Kinney, the Midget, and Other Trick Riders-Number of Lady Riders on the Increase-Interesting Facts Noted.

New York, August 1.—The stock market today was only moderately active but displayed a decidedly strong tone, and enjoyed a substantial rally, many stocks closing at the best prices of the week. The first prices were generally from ½%½ per cent, better than last evening's figures, but the pressure brought to bear in early trading knocked sugar off 2 per cent. Then the upward movement began. Burlington rose 2 per cent. from lowest figures and the rest of the list followed closely. The upward movement again checked, but the best prices were well held, and no reaction had. The close was dull but firm, at about top prices. Final changes show material advances in many cases. Burlington is up 1½c; Western Union 1½c.

Government bonds dull. upon the really simple secret of securing his balance, and to his immense surprise he finds himself able to ride. Of course, some are longer in acquiring this little secret than others. For instance, a certain medical gentleman of this city provided work and entertainment for several good instructors for Money—146%, $102%.

Money—146% per cent.

London, Augustii, 4 p. m.—Closing consols, money, 95 11-16; do account, 95 13-16; U. S. 4s, $102%.

Money—146% per cent. ment for several good instructors for more than two months without learning anything more than he did during his first lesson, and was finally obliged to give it up entirely, but he was an excep-tion.

The sensible man who wants to learn to ride will dispense with instructors; will hire a good strong wheel, and go to some secluded street with a good, hard, smooth roadway, plenty of room between the curbstones, few passing teams and fewer spectators. He will then try to balance himself while riding on the step at the back of the machine, starting it with a push before mounting the step. This will be easily learned. He will then try to get into the saddle and place his feet on the pedals. The art of balancing having been acquired on the step, it will not require more than three or four trials to place the beginner in the saddle, feet on the pedals, and the machine pursuing a somewhat erratic course down the street. The new rider will be surprised, pleased and frightened all in one, for while he is happy in being able to propel himself and the machine without falling, he don't know exactly how he is going to get off. The sensible man who wants to learn exactly how he is going to get off.

About an hour later he will ride up to the place where he hired the machine and proudly announce that he knows how to ride. He will feel so elated over that fact, that as the dealer goes over the machine and points out bent spokes and broken enameling to be paid for, he will probably not kick at the extra charge, even though, when he comes to think of it, he is sure that the machine was in that condition before he took it out to ride thereon.

The ability to ride once acquired and a new thing comes to pass, for there are innumerable little tricks and minor accomplishments connected and minor accomplishments connected with riding that must be acquired, one by one. The new rider finds that mounting to the saddle by means of the step behind is only allowable for beginners, so he takes a moonlight night to practice in and acquires the "pedal mounts." He also acquires the ability to jump gracefully out of the saddle to the ground when alighting, and it desirous of shining as a bicycler he learns to ride with only one hand he learns to ride with only one hand on the steering bar, then "hands off." He also learns what the foot rests are for on the forward part of his machine, how to coast, how to run down hill without using the brakes, and how to ride slowly as well as at a good speed. But, no matter how far his education as a wheelman progresses, he will always find new tricks to be learned and new accomplishments to be ac-and new accomplishments to be acquired.

Los Angeles has numerous accomplished bicyclers, as well as those accomplished in other lines. One of the most accomplished of these, and the one who can perform the seemingly impossible on a bicycle, is Master Ledru B. Kinney, a diminutive specimen of the animal, "boy," seemingly being principally composed of trained muscles. He is a graceful dancer, a skillful roller skater and an accomplished swimmer, in addition to to his dexterity on a pair of wheels. The youngster is about 14 years of age, and what he can't do with a bicycle isn't worth doing at all. He is the owner of two gold medals; one for trick riding, the other for slow riding, and has been an indispensible feature of all bicycle exhibitions in this locality for several years past. The Herald bicycle reporter has seen this youngster ride on one wheel about the pavilion, holding the small wheel clear of the ground; has seen him stand up on the saddle, with one wheel about the pavilion, holding the small wheel clear of the ground; has seen him stand up on the saddle, with one foot on the handle bar, riding around safely and easily; has watched him throw his cap down while running, dismount, let his wheel run on without him, pick up his cap, run and catch up with his wheel and remount without stopping his wheel, and perform other tricks, almost too numerous to mention. The boy is the envy and the admiration of all bicyclers.

