NEWS NOTES.

Andres Villa was arrested yesterday afternoon by Officer Sanchez for cruelty to a child.

The last issue of the Weekly Citizen announces the retirement from the editorial management of that paper of Frank J. Dyer. Mrs. Emma S. Marshall's salutatory as the new editor appears in the same issue.

The Historical society of Southern California will meet tonight in Judge Austin's courtroom. Among the papers to be read is one by Dr. Wm. F. Edgar on the history of Cantonment Loring, a military post of '46 in Utah.

Following is the score made at Company C's butts yesterday, near the Wolfskill depot: Lieut. Meyer, 41; Sergt. Lindsey, 39; Private Blackman, 19; Private Casey, 36; Private Messacar, 7; Private Moore, 28; Private Sale, 43; Private Schurz, 21; Private Stephenson, 42; Private Washburn, 32.

Several friends of Miss Sepulveda called at the HERALD office yesterday and vigorously protested that they had stood ready with money in their hands to register several hundred more votes on the chair for Miss Sepulveda, but were barred out by the friends of Miss Santa Cruz, who had captured the blackboard and held the ballot box. Considerable fancy work remains to be disposed of.

The May festival held last week at Armory hall for the benefit of the old Plaza church was a financial success. The promoters have decided to continue several nights longer at the old Plaza church. A programme will be given this evening, and all the young ladies who contributed to the success of the different booths will be on hand to receive their friends. The prize for the most popular young lady was carried off by Miss Defina Santa Cruz.

The drivers of the street sprinkling wagons are contemplating a strike. There are forty-five of them altogether, and they met yesterday afternoon and forty-three of them agreed that they would not work any longer unless they could get pay at the rate of $20 a month. They now only get $18 a month for ten hours a day's work, working every day. The company which employs them and which has charge of the street sprinkling gets from the city $2.70 a day for each wagon used.

WOMAN'S ADVANCEMENT.

The National Council Makes Various Demands for the Sex.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 31.—At a meeting of the executive board of the Woman's National Council, a telegram was sent to the Presbyterian general assembly at Detroit, asking that Presbyterian women be allowed voice in the ratification of rejection of the creed. Committees were appointed to ask that women be admitted to the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, to ask the next triennial of Sunday school workers of the United States and Canada that they be placed upon the committee of Sunday-school lessons; that they be placed on the National Reform Divorce league of Boston, and to press upon the attention of the next and each succeeding congress of the United States, a bill providing that all government employees be paid equal wages for equal work.

A resolution was passed inviting an international council of women to meet in Chicago during the Columbian exposition in '93. The national council will assume the entertainment of all accredited foreign delegates. No American delegates will be received into the international council except from organizations that have come into the international council of the United States.

A committee was appointed to prepare a symposium on dress, to be published under the auspices of the national council in one of the popular magazines during the coming year, and shall report to the conference executive board of the council in May, 1892, its idea of a business dress.

The president was authorized to form a committee to collect funds and secure plans for the erection of a woman's temple at Glen Echo.

Belle Bilton Unable to Play.
LONDON, May 31.—Belle Bilton, who is advertised to appear at Portsmouth tomorrow at Venus, has sent a telegram stating that owing to the death of the Earl of Clancarty, she will be unable to fulfill her engagement. The advance booking of seats for the whole week is enormous.

Sometimes there is money in dancing. Carmencita is reported to have laid up $50,000 as the result of her artistic performances in this country. She is the one fortunate person who dances but does not have to pay the piper.

Ex-Senator Blair seems to be a misfit so far as tried, and as he were "lugs superfluous on the stage." This view of him leads an exchange to say: "If Ex-Senator Blair will study theology and learn to preach he may become in time the minister to some nice little congregation in the country."

The majority of people are perfectly willing to concede that "the World's fair will be a great educator," and the Chicago people should not dwell on that point any longer. There is no necessity for a constant repetition of the fact.

George Meredith says: "Success is costly. We find we have pledged the better part of ourselves to clutch it; not to be redeemed with the whole handful of our prize."

The Ram's Horn says: The man who sells goods with a thirty-five-inch yardstick would steal the jeweled foundation stones of heaven, if he could get at them.

