A LETTER FROM LOS ANGELES

By Anna A. Maley.

Comrades of Washington:
I had expected to find much socialist activity in Los Angeles but the times discount all expectations.

Twelve rooms in the Canadian building on Main street are devoted to socialist headquarters. A large banner spans the street bearing the legend, "Socialist Headquarters."

There are seven well organized departments—Speakers, Literature Supply, Literature Distribution, Publicity, Financial, Information and Conveyance. The efficiency of the campaign organization is the wonder of the town.

Something like twenty-four halls are daily in use for meetings. In the most popular of these meetings run from twelve to two-thirty and from six to nine-thirty.

Virtually tons of literature have been distributed. Three push carts in the street in front of headquarters are laden with the standard socialist publications. Vail's "Principles of Scientific Socialism," and Richardson's "Industrial Problems," have been the most popular sellers among the cheaper books, while Kirkpatrick's "War, What For?" has had a heavy sale among the higher priced books.

The sixteenth leaflet for distribution is now on the press. Each issue has been of from fifty to one hundred thousand, and the distribution is thoroughly organized by wards and precincts.

Ruth Sterry, who was discharged by the Tribune because of her socialism, has charge of the publicity department.

The information department is supposed to answer accurately all questions touching the marking of ballots and election day generally. A few questions they answer on suspicion, such as "Was Christ a socialist?" or "Is my hat on straight?" Each precinct will have information headquarters next week.

The newly enfranchised women of the working class have canvassed their precincts thoroughly with pencil and pad in hand and have "spotted their men." The lists which they compile are turned over to the conveyance committee, which will undertake to send a wheelbarrow, a dray or an automobile after laggard voters on election day.

These women have worked like beavers, taking a house at a time, just as they have been used to wiping a cup at a time. They have done a work which their laboring husbands did not have time to do.

Class struggle is the essence and the spirit of the Los Angeles campaign. The west side is capitalist, "Goo Goo," "Good Government" or "Old Guard," which has been corrupted into "Gold Guard." Here the women are too indolent to get out and do their own canvassing and distributing. They hire workers who give them hiring service. A boy came to Comrade Downing's house, where I am staying, with an awful armful of "goo goo" literature. George, the 14-year-old red of the family, espied the distributor, and ran out with all the zeal of a revolutionary boy, to order him off the premises.

"Huh! I'm no goo goo! I'm earning some money. I crow most of it away," and he threw a handful of the bills in a heap.

"Vote for your home and your job and against lawlessness and disorder," is the unspeakably impudent motto on some bills issued by the Otis anarchists. Also they are working the flag gag over-time, displaying a picture of the red flag and the American flag with the query, "Under which flag?" Answer December 5."

Catholic women are fighting the socialist question out with their priests in the poorer districts. "Christian socialism may be all right," said one father, "but Marxian socialism is abominable." "What have you against Karl Marx?" demanded a German frau of his congregation. "Well, for one thing Marx was a Jew," answered the priest. "And so was Jesus Christ," shot back the woman so promptly that the priest burst out in a laugh.

When I entered headquarters this morning there was a chorus of congratulations upon the Everett election. The comrades here are up to their eyes in business, but they have time to note socialist victories elsewhere and take heart therefrom.

Age brings wisdom, we are told, but unfortunately it doesn't always leave us much time to use it.

Self-possession in a young woman may be all very well for a while, but she shouldn't keep it up too long.

Never judge a brand of whisky by the company it keeps.

Woodrow Wilson says "the democrats are willing to give every one a voice." Certainly they have enough to go around.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

The chief trouble with the trust plans to dissolve seems to be that they don't dissolve anything but the savings of the public.—Philadelphia North American.

Judging by the press reports of existing conditions in China, the "Son of Heaven" is a long ways from home.—San Francisco Bulletin.

Our own modest surmise is that people are going over to the socialists as the only conservative and business cherishing party now on view.—New York Sun.

THE FIT SURVIVE.

In the American Magazine for November is given the following pleasing picture of a "Captain of Industry of the Old School." How do you like him? Capitalism creates an environment within which his kind survives.

"His family denied, but he did not, that in his youth he had been engaged in the illicit importation of slaves as well as in the interstate slave trade which was carried on under the protection of the law. Although born in the northern part of New York state, he owned a plantation in Virginia where negroes were bred for sale in the states farther south. He was bitterly opposed to the sentimentalism of the abolitionists and contributed heavily to the fund which was raised by Forney among the Wall street bankers and brokers for the election of Buchanan. He opposed the election of Lincoln and was one of the men mentioned by Forsyth in his letter to Jefferson Davis in which the Confederate commissioner wrote that he had been informed that 'two hundred of the most influential and wealthy citizens of New York had been approached and were then arranging the details of a plan to throw off the authority of the federal and state governments, to seize the navy yard at Brooklyn and to declare New York a free city.' Yet when the popular feeling broke down this conspiracy, he did not hesitate to avail himself of the commercial possibilities afforded by the contest, for he was equally active in financing union army contracts and Confederate blockade runners, trading in gold, building the Union Pacific railway, and in the other activities to which the adroit minds of those days addressed themselves. You may be sure that he had his full share in the fierce combats and sports of that and later periods. He measured his wits against Commodore Vanderbilt, schemed and fought with Jay Gould, caroused with Jim Fiske. He backed Heenan to beat Sayers, put on the gloves with Bill Poole, drove his team of fast trotters, bet furiously on all sporting events, fought cocks and dogs, shot pigeons, and had a rat pit in his stable where he entertained his friends on Sunday afternoons."

PREJUDICE.

I was climbing up the mountain path
With many things to do,
Important business of my own
And other people, too,
When I ran against a Prejudice
That quite cut off the view.

My work was such as could not wait,
My path quite clearly showed;
My strength and time were limited,
I carried quite a load;
And there that hulking Prejudice
Sat all along the road.

So I spoke to him politely,
For he was huge and high,
And begged that he would move a bit,
And let me travel by—
He smiled, but as for moving—
He didn't even try.

And then I reasoned quietly
With that colossal mule;
The time is short, no other path,
The mountain winds were cool—
I argued like a Solomon,
He sat there like a fool.

And then I begged him on my knees—
I might be kneeling still
If so I hoped to move that mass
Of obdurate ill will.
As well invite the monument
To vacate Bunker Hill!

So I sat before him helpless
In an ecstasy of woe—
The mountain mists were rising fast,
The sun was sinking low—
When a sudden inspiration came,
As sudden winds do blow.

I took my hat, I took my stick,
My load I settled fair,
I approached that awful incubus
With an absent-minded air—
And I walked directly through him
As if he wasn't there.

Spokane, Wn., Nov. 28.—Comrade Henry T. Jones of Milwaukee lectured Sunday evening at Oliver hall to an audience that packed the house. The speaker held his audience for nearly two hours and a half in an eloquent explanation and denunciation of capitalism and a plea for socialism. So interested were the crowd that more than a hundred of them stood for more than two hours and a half to hear the lecture. Every one was pleased with the lecture which may be described as a socialist revival meeting. Comrade Jones bears a message from Milwaukee that will be welcomed everywhere.
