Associated Press Dispatches.

MADRID, May 13.—Advices from Lisbon state that a severe censorship has been placed over telegrams from or into the city. Even news telegrams destined for the official journal have been stopped. The well-known political economist, Coello, has written a letter in which he says Portugal has a colossal deficit, ruinous loans, contracted upon humiliating terms, and is confronted by a monetary, industrial and political crisis of the most threatening kind.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—In an interview today, a member of the Portuguese legation in this city, declared that present crisis in Portugal was of a purely financial nature, that political sentiment had nothing to do with it; that the Republicans in Portugal are losing ground, owing to the "disastrous" effect of the establishment of a republic in Brazil, and had not a single man capable of directing a revolution.

LISSBON, May 13, 2 p. m.—The financial situation is easier. The country is perfectly tranquil.

It is expected that Mr. Gladstone will go to Hawarden on Saturday. He is progressing favorably.

tion, was regarded by President Lappen as very important. "Our association," he said, "has always been in favor of a strict apprenticeship system. It appears that the brotherhood agrees with us on this subject."

CALIFORNIA FRUITS.

The Market for Canned Goods in New York Dull at Present.

NEW YORK, May 13.—The Commercial Bulletin says: From all accounts the local representatives of California packers have not met with a wholly satisfactory experience in securing orders for canned fruits of the coming season's pack. The prices thus far named, being generally the same as those that ruled at the beginning of last season when California packers enjoyed exceptional advantages from the failure of eastern fruit crops, are considered too high by the trade in this section, and that impression, along with the general tendency toward an extreme conservative policy in all departments, acts a barrier to business in the future, for the time being at least. We hear of prices made with a guarantee of protection to buyers in the event of prices declining, but even that condition does not appear to be any inducement. Standard California fruits are likely to be more affected than extras by the extent of eastern packing, but present indications are that buyers are equally indifferent about venturing to commit themselves on either variety.

CLOSED BY THE SHERIFF.

A Big Clothing Firm in Trouble—One of the Partners Insane.

NEW YORK, May 13.—Levy Bros. & Co., wholesale clothing manufacturers, were closed up by the sheriff yesterday, under eight writs of attachment aggregating $150,000. August H. Levy, one of the partners in the firm, is pronounced hopelessly insane as the result. Today five additional judgments, aggregating $30,000, were filed against the firm. The affidavits upon which the writs of attachment were granted, declared that the firm had, within the last two years, made an unlawful conversion of its funds to the amount of over $100,000, and that such payments were made with intent to defraud creditors. The affidavits also set forth that an investigation of the condition of the firm, made within the last three days, showed an apparent deficit, within less than six months, of over $650,000. It is estimated that the liabilities will be at least $750,000, and may be a million or more. It is said the assets will not reach half a million.

HE SWEARS INNOCENCE.

FLEMING DENIES ANNIE PETERSON'S STORY IN FULL.

He Testifies in His Own Behalf—His Version of the Incidents of That Eventful Night—The Case on Again Today.

The trial of Samuel J. Fleming for attempted rape was resumed before Judge Smith and a jury yesterday morning, the prosecuting witness, Miss Annie Peterson, being still on the stand in cross examination.

No points of fresh importance were brought out, however, the witness keeping well to her original statement and not finching in the least under the most persistent cross-questioning, and emphatically denying that she had received or been offered any money to induce her to prosecute this case against Mr. Fleming.

Mrs. Lydia Ellen Young was called and testified that the defendant had called upon her a few days after the assault is alleged to have been committed, and had then requested her to use her influence to have proceedings in the prosecution of the charge against him postponed, at least until after the settlement of his difficulty with the Chautauqua Association. Yes, the witness was related to the defendant, being his aunt by reason of his marriage to her niece.

Dr. James H. Scholtz was sworn and testified that he had been called upon to treat the complaining witness and had examined into her physical condition. It was then about ten days after the alleged assault. The witness had found the woman's lungs sore and she complaining of lameness in the chest and shoulders. The greater part of the physician's testimony was subsequently stricken out. The people rested.