It is said Princess Alix, of Hesse-Darmstadt, is the most beautiful unmarried royal girl in all Europe.

AMONG THE CHURCHES.

TOPICS OF THE CITY PASTORS' SERMONS YESTERDAY.

A General Prevalence of Good Sermons and Large Audiences—Features of the Day.

At the First Presbyterian church yesterday, Rev. J. L. Russell preached in the morning from the text, The Simplicity that is in Christ, (II Corinthians, xi:20.) He dwelt on the three-fold simplicity; first, of love to Christ; second, of faith in the word, and third, of daily living. In the evening Rev. H. A. Newell, of the Bethany Presbyterian church, preached on the Valley of Dry Bones, (Ezekiel xxxviii:10.) The valley, he said, represented a godless world. The life of the soul is the spirit of God, and a godless world is a dead world. The story illustrated how life could come to a dead soul. When Ezekiel was told to prophesy to the dead, he was commanded to preach to the godless. We must also pay for the divine agencies of life, and eagerly apply all means at our disposal to arouse the dead, with steadfast faith, hope and courage. The sermon was a fine one, and listened to appreciatively by Dr. Russell's usual large Sunday evening congregation.

Some of the finest choir music in the city is given at St. Paul's Episcopal church by the choir under Mr. Preston Ware Orem. The little choristers show particularly good training, as well as much natural talent. The choir is composed as follows:

Treble—Clarke Bonyne, Frank Bugbee, Cory Dunkelberger, Benjamin Ferns, Joshua Johnson, George Knox, Orlando Moore, A. R. Pearson, Russell Taylor, Charles White, Hector Zahn.

Altos—Fred Wilson, Marvin McKenzie, Clarence Miller.

Tenors—W. A. Burr, J. S. Williams, A. C. Dezenford, Oscar Zahn.

Bassos—Hugh Williamson, George Perkins, Jr., T. M. Wigmore, A. M. Hawthorne and C. R. Sumner.

At the First Baptist church the morning sermon was by W. F. Binney, who is to be ordained to the ministry next Tuesday. He preached on Christ Likened to a Stone. The tendency of his discourse being to show that while the Jews and many since their time have stumbled over the divinity of Christ, his power will eventually crush out all opposition.

Dr. Pendleton spoke before the Y. M. C. A. meeting yesterday afternoon. His address is said to have been one of the best ever delivered before that organization. Next Sunday the speaker is Mr. Jos. W. Cochran, Jr. The instrumental music at these meetings is under the charge of Alex. M. Tutill, and the singing is led by Prof. F. A. Bacon.

More than the usual attendance greeted Dr. Thompson at the last sermon he was to preach in the Church of the Unity yesterday morning. His subject was the Eternal Home in Heaven, and he spoke in tender but enthusiastic terms of the abode of all that is fairest, where God reigns and the atmosphere is love.

Dr. Chichester's subject at the Emmanuel Presbyterian church last evening was Forgiveness, one of the series on the Lord's prayer. He had his usual large congregation, and handled his subject in the masterly manner to which his congregation is accustomed.

The Trinity Methodist church (south) was favored with exceptionally large congregations yesterday. The pastor, Rev. J. B. Strady, preached an excellent sermon in the morning from Hebrews xiv:13. In the evening a praise service was held.

An interesting talk yesterday was that given by Rev. Cochran, in the Park Congregational church, on Temple street. His long residence in Japan and his enthusiasm as a missionary, lent remarkable interest to his stories and remarks.

Dr. C. B. Carlisle occupied Dr. Hutchins' pulpit at the First Congregational church last night. The congregation was not so large as usual, owing to the near proximity of the smoking ruins of the burned buildings.

The members of the Christian Endeavor societies of the city are all urged to be present at the union meeting or quarterly conference on Wednesday evening at the First Presbyterian church.

The roll call service at the Central Baptist church yesterday morning was one of interest to all present.

THAT CARNIVAL.

Some Points as to How it Was Managed.

An Interview With the Ladies' Annex President.

The Exposition Building People Controlled Everything.