Frank E. Olds rides a Columbia, and is enthusiastic over that style of wheel. He is a most skillful wheelman, performs most of the standard tricks, mounts a wheel from any point of the compass, rides side-saddle, backwards, or stands still, at his pleasure, and is the envy of all less experienced cyclers.

Emmett Peak, a pupil of Frank Olds, has the reputation of being able to make the shortest turns on record. Frank Olds says that Emmett could turn around on a ten-cent piece if he wanted to. Young Peak can ride a wheel almost, any way—can stand absowanted to. Young Peak can ride a wheel almost any way—can stand absolutely still on any style of wheel, can ride "hands off," and in various complicated ways.

Robbie Burns, known more for his Scottish dances than his bicycle riding, is also a skillful wheelman. He performs most of the tricks of his chum. Emmett Peak, and the two perform together one very difficult feat, that of exchanging bicycles without falling. In this trick the two ride side by side, stop close together, Burns takes Peak's bicycle without touching the ground, and Peak takes Burns' wheel, the two bicycles remaining upright meanwhile, and both starting off when the exchange is effected, without having dismounted. If that doesn't sound complicated, just try it.

dent to enlarge on the expertness of some ladies, whose feats the reporter has been only allowed to witness under strict promise of secrecy and by moonlight. Suffice it to say that, as a rule the lady "wheelmen" of Los Angeles are more generally expert as riders than their male rivals, and some of their trick riding would be a surprise to their staid and respectable neighbors who never ride on anything more frisky than a street car.

Ah, well! There is much that could be said about the bicyclers and their peculiar fads and foibles, but the reader can learn more by becoming himself a wheelman than he could by reading a dozen column articles on the subject.

DR. WOH!

The Eminent Chinese Physician.

Dr. Woh's life work has been from early youth one of persistent and untiring observation, study and investigation, as fully as lay in his power to perfect him-self in all branches of the art of healing human sickness and disease. Born in China, of influential parents, of a family whose ancestors have been for generations deservingly renowned as leading physicians, Dr. Woh naturally followed in the footsteps of his fathers. In China he has practiced his profession for several years, being at one time a physician in the Imperial Hospital, and in cured by him:

2 *Last winter I was a first-class candidate for a consumptive's grave after I had the so-called best physicians in Los Angeles, and they, had failed to benefit me in the least, and when I had run down from 170 pounds to 140 pounds, I took Dr. Wong's medicine and was completely cured in seven weeks' time. I now weigh 168 pounds, and am in the best of health.

Los Angeles, Cal, August 16, 1890.

About four years ago Dr. Wong cured me of severe kidney disease with only a few weeks
MRS. T. C. LYON, 102 Lyon street.

Four years ago my son was very sick. I employed three different doctors for three weeks, but none of them afforded any relief, nor could they describe his affliction. When it was evident that he could not live Dr. Wong examined him and said that he was suffering from one of the 21 forms of stomach diseases. Dr. Wong's medicine relieved him at once and effected a permanent cure in a few weeks' time, and he has never been sick or taken any medicine since taking Dr. Wong's medicine.

JOHN GENILA, 135 S. Workman street,
October 29, 1890.

East Los Angeles.

October 29, 1890.

After four different doctors had failed to relieve me of intense suffering from which I was unconscious at times during 5 days. Dr. Wong relieved me in 5 hours, and cured me in 10 days. I have enjoyed first class thealth ever since (now three years ago). Dr. Wong's diagnosis was that there was a collection of blood on the brain.
