CHURCH HILL

Sunday was a high day at the Fourth Baptist Church. Although the rain was threatening the congregation did not allow it to keep them from the church. Our pastor was at his best, and to many of us he preached as never before. He discussed the subject, "Jesus Our Sin-Bearer." When Dr. Williams took his seat it was not many dry eyes in the church, and it was a consensus of opinion that it was the greatest sermon ever heard on that subject.

We were pleased to see in our congregation many friends from the western part of the city. We hope our friends will come again. You will always find the Fourth Baptist Church a Church of welcome.

At night there was not much change in the weather from in the morning but our pastor had promised to preach a special sermon, therefore the congregation at night almost equalled that of the morning service.

This Sunday, the pastor's subject at 11:30 will be, "The Right State of the Heart." 8 P. M., "The Bride, the Lamb's Wife."

If you want a comfortable seat in the main auditorium come early and avoid going in the gallery.

We are pleased to say that every department of our church is taking on new life.

Rev. G. C. Coleman, D. D. and wife arrived in the city from Shreveport, La. after spending a week as guest of Henry Allen Boyd at Nashville, Va. also a week in Danville as guest of Mrs. West and Mrs. Gregory and a week here with Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Johnson, 516 Harrison St. They visited Hampton, Va. and will return home by New York and Philadelphia.

Manchuria Modernized by Japanese Surprises Tourist

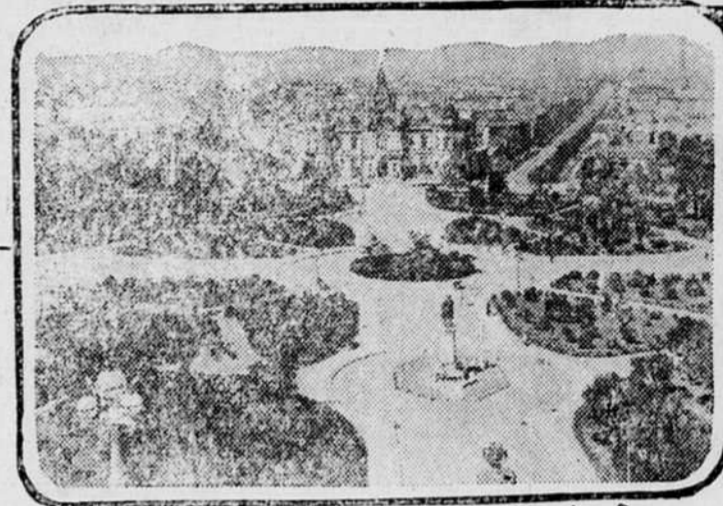

AS IT ONCE WAS.

NEW YORK—American globe trotters are beating a broader path into the Orient than ever before, according to reports reaching here from travel agencies in the Far East.

Ancient Manchuria, gateway to Peking and the heart of China, is one of the favorite highways of this influx. Here a surprise awaits those who seek their pleasures afar. Seeking the primitive, they stumble headlong into the modern—a modern so startling they might safely imagine themselves on a jaunt through the United States mid-west.

Leaving the ship that carried them across the Yellow Sea, they alight on a pier 8,000,000 wharf in Dairen, a busy commercial city of 250,000 people with wide, well-paved streets, and cars, a de luxe diner, and observation car. As the travelers are whisked along over a crushed stone road bed western world. The night is spent in a hotel that has every convenience of its American counterpart.

A second surprise comes as the tourists start over the South Manchuria railway toward Mukden, junction point in this trip to Peking. In everything but the item of geography, it is an American train on which they travel, with comfortable Pullman cars, a de luxe diner, and observation car. As the travelers are whisked along over a crushed stone road bed they look out on fertile farms, where the soil is being tilled by American tractors.

They are 200 miles away, at Mukden, city of 400,000, before they find the real blending of the East and West. Near this new city, as modern as Dairen, is a second city of the ancient Manchu civilization, a city set off by a thirty-five foot wall, framing a picture of pagodas, magnificent tombs and temples of an almost forgotten day.