Attorney Carran, for the defense, then asked that the jury be removed from the court room during the argument on a motion he was about to make. The jury retired and Mr. Carran then moved that the court advise the jury to return a verdict of acquittal for the defendant, and numerous authorities were cited in support of the motion, and it was finally submitted without argument.

Judge Smith occupied some ten minutes or more in rendering his opinion, and denied the motion, an exception to the ruling being noted for the defense.

The defendant and his counsel then withdrew for a short consultation into the judge's private chambers, and upon their return an attempt was made to place in evidence the reporter's transcript of the prosecuting witness's testimony before the examining magistrate. This was objected to by the district attorney, but after a short but spirited argument it was admitted.

James Neilsen was then called as the first witness for the defense. He had questioned the complaining witness concerning her troubles with Fleming. It was some days after the time of the supposed assault, and witness's inquiries were prompted by the story as told by Miss Peterson to his wife, and later by her to witness. He had then given her some advice, but had not told her to have Fleming arrested.

The witness was closely questioned and examined in regard to a certain conversation which the defense wished to prove as having taken place in the law office of Mr. Pendleton. The witness, however, denied all knowledge or recollection concerning the conversation in question, and Attorney Pendleton took the stand to relate what was said at that time. Upon an objection by the prosecution, however, sustained by the court, Mr. Pendleton was barred from testifying in the matter.

The defendant, Samuel J. Fleming, then took the stand and testified in his own behalf. The majority part of his direct examination consisted of a relation by him of his early history and of his various occupations in this city, when he was first a retail and later a preacher, then manager of the Chautauqua, and now finally the defendant in this case.

"No," said the witness, "I know nothing about the circumstances in regard to which the prosecuting witness has testified, nor of the crime with which I am charged. On the night mentioned in the complaint, I came home late and found the girl, Annie Peterson, in my room instead of her own room, and she said it was because the baby was sick and she wanted me to see it. I examined the child but could find nothing the matter with it. No, I did not give her any medicine for the child that night, but I think my wife did the next day. Annie asked me if I wanted my lemonade, and I said yes, and she got it for me. I always had lemonade before going to bed.

"No, I did not kiss her, nor try to kiss her. I did not take her on my lap, either; that part of the story is all a lie. After she got the lemonade she told me that she would sit up with the baby, and that I had better go to bed in another room, as I was tired. She fixed me a bed and I went to bed. I did not see her again until the next morning. That is all I know about the case. I swear it."

On cross-examination Fleming stated that he had been and still was manager of the Chautauqua circles of this district, but denied that any criminal charge, such as defalcation of funds, had been brought against him by the society. He had also been the organizer of the star lecture bureau, having charge of its affairs in Los Angeles. A question as to whether the "star" was the same concern that had victimized so many people who bought tickets to lectures and concerts which never took place, was objected to and ruled out by the court.

When questioned as to the relations of the prosecuting witness, Annie Peterson, in his family, he said that he had always found Annie to be a faithful servant, though somewhat spiteful at times. She had given notice that she was to leave on the 30th, but on the Monday after the night the baby was sick she said she wanted to leave at once. Fleming was still on the stand when court adjourned until 10 a. m. today.

VALUABLE SCALPS.

COYOTE SKINS BEING SHIPPED TO THE COUNTY CLERK.

A Pomona Man Who has Five Hundred and Sixty Million—A Dozen or so Being Received Every Day.

By a recent act of the legislature, a bounty of $5 per head is paid on all coyote scalps taken and delivered to the proper officials. Of late it would appear that every hunter or rancher in the county that could get hold of any thing resembling the wig of one of these California pests, has been sending it in to the county clerk's office, through the medium of the various township officers and justices of the peace.

The odor of the partially cured scalps is of course far from pleasant, and yet the deputies at the clerk's office seem disposed to make the best of the arduous, albeit disagreeable duties. The following facetious correspondence between Deputy Knapp, clerk of the board of supervisors, and Justice W. D. Morton, of Pomona, explains itself, and those who have "been there" can perhaps sympathize with the "skin inspector" about to be appointed:

POMONA, Cal., May 12, 1891. T. H. Ward, County Clerk, Los Angeles.

