KETCHEL PINS THREE TO MAT

With Ninety Minutes to do Trick, Wrestler Has Time Margin

DORRIS LASTS LONGEST

Al Ketchel, the Bisbee aspirant for Arizona welter weight honors on the mat, did what he started out to do yesterday afternoon in his match with Chester Grow, Roy McAllister and Joe Dorris. He threw all three of them within ninety minutes.

Ketchel threw McAllister in 21 minutes and 20 seconds; Grow lasted 19 minutes and 30 seconds and Dorris in 24 minutes and 37 seconds. The Bisbee challenger took McAllister on first, the match beginning at 4:45. McAllister proved himself to be a wary and alert contender and surprised the audience by his showing. McAllister went down soon after time was called but was on his feet in a few seconds. Ketchel tried hard after McAllister's legs, but the latter was always elusive, throwing his shoulders well to the front. Ketchel floored his antagonist by a crotch hold, but Mc fell on his stomach and successfully wiggled out of a chancery and crotch hold. This hold was obtained a second time by Ketchel but it failed to work. Mc extracting himself cleverly from a dangerous position Ketchel tried for the toe hold several times but he was foiled every time. After failing to land his man with a double toe hold and by a toe hold, both wrestlers remained standing position. McAllister got out of a toe hold and half Nelson but Ketchel took advantage of an opening to get a full Nelson, with which he floored McAllister and placed his shoulders to the mat at 5:04 o'clock. Time 21:20.

"Demon" Goes Down
Chester Grow, the "Michigan Demon" was the next man to face Ketchel. The match with McAllister seemed to warm the local man up and the go with Grow was on the move all the time. Fifteen minutes had been called by the announcer before either man obtained a hold of any description. Grow tried many times to unbalance Ketchel but the latter was steady and almost impossible to throw out of position. Both men tried several times unsuccessfully for the knee hold from a standing position but neither was able to get it. Grow seemed careful and confident while Ketchel was always aggressive and persistent, his persistency all through the three matches amounting to a determined doggedness. Nineteen minutes and thirty seconds after they had faced each other, Grow grabbed Ketchel's head between his forearms and sought to throw the little man off balance. The latter rushed his antagonist and secured a crotch hold and after getting into close quarters secured a half Nelson, into which he seemed to throw every pound of strength, forcing the big man's shoulders down and his head under. Grow's legs were still in the air. Referee Gunn gave Ketchel the decision.

Grow advanced to the ropes and announced that he was not satisfied with the fall, claiming that both of his shoulders did not touch the mat and a number of fans supported his contention, but the decision of Referee Gunn was supported by Announcer Jim Murphy, who was the closest man to the wrestlers except the referee, who was directly over them. Grow says that he believes that he can throw Ketchel and will ask for another match.

Dorris a Hard Nut
Little Joe Dorris, the lightweight champion of Bisbee, was another surprise. Before the match it was thought that Dorris would be a short horse but he lasted longer than any of the other wrestlers. He took Ketchel 21 minutes and 37 seconds to put the lightweight's shoulders to the mat. Dorris is exceedingly agile and was able to extract himself from any number of positions from which a fall was imminent. He successfully flung out of a half Nelson, double body hold from the rear, crotch and half Nelson. Finally Ketchel reached out and got a knee hold from a standing position and closing in made a double-toe-hold, which he made a fall after working with the lightweight for several seconds. The time was 24:37.

COLTS' HOODOO NOT BROKEN

Down the Bankers in Hardest Fought Game of Season—Queens Defeat the Calumets

CLOSE AND LOOSE GAMES

Yesterday's baseball program at Warren Park was a mixture of good and bad ball. The game between the Colts and the Bankers was one of the best ever played on the Warren grounds. It was close through out and the final score stood 4 to 3 in the Colts' favor. The game between the Queens and the C. & A. was somewhat of a trial to the fans present, but in spots it was lighted up with brilliant play. The score stood 16 to 12 when the suffering ended.

An Off Day for Both.

It was an off day for both the C. & A. and the Queens. This game was played first. Things started bad and they did not much improve. Tracey, the new box effort of the Queens, proved a boomerang and he was quickly relieved. One-half of the first inning was all that was needed of Tracey, for try as he would he could not fathom the ball. In the brief little space of that half inning Tracey allowed two men to walk and was kind enough to give the opposing team two hits. The resultant disposition of Tracey caused a general switching around of the line-up of the Queens. Tracey was retired to center field. Snively taking the slab position and Hicks going to third, while Pearce went behind the plate for Snively.

Snively Saves the Day.

Snively, the old standby back of the bat, saved the day for the Queens when he was switched to the box. After he started to hunt the pellets the wind suddenly shifted and the C. & A. outfit were held down on the wild gallop with which they started. However, in the fourth inning things began to get bad again and to help matters along the broad path Pearce had to leave the plate position for short on account of a bruised finger.

A Brilliant Feature.

It was worth going to see this game for the brilliant playing of Pearce. Pearce got four hits out of four times up and stole five bases. What more can you ask of a man in a day?

The Colts and Bankers.

Those Colts yesterday failed to eat up the money-changers in the usual Col fashion. This may have been partly due to the Colts' loss of two players during the past short vacation, but for the most part it was due to the fact that the Bankers played ball. The hitting of the Bankers was a feature of the game. In the matter of errors they also had the best of the Colts. The answer to their defeat is that the Bankers were inferior to the Colts in the matter of team work. With the hitting they did they could have carried the game but for the superb generalship displayed by the Colts.

A Sensational Feat.

