Why Is It Extending Its Line to Crafton?

The Southern Pacific's Redlands Suits Settled.

A Pointer From a Riverside Paper-The Southern Pacific Coast Line-A Sunday Observance Road's Pass.

The Riverside Phœnix in its last issue loes some shrewd railroad prognostication, as follows:

The news comes from Crafton that the Southern Pacific people, having com-pleted their line from Nahant to that lace, as originally designed, are building right on in the direction of the Santa Ana cañon. Nobody seems to know the destination of the extending line of railroad, though it is surmised that it is either Bear valley or around through the Yucaipe valley into Banning. In either case there is cause for congratulation over the operations of the great railroad company. If is is building into Bear valley it will open the way to one of the finest natural summer resorts in the world; if it is bound for Banning, through Yucaipe, it will open up one of the richest sections of country in Southern California. The time is ripe for both the transcontinental roads that traverse Southern California to send out feeders into the interior valleys, and if the Southern Pacific don't soon extend its Chino line into South Riverside and Riverside, we miss our guess.

REDLANDS RAILROADS. The suits brought by the Southern Pacific company to secure a right of way over certain portions of the line beween here and Crafton, on trial at San ernardino the past week, have all en settled, says the Redlands Citrobeen settled, says the Redlands Citrograph. The question between the Santa Fé and the Southern Pacific as to the ownership of certain portions of the right of way has not been settled.

On Monday a party of Southern Pacific officials came over the new line in a special crain. They were Vice President Crocker, Chief Engineer Hood, General Superintendent Fillmore, General Master Mechanic Small and Mr. Foster, auditor of the motor power and Foster, auditor of the motor power and machinery department; Mr. Muir, assistant division suerintendent, and Messrs. Wallace and Brown, department of maintenance of way. Messrs. Crocker and Hood were closeted with Chief Engineer Tashiera for a short The matter of a depot was dis-ed, but no decision reached.

The tracklaying is completed to Orange street, and the rails will be laid to Crafton as fast as possible. C. H. Eaton, the agent, is here and has his quarters in a coach. The road will probrbly be in operation during the coming week Redlands will be made a coupon station with tickets on sale to all points. This with the recent addition of coupon tickets to the Santa Fé office gives us the same advantage as Los Angeles and the same advantage as Los Angeles and San Bernardino in this line. The belt line is completed and the but just what it will be we are unable to announce. Trains will be run each way around the circle. Our town will now have the best railway connection with outside points, there being three roads with a good number of trains each.

THE SOUTHERN PACIFIC'S COAST LINE. Of the Southern Pacific's coast line the San Luis Obispo Tribune says:

"The last report with reference to the contract again settles it that the work has been actually let. This time we learn that Mr. Strowbridge, celebrated all over the coast as the chief builder for the Southern Pacific and Pacific Improvement companies, has been awarded the contract. The conclusion is at once jamped at that the Southern Pacific company itself, proposes to build the road, and that the numbers of men who have been flying about here are either badly sold or will simply be sub-con-tractors. In any event, however, the road will be built, and it is of small consequence to our people who is to do the work."

THANKS-WE PASS.

The Santa Ana-Newport Sunday Observance railway line has the heartfelt thanks of the Standard editor for a pass over their line for the next year, at all times, "Sunday excepted"; so the pass reads, says the Santa Ana Standard. Gentlemen of the management, accept our thanks. We appreciate your road and your company. We appreciate your management, your principles and politics. The last time we went over our road, when we were in a hurry one Sunday, we admired the excellent man-ner in which it was built. The ties were well laid, the rails solidly fastened, the culverts strong and the bridges substantial. We pronounced it absolutely sate-for a footman. Next summer, when we expect to travel over it again on Sunday Without incurring the risk of being run over by trains, we hope to be able to extend to you the same high compliment that we do now. As an inspector of railway ties we are an un-doubted success, and will be pleased in the future, as we have been in the past, to do justice to your Sunday observance line though we foot it over the track

For many years Mr. Stone was the secretary of the N. C. Press association, and he is most kindly remembered by all of the older members of the association. THE WHITTIER SCANDAL.