They Took in the Tickets, Kept Back Two Days Receipts and Ran Things to Suit Themselves.

Ever since the summary of expenditures and receipts of the orange carnival was published in the HERALD the general public has been wondering what could have become of the enormous amount of money expended. There has been no charge of crookedness against the managers, but a pretty general suspicion that there was mismanagement on the part of some party or parties, to the public unknown, and that a big lump of money had disappeared somewhere where it should not have gone. Gradually rumors began to circulate of bills paid for preposterous amounts, and as new arrivals from Chicago appeared people heard now of a man who was paid $9 per night for lighting the gas, then of an electric light bill of $500, next of a bill for the removal and return of a lot of booths in the south wing of the exposition building at an expense of $405, and finally it began to be generally stated that the exposition building people had handled both money and tickets and had practically merely turned over what they pleased to the orange carnival, and had retained all the receipts until the preposterous bills aforesaid were paid. The first positive information as to these details was obtained last evening from Mrs. D. R. Wilder, the president of the Ladies' Annex, who accompanied the exhibit of that organization to the carnival and returned on Friday.

The HERALD reporter who called upon Mrs. Wilder was kindly received and all questions asked were very readily answered.

Mrs. Wilder said that she had enjoyed her visit to friends in Chicago, but did not enjoy the trip as a whole, and thought she could get along very comfortably without visiting the world's fair. The orange carnival she considered a success in so far as advertising Southern California was concerned. The visitors to the carnival were intensely interested in the exhibit and asked a great many intelligent questions; some of them were repeated so many times that the attendants became weary of answering them.

There was a great deal of trouble about getting the exhibition hall prepared for the carnival. The exposition people would permit none but their own men to work about the building, and these men were slow and inefficient, yet no one dared to object to anything these employees did, because they all belonged to a union, and any objection might lead to a strike, which would cause still further delays. The man who lit the gas was the only man the exposition people would allow to do the work. No one knew how much he was to be paid until the last, when his bill came in for $9 a night. Mr. Hanchette and the others objected, but it was said that he always received that, so it had to be paid.

"The booths that were moved belonged to private parties, who gave their permission for their removal, if they were put back again in position. The exposition men charged $225 for moving them away, and $180 for putting them back. I don't remember how much the electric light bill was, but it was enormous, and I remember that Mr. Hanchette went up to headquarters, and the secretary up there threw off $220.

"The tickets were taken up and sold by two exposition employees, and every morning the ticket box would be opened in the presence of Mr. Wells and Mr. Hanchette, and the tickets counted. Mr. Wells said that it was impossible for any cheating to be done at the door, as he carried the key to the ticket box himself, and no one else could open it. The ticket collector was only watched the first few nights.

"The exposition building folks held back the receipts of the last two days until the bills like these were paid. They got all the money they could out of the carnival folks. I think that money could be traced another time, but I don't think it has been wasted at all this time, for the effects of the advertising will be felt a long time; but I don't care to have anything to do with another carnival very soon. I don't think I could stand it."

Mr. Frank Wiggins in an interview regarding the facts just elicited, stated that the gas lighter was paid $3 per night instead of $9, but that the work he did was worth about 45 cents. The gas company would permit no other man to do it, however, and as the meters were all under lock and key the gas could not be lighted until an employee of the gas company came and unlocked them and turned on the gas. In regard to moving the booths, the carnival folks had demanded the refunding of the $180 for the return of the booths, as the city council had forbidden their erection in the building again. It was expected that the money would be refunded, as the work paid for had not been performed. As to the electric light bill, the excess of $220 was due to a misunderstanding, the company having made a charge for material used, which they had no right to do, and which part of the bill was promptly crossed off on an appeal to headquarters. As to the ticket collector, a private watch was kept on him for sometime, but nothing was discovered wrong about him. These bills came up after the contract was made, otherwise the contract would not likely have been made at all. Mr. Hanchette and Mr. Truman both had a far different idea of the nature of the contract than that taken by the exposition authorities, but it did no good to make objections, as the thing was without remedy after the carnival opened.