The grandstand would have tossed their pocketbooks at Callahan and sailed their sombreros into the arena if it had been a bullfight in Mexico. This is because Callahan pulled off a play when a deep fly came wallowing his way. Mickey reached up and pulled it off the atmosphere when there were three men on bases and two men down, and when a run would have changed the standing of the two teams in the league. It was in the fourth inning and when J. N. Chapman hit the ball it looked serious for the Colts. Williams, Brown and Gill were all on bases and Callahan chased them off.

George Gill shone out like a rocket when he made a one-handed catch in deep right and prevented Williams making a home run. Woods played a good game on first sack for the Colts and Kelley, Jr., placed nicely on third. Jack Chapman, the new second sacker for the Bankers, played a consistently good order of ball.

The C. & A. team has hardly had a fair test since its reorganization, as it is the first tryout of the new layout, and criticism directed at the combination is unwarranted. With a little more team work the C. & A. team can be expected to play with any of them in the league. The individual members hit the ball consistently yesterday.

Force of Light
Light has an actual mechanical pressure and can be measured in the laboratory. It has been found that the sun's light in itself presses against the earth with a force something like 70,000 tons. As the surface of a sphere varies as the square of the radius, and as the volume or mass varies as the cube of the radius, and as the mechanical pressure of light on the whole surface varies as that surface, and as the force of gravity varies as the mass, if a sphere is made smaller and smaller it is easily seen that the pressure of light does not decrease so fast as the force of gravity, so bodies beyond a certain minuteness could not reach the sun, but would be repelled by the mechanical force of its light.—Chicago Record-Herald.

GUNBOAT SMITH KNOCKS OUT WILLIS

SACRAMENTO, July 4.—Gunboat Smith of Oakland, before the Buffalo Athletic club, today knocked out Joe Willis in the tenth round of a scheduled 20-round contest. Smith had the better of the fight all the way and Willis was severely punished. The fight was held in an open arena at Menlo park, the home of the Sacramento league ball team, with the grandstand furnishing seats for the spectators.

JOE RIVERS IS SOME FIGHTER

Little Mexican of Los Angeles Knocks Joe Coster for Narrow Count Three Times

COSTER THROWS SPONGE

LOS ANGELES, July 4.—Joe Rivers, the little Mexican of this city, who has been defeating all comers in the featherweight division, attained national pugilistic prominence by giving Joe Coster of Brooklyn a terrific beating through twelve rounds of the scheduled twenty-round fight at Vernon today.

In the 12th round the New Yorker was down for the count of nine and when the thirteenth round was called Coster's seconds gave up the fight.

Completely Outclassed.

Coster was completely outclassed by the Mexican. Rivers knocked Coster through the ropes twice in the tenth round and only the latter's unbreakable grip around Rivers' waist saved a knockout. In the eleventh, after chasing Coster all around the ring, Rivers finally got him against the ropes and dropped him for the count of eight. In the 12th another right to the chin forced Coster for the count of nine, just before the going rang.

He was carried to his corner and when the bell rang for the thirteenth his seconds were still working over him and his manager admitted defeat.

HANDICAP DOUBLES NOT COMPLETED

The handicap doubles tournament among the Country club tennis players was not finished yesterday, but the first round and half of the second was played. The other match in the second round and the finals will be played during the next few days. The first round resulted as follows:

Poppen and Milton defeated White and Rhodes. Gohring and Hamilton defeated Campbell and Burns. Tenney and Lewis defeated Murray and Benner.

Von Salza and Scott defeated Notman and Roessler. In the one match of the second round played, Poppen and Milton defeated Gohring and Hamilton.

The tournament will be completed during the next few days. Prizes for the teams winning first and second places in the tournament have been donated by the Copper Queen store and Mr. Poppen of the Copper Queen hotel. They are two tennis rackets donated by the store for first place and a dozen tennis balls donated by Mr. Poppen for a second prize.

FIGHT TO A DRAW.

FT. SMITH, Ark., July 4.—Spider Moffatt, the Pacific coast featherweight champion, and Young Applegate of Oklahoma City fought 15 fast rounds to a draw here tonight.

Ticking a Hippo.

"Come here and I'll scratch your tongue, Caliph," a visitor to the Central park menagerie heard the keeper say to the young hippopotamus.

The visitor hadn't expected that the hippo understood English, but apparently he did. He came up to the edge of the tank, opened his jaws a yard or so and waited. The keeper put his hand into the open mouth and tickled the animal's tongue with the ends of his fingers.

"That's the way to make a hippo love you," said the keeper. "They like to be tickled, just as a cat likes to have you stroke its back. Caliph wouldn't close his mouth on my arm, and I know I am taking no risk. They are the most amiable big beasts in the world, and I would trust them more than I would an elephant."—New York Sun.

Force of Light.

Light has an actual mechanical pressure and can be measured in the laboratory. It has been found that the sun's light in itself presses against the earth with a force something like 70,000 tons. As the surface of a sphere varies as the square of the radius, and as the volume or mass varies as the cube of the radius, and as the mechanical pressure of light on the whole surface varies as that surface, and as the force of gravity varies as the mass, if a sphere is made smaller and smaller it is easily seen that the pressure of light does not decrease so fast as the force of gravity, so bodies beyond a certain minuteness could not reach the sun, but would be repelled by the mechanical force of its light.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Timing every blow to perfection; he whipped in rights and lefts with a speed and force that slowed the champion for the first time. He fought himself out of close quarters as Wolgast attempted to clinch and beat the champion to punch after punch in the exchanges. His effort was but a flash