MATTER.

A SAN FRANCISCO OPINION ON THE

Logical Deductions from the Expert's Report-An Analysis of Some of the Charges-The Grand Jury One to Suit Justice McFarland.

The San Francisco Examiner of Saturday contains the following editorial: The report of the expert of the Los Angeles grand jury on the boodle scandals that have decorated the opening of the state reform school at Whittier forms an interesting and instructive document. No one who reads the full text of it as published in the Examiner yesterday, can wonder that it was destroyed by the friends and associates of the boodlers. It is a circumstantial account of official thievery, mismanagement and extravagance that bears the impress of truth on its face. That the Los Angeles grand jury could exonerate the trustees and others of wrong-doing in the face of this report, with only two dissenting voices, shows most plainly the character of the men who made up the character of the men who made up the majority of the jury.

The figures presented by the expert indicate that the appropriation for the reform school was considered a fair mark for plunder. The beginning made by the three trustees of the school was indicative of what was to follow. Eight days expert in the selection of a site for days spent in the selection of a site for the school cost the state $732 25—nearly $100 a day. Carriage hire for the time actually taken in inspecting sites cost $18 a day. One of the trustees, the superintendent, an architect and a legal adviser juries, because they are all flesh wounds, were sent east to examine institutions but Mr. Brown's muscles, even should of the same type in other states. They were absent forty-two days, and the itemized bills of their trip show a mar-

Hotel bills are put down at $5 a day for forty-two days—a total of $210.

Sleepers are put down at $98.50, which, at $2 50 a night, would have allowed them berths for thirty-six of the forty-two nights they were absent. Each of the four put in a bill of $95 for carriage hire, an average of $9 a day, including the time spent in traveling and stopping at hotels. Incidental expenses were tumped at $100.

The furnishing of the building gave opportunity for the trustees to show a discriminating spirit calculated to assist the objects for which the school is established. Among the first items is a punch bowl at $4.50; two dozen punch glasses, $5; a pair of salad knives and forks, $16.50.

Another list with prices annexed is equally interesting, considering the purpose for which the school is established. The following specimens hardly need twelve leather seat armchairs, $180; leather Turkish chair, $65; another leather Turkish chair, $55; leather Spanish chair, $45; leather Spanish rocker, $45; antique folding bed, $140; antique oak folding bed, $110; carving set, $15; carving set, $7.50; corkscrew, $3; orkscrew, 75 cents; lemonade shaker, $2.50; two dozen glasses, $15. The itemized list contains a large number of items

This is not just the beginning that the people of the state expected for the institution. From the number of articles of each kind that have been bought the trustees are relieved of any suspicion of intending to train the boys up to luxuri-ous habits. The list from which the specimens are culled is accompanied by another in which 12 dozen tin tea-spoons, $1; 12 dozen tin tablespoons, $1.25; 10 dozen tin plates, $7 50, are sample items. There is little difficulty in deciding which are for the boys.

The bills are a fine lesson to the inmates on the advantages of honesty, economy and justice that will doubtless bear fruit. When it is added that the trustees of the school are Josiah Sims an ex-assemblyman from Nevada county; J. R. Lowe, assemblyman from Santa Clara, distinguished for his assault on Assemblyman Bledsoe over the Bruner report, and Hervey Lindley of Los Angeles, the kind of fruit that will result is not hard to guess.

The Los Angeles grand jury that ignored these facts must have been one after Justice McFarland's own heart.

BADLY CARVED.

Brown the Victim of a Cutting Scrape.

A Young Man Horribly Cut and Slashed.

Detectives Cleverly Unraveling a Mysterious Case.

Brown More Sinned Against Than Sinning-Some One Knifed Him All Over-The Appearance of His Coat.

In yesterday morning's HERALD there was published an exclusive story about a cutting scrape at the Arcade saloon on First street, a public house owned by James Michael, an ex-police officer. The details of the affray were not obtainable definitely, but they were published as nearly the truth as resulted from the detective's investigation. At about 7:15 o'clock Saturday evening a stranger, who claimed to be a new arrival from the east, came to the police station and reported that a partner of his had been cut in the face by a gambler in the Arcade saloon. The stranger asked for help, and Detective Auble went down to investigate.

