POINTED OUT VICTIM.

Hunchakist Had Marked Tavshanjian For Death.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—With the confession of Kissak Jellalian that he was an agent of Alexan Arzoolan, head of the Hunchakist society, and the further admission that he was an accomplice in the murder of Tavshanjian, the Armenian rug merchant, District Attorney Jerome believed the complete solution of the Hunchakist conspiracy was now only a matter of a short time.

Acting on information furnished by Jellalian, the police raided a cellar at 317 East Forty-third street, where they seized a number of daggers, revolvers and other articles useful in the business of murder. These, Jellalian told them, were the property and stock in trade of the Hunchakists.

Jellalian, who was arrested Sunday night, was examined by District Attorney Jerome after he had been charged with complicity in the Hunchakist conspiracy and held in $5,000 bail. He weakened immediately and told the district attorney of having gone to Union square with Bedros Hampartoumian and pointing out Tavshanjian as the man who was marked for death by the Hunchakist society and Arzoolan, its head. He said Arzoolan had given explicit instructions as to how the murder was to be done.

GOULD KILLED HER.

Marseilles Trunk Mystery Unveiled by Police.

MARSEILLES, Aug. 14.—Vere St. Leger Gould has confessed that he was the murderer of Emma Levin, a wealthy Swedish woman, whose dismembered body was found in the trunk of Mr. Gould and his wife upon their arrival here Aug. 6 from Monte Carlo.

This "trunk mystery" created much excitement, especially as it was soon learned that the Goulds, who are English, were of good family. Their explanations of how the corpse came to be in their baggage were in no sense convincing, and the confession of Gould does not come as a surprise.

He made his confession to the examining magistrate and related coolly all the details of the horrible crime. He alone had slain the woman, he declared, and it was he who cut up her body, although his wife had helped him pack it away in their baggage.

A late dispatch says that Vere St. Leger Gould has hanged himself in prison.

Troops in Russian Guard Camp.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 14.—The annual army maneuvers opened at Kransoe-Selo with a grand parade, which was witnessed by Emperor Nicholas and the foreign military attaches. A man attached to the engineer corps and two women were caught in the camp of the cuirassiers in the act of distributing proclamations calling upon the army to overthrow the reigning dynasty. The police believe these persons were emissaries of the Military league and trying to bring about a demonstration similar to that which occurred July 20, when the Semenovskiy regiment refused to go on parade.

Body Found With Four Wounds.

PORT WASHINGTON, N. Y., Aug. 14.—The body of an unknown man about fifty years old, when the authorities believe to have been murdered, was found in the bay off this place. There were bullet wounds in the chin, head, neck and wrist. The body had been in the water two weeks. On it was a watch inscribed with the name of M. Singers of New York, a card with the name of Peter J. Doyle, a hotel proprietor of Stamford, Conn., and a notebook with the name of Joseph Winters of Stamford.

HIS FATHER IS ALIVE

Frank Rockefeller Now Preparing a "Real History."

REPORTED TO HAVE HORRIBLE TALE

Brother Declares the United States Will Be Too Warm For Its Richest Citizens When All Facts Are Known.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—The World asserts that John D. Rockefeller's father is alive. It states that for eighteen months it has hunted the country for him in vain and concludes he is in hiding. When the article by Miss Ida Tarbell on John D.'s father appeared in McClure's Magazine a year and a half ago, Frank Rockefeller, according to the World, told a World reporter that the story was an outrageous libel and that he wanted the papers "to leave his father alone."

Mr. Rockefeller was assured that if he would consent to reveal the whereabouts of his father the story should be published in his own words.

"If I consent to give the facts to the World for publication when the right time comes, will the World agree to publish nothing until that time?" he asked.

The promise was given with an added provision that when the time should come to publish the facts the proof sheets of the article should be submitted to Mr. Rockefeller for final approval.

These terms and conditions were reported to the World office that night and were at once ratified in a letter to Mr. Rockefeller.

Now, the World alleges, Frank Rockefeller has broken the contract by denying the existence of it and by threatening if his interview was published to "brand it as a lie." Accordingly the World considers itself absolved from its promise to Mr. Rockefeller and publishes an interview obtained from him in Cleveland. It claims, eighteen months ago. The interview follows:

"My father is alive and well," said Mr. Rockefeller. "He is dependent upon no man. He would scorn the proffer of financial aid from John D. and would not take it from me. He has means of his own, ample for all his needs. But there is a reason why I cannot at this time tell you where he is. In a few weeks or months I will be ready to tell a story that will amaze and horrify the whole world."

"No one yet knows that I am writing the story, the real history of John D.'s life. I finished it secretly here in my office several months ago, but there were imperfections in the work and I am doing it all over again. Rest assured that it will be right this time. When I make John D.'s true life history public and explain the facts about father, this country will be too warm for its richest citizens."

"Go ask John D. where our father is; tell him that I sent you and that I dare him to answer. But the time will soon come when I can safely speak. Then it will not be safe for John D. to appear upon the streets of any American city. He would be stoned by the people. Nothing but flight from the country to some foreign land will save his life when the whole monstrous truth is known. Strange talk for a brother, isn't it?" asked Frank Rockefeller, laughing. "Terrible talk from one brother about another, but what I say is literally true. John D. is not a human being. He is a monster; merciless in his greed, pitiless in his cold, inhuman passions."

"Behind his mask of piety and kindness he laughs at all humanity. He is literally a madman who believes that he is a god who cannot sin." Mrs. Harold F. McCormick, daughter of John D. Rockefeller, in an interview here defended her father against the criticism of Frank Rockefeller, who charged that the president of the Standard Oil company had maliciously wrecked his business career.

"Jealousy," said Mrs. McCormick, "brought about by my uncle's signal lack of business ability, is the cause of the vituperation he has heaped upon my father."

"My father holds no malice against him. It may not be consistent with the usual picture drawn of my father, but he holds malice against no man."

"My uncle's failure to profit by the fortune of my father and his repeated failures in business have been wormwood and gall to him. The bitterness has grown from year to year. It has taken for its objective point the brother who has prospered."

Mrs. McCormick declares it is true that her grandfather is alive.

straight for the Seneca. The Herd-shoff boat, built for the Rochester Yacht club to defend Canada's cup against the Adele of the Royal Canadian Yacht club, won the third and decisive race of the series, crossing the finish line at 2:31:50, official time, and more than a mile ahead of the challenger.

The result was not a surprise to yachtsmen who watched the two previous races, for the Seneca had proved herself faster in practically all kinds of weather. On Saturday over a triangular course, with a breeze never stronger than eight or nine miles and at times in a dead calm, the Yankee defender won the first race, standing up stronger and footing faster.

Breaks Leg With Golf Ball.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 14.—With such force did Representative Irving P. Wanger of Norristown drive a golf ball that William H. Dixon of 2025 Ontario street, his partner in the game, is in the hospital suffering from a fractured leg. The accident occurred on the grounds of the Bala Golf club.

Candidates Want Two Cent Rate.

TORONTO, Aug. 14.—Notice of appeal having been given by the Grand Trunk railway against the order of the railway commission for a two cent passenger rate between Montreal and Toronto, the new schedule cannot go into force until the appeal is decided by the supreme court of Canada. The decision affects all Canadian roads.
