bill or by a special card with diagrams. The utilities must also supply laboratory meter testing equipment. All meters must be adjusted to within one per cent of being perfect before being installed, no meter may be installed at a point where climatic conditions may cause a change in operation. During each year after these rules are effective, until all meters in service are tested, each utility must remove and test 20 per cent, beginning with those installed for the longer period. Consumers may also have meters tested upon written request with their agreement to pay for the service of the meter has not been installed for six months.

Gas furnished by utilities to consumers within one mile of the plant must contain at least 475 British thermal units. Gas cannot contain more than a trace of hydrogen sulphide, sulphur and ammonia.

A WORD ABOUT SAXOPHONES Why You Should Select a "Martin" Saxophone

There are several very good reasons why the Martin Saxophones are winning for themselves the favorable comment of musicians everywhere and in making your selection of a saxophone you should not fail to take them into consideration.

In the first place, Martin Saxophones are built in their own factory by the most skilled saxophone building organization in America.

Second, Martin Saxophones are not punched out by machinery but are given all the care and attention of master workmen that a really high grade musical instrument demands. Machine processes and piece-work systems used elsewhere to speed up production and cut down cost of production have no place in the Martin factory. Every employee knows that they not only allow plenty of time to turn out perfect work, but that they demand that he take plenty of time to turn out perfect instruments.

Third, the rich and pleasing tone of the Martin Saxophones is easily accounted for. Built of the finest of yellow trumpet brass, heavier than that ordinarily used in saxophone building, and this brass HAMMERED BY HAND to a perfect even temper of just the right degree to permit proper resistance to the vibrations of the sound waves. Martin Saxophones are bound to have a tone quality that will double your enjoyment of your playing and practice.

Fourth, the key system of the Martin Saxophone, designed by the foremost authority on saxophone building in America, is most conveniently and handily arranged, each and every key being easily reached by the finger used to manipulate it. When you play a Martin Saxophone, you will never have to do any awkward and difficult finger stretching and reaching to play certain passages. Martin Saxophones are most certainly easy to learn and easy to play.

The Automatic Single Octave Key used on the Martin Saxophone is a great improvement over the double octave key and also over the complicated single octave key used on some other makes. In fact, the entire key system is designed with the object of eliminating every complicated mechanism and arranging a system that permits greatest facility of execution and at the same time is simple and easy to keep in adjustment.

The keys, springs and pads are made of the best materials procurable and are set and adjusted with painstaking care and attention. You will find no "wobbly" keys or other faults of careless adjustment on the Martin Saxophone.

Taking everything into consideration, the new model Martin Saxophone is in every way worthy of your selection. And since we are willing to send you an instrument for your examination and trial, your interest in the saxophone should prompt you to order one, so that you may have the opportunity to see for yourself what a real saxophone should be.

"Try a Martin Saxophone. You'll find it better than you thought a saxophone could be." Sold only by

The Open Secret of a Truly Pleasing Appearance Pretty Teeth

How often have you seen a person, seemingly, possessing every attribute of a truly pleasing appearance—a happy smile, winning ways—thoroughly captivating you, until they opened their mouth to smile, thus revealing decayed, unsound teeth, instantly destroying the favorable impression so far made.

If because of the high cost of dentistry in most offices, simply because of neglect or perhaps because of imperfect work in former years, you are thus handicapped, the first sensible step is to come to my office and have your teeth thoroughly examined. Then, when you learn just what is required to put your teeth in a sound, pleasing condition, and what the cost is going to be—make your decision.

Such an examination will cost you nothing, nor will it place you under obligation to have the work done here. My advice will be candid and truthful. But should I do the work, you will find it of the highest quality, and the price will be from one-half to one-third less than you would pay elsewhere.