Mr. C. M. Wells said that he had heard a good deal of objection made to the bill for advertising, but he considered that the least vulnerable point in the committee's armor, as it had been very carefully and successfully managed throughout. As to the details of the finances it had been agreed by himself, Mr. Cook and Mr. Jones, that nothing was to be given to the public until after the meeting of the general committee on Wednesday next, when an itemized report is to be given, which will be turned over to the papers immediately.

Further interviews with persons officially connected with the carnival elicited opinions to the effect that the contracts between the carnival managers and the exposition building people were so loosely drawn up as to prove the carnival people to have been entirely too credulous, or careless, to say the least, and that they afforded every opportunity to the Chicago people for fleecing them if they so desired. Bills to the extent of hundreds of dollars were rung in which should never have been honored, and their payment enforced by a grip on the proceeds, which were entirely in the hands of the exposition men. A further statement in regard to the advertising bills credits certain persons connected with that branch with having pocketed heavy commissions, and secured reductions which did not benefit the carnival managers.

Some persons did not hesitate to charge the carnival managers with criminal carelessness and mismanagement, while they strongly condemned the slipshod manner in which all the arrangements were made.

MISSING HANCHETTE.

SEVERAL RUMORS CURRENT ABOUT HIS LOCATION.

Was He at Kalamazoo—A Story That He is on His Way Home—A Supposititious Interview With Him.

The following special dispatch was published in Saturday's San Francisco Chronicle.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., May 29.—If the man whom the Kalamazoo police supposed to be H. Jay Hanchette was really that individual he has given the officers the slip. The police department is divided as to whether it was a case of mistaken identity, or whether the real Hanchette has flown. The chief says it was mistaken identity, the man supposed to be Hanchette being Charles Monroe, a former citizen of this place who has just returned, and few know him. Officer Hanchette, who spotted him, says he knows Monroe and that he is not the man he took for Hanchette. At any rate Hanchette is gone, and the request of his brother sent today to arrest him and search his trunk; cannot be complied with.

A rumor for which no substantial foundation could be discovered was current on the streets yesterday to the effect that a personal friend of Hanchette's had located him at some town on the route home. Hanchette was just recovering from a severe illness, and in a supposititious interview had requested the friend in question to communicate his whereabouts and his prospects for speedy recovery to Mrs. Hanchette. He also stated that he had been quite ill just previous to starting for home, that he had been much worried over the financial matters of the orange carnival, and on the night of the 7th, having a fever and headache, he believed that he must have been partially out of his head, for he had been filled with dread lest he should be blamed for the failure of the affair, and had hastily decided to go to St. Louis, where, upon his arrival, he had registered under another name, remained for a few days, then traveled westward from place to place until he had arrived at the point where he was found, where he had become too ill to proceed further.

Mrs. Hanchette had heard nothing relative to the matter, and the trail of the rumor was very slight.

The young man Brown, whom the police of Chicago have been vainly trying to locate since the disappearance of Hanchette, was a sort of floor walker or assistant superintendent. He was paid $1.50 per day by the carnival managers, and boarded at the Leland, a three-dollar-a-day house. He still owes that hotel $150, having boarded there for some time previous to the carnival. Young Dexter, whom the police also failed to locate, is said to be at Richmond City, Indiana, where he went to attend school. His father is a well-known citizen of Chicago, and owner of a ranch at Glendora, where he will locate this fall. This young Dexter the Chicago police are very anxious to find, as they say he was with Hanchette a great part of the time just previous to his disappearance and in some way they think he could explain the mystery.

PEOPLE'S STORE—MONDAY, JUNE 1

A constantly growing trade such as we enjoy requires the closest attention to the smallest detail to insure a success. What's the use of conducting any business on the slow jog fashion; it needs push and pull to do the active trade demanded by a community such as we live in. People nowadays don't want to travel all over town to buy a few articles, but much prefer to go where everything is kept under one roof. The People's Store has everything, as the saying goes, from a needle to an anchor. We can sell you pots and pans, silks and satins, men's hats or ladies' also, men's clothing, ladies' shoes and men's as well, drugs and perfumery, infant's carriages, and in fact anything you want to call for. It pays to trade with us, you save time and we are sure you save money. Try us for a constant trading place.