When the officer arrived at the saloon there was no trace of the man cut, nor of the individual who committed the as-sault. It was ascertained, however, that the one who did the cutting was a flash and crooked gambler known as "Brown" and that the victim had been spirited away with a large knife-wound in his forehead.

The eastern man who gave the infor-mation declared that his friend had been cheated in a game of cards, and that he, himself, had interfered. Brown re-monstrated, a fight ensued, and the victim of the skin game also became the victim of the assault. The informant did not give his name but went on a hunt for his friend as well as the assail-ant, being assisted in his search by the splendid work on the case later in the night, and their efforts resulted in the night, and their efforts resulted in the discovery of the gambler Brown. The circumstances under which they found Brown, however, lent an entirely different aspect to the whole case, and seem to leave the gambler in a condition of being more sinned against than sinning. Brown was found in the Russ house, at the corner of First and Los Angeles streets, shortly before midnight, and is today probably the worst cut-up man in Los Angeles. the worst cut-up man in Los Angeles. The officers, after locating the supposed assailant, went upstairs in the Russ house in the expectation of having a desperate encounter with a bad man who has a reputation as a desperado. They were the more surprised to find They were the more surprised to find Brown in bed with a number of serious knife wounds, which leave him in a dangerous condition. The gambler had received a cut fully six inches long across the small of his back, the knife having barely skirted the spine and having divided all the muscles of the back; another cut or stab into his shoulder, cutting a three-inch gash back of his shoulder bone, and a thrust an inch and a half deep severing the tri-inch and a half deep severing the tri-ceps muscle of his right arm. He will probably recover from his inhe get back on his feet, will never be as useful as they have been. The good condition in which the wounded man is at present is due entirely to the careful attendance of his father, Dr. Brown, a retired physician and surgeon of standing, who lives at the Russ house. The aged doctor, who is 69 years of age, is a most respectable gentleman, and is heart-broken over this result of his wayward son's dissipations. The poor old father wept and prayed at his son's bedside last evening, and fervently expressed the hope that the young gambler, whose age is only 24, might benefit by this horrible lesson and reform his ways. The doctor, with sobs, remarked that the son had sworn over his mother's dead body that he would reform, but had broken his eath.

Young Brown is well known to the police and has been in their clutches before this on similar charges to the resent one. It was on this account that the active part of the cutting scrape had been at once attributed to him, and that no suspicion was entertained that he might be the victim. This view of the case was further strengthened by the statement of Jimmy Michael, the saloon-keeper, of the bar-keeper, and of a man named Langdon, who is now locked up in the city prison.

The alleged new arrivals from the east are not strangers here at all, although they have been here only a few months. The man who, it is alleged, was spirited away by the saloon people with a bad cut in his forehead caused by a hear-plass, is known as "Mississing." by a beer-glass, is known as "Mississip-pi," and is a plumber. His pal, the one who brought the information to police "Tennessee." Both have absolutely disappeared, but will probably put in an appearance, willy-nilly, at police head-quarters today.

The black cutaway coat and waist-coat of the wounded man, Brown, are now hung up as evidence in the tective room of the "front office." garments really form a remarkable sight, for they are cut and slashed into shreds, and are stiff with clotted blood. Any one, to look at them, would not hesitate to hold that the one who wore them had been fairly chopped to pieces.

This would seem a contradiction—is so, in fact, to the eye. But experience has proved its possibility. Take the case of the individual who dwells in a malarious region. A robust constitution is no certain defen e against the dreaded chills. What is ? Recorded t-stimmny, covering a period little short of half a ceatury, proves that Hostetter's Stomach Buters is precisely this. This continent does not imit the field where the medicine has proved its effica y. In South America, the Ishmus of Panama, Mexico, everywhere iz fact where masmaborn disease takes on its most obstinate and formidable types, the B tters is a recognized specific in il imitable demand, and pre-cribed by physicians of repute. Potent, too, is it in disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, and against that destroyer, is grippe. It improves appetite and sleep, neutralizes rheumatism and kidne, compaints.