DEAR SIR:—I have the honor to send you some skins, that is to say some coyote scalps.

I have been trying to make these people part while, but this Mexican wanted to do it—that is, send them right now. So I send them. There are 560,000,000 skins awaiting here to be counted. A skin inspector ought to have been provided for by the legislature. When will the board of supervisors count skins? I would like to know. Yours patiently, W. D. MORTON.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 13, 1891. W. D. Morton, Esq., Justice of the Peace, Pomona, Cal.

DEAR SIR:—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your facetious communication relative to skins. The legislature in its wisdom having enacted a law for the payment of a bounty for coyote scalps (a copy of which is herewith enclosed), it is incumbent upon the clerk of the board of supervisors to receive the same, carefully preserve, and burn them at the proper time. This pleasant duty will be performed with all the ability, agility, accuracy and cheerfulness that can be applied thereto. But if you, in the proper and legal exercise of your powers as magistrate of the township of San Jose, could induce the possessor of said 560,000,000 skins to ship them in, in carload lots of say 1,000,000 skins each, it would greatly facilitate the labor of compiling the record, as well as in the drayage, storage, handling, etc.

Due notice will be given of the date of cremation.

Relative to the appointment of a skin inspector, I would humbly suggest its reference to our representative in the upper house of the state legislature, the Hon. J. E. McComas. Respectfully yours, T. H. WARD, Clerk.

By HENRY S. KNAPP, Deputy.

From ten to twelve coyote scalps are received daily at the clerk's office, and the thing has just commenced. Coyote ranches will doubtless soon be established which will rival in profit orchards or vineyards.

A Fellow Who Prowls About in Back Yards.

Residents in the neighborhood of Fifth and Main streets have been annoyed every night since Friday, last, by some man who prowls about the back yards and sheds of the houses of that neighborhood, waking up the dogs and disturbing the sleeping women and children. On Tuesday night the policeman on that beat kept on the lookout for the man, but failed to catch him. It is supposed that the disturber is some sneak thief or "poultry fancier," as several large hennerys are located thereabouts. The neighbors who don't keep chickens don't know whether to wish good luck to the chicken thief or to the early-rising roosters.

A SPIRIT HOME.

STORY OF A PROJECTED HAUNTED HOUSE.

Mrs. Newman's Strange Life Work—The Peculiar Loss of Her Property Near San Bernardino.

One of the most interesting cases ever tried in California was submitted to Judge Campbell, of San Bernardino, a few days ago. It is a suit instituted by Mrs. E. P. Thornydey Newman against O. A. Smith and the South Riverside Land and Water company. Mrs. Newman wants to recover a beautiful and valuable tract of land near San Bernardino, which, in 1886, she transferred to Smith under very peculiar conditions. She was represented in court by Mrs. Clara S. Foltz and Byron Waters, who confidently expect their client to win her suit.

Mrs. Newman is a devout and earnest believer in spiritualism, holding, as a matter of course, that the dead communicate with the living. She considered it her life work to fit up a home where congenial people of like faith could congregate and be made welcome, and where free discussion of their religious views might take place. To that end she dedicated her land. "The beauty of the surrounding scenery, the abundant supply of water, the medicinal properties of flowing springs upon the land, the excellence of the climate and the removal of the place from the noise and turmoil of business, all rendered it admirably suited for such a home."

Mrs. Newman has not enough money to build the house, however, and looked around for some one agreeing with her peculiar views to help her. She met Smith, an agent of the South Riverside Land and Water company, though he kept that fact in the background. He protested the greatest interest and cooperation in the spirit scheme, and promised to build the home. He first demanded a deed of the land. It was given willingly and immediately transferred to the corporation. Smith's spiritualistic disguise was thrown off, and Mrs. Newman was left to mourn the loss of her land.

Substantially that is her story. Smith maintains that the transfer was made by Mrs. Newman with full knowledge of the facts. Witnesses were examined on both sides, and the case is now in the hands of the judge.
