Recitations Jeannette V. Korns and Ada becca Korns; next was a song by Robert Witt, entitled "Stubborn Mule," The operv nanager then read a few queries, which were answered by members of the Society. Recitations, Etta Shaffer and Park Shaffer followed by a dialogue by the school. T. e referred question was then taken up, which was, "What are the best methods of keeping order at a public meeting ?" opened by Prof. C. C. Schmucker.

A short recess was then given, after which Miss Madie Critchfield favored the society with a choice recitation, followed by a song, by H. Nickodemus, entitled "Chewing dum." The question for regular debate was then taken up, which was "Resolved, that we should have a compulsory school law," Messrs. John Sipe, A. J. Fritz and Frank Korns were chosen judges. The question was discussed on the affirmative by Prof. C. C. Schmucker, W. A. G. Lape and W. I. Risheberger; on the negative by H. E. Shaffer, Jacob Hoffman and M. L. Weighley. The judges decided in favor of the afrmative, two to one.

The program for the next meeting was then read, and on motion adopted as read. The Society then adjourned to meet Friday evening, Dec. 19, 1890, at 7 o'clock. SECRETARY.

William Dean Howells, in the "Editor's Sudy" in Harper's Magazine for January, after reviewing some noteworthy books recently published, will say a few words about the difficult art of keeping enemies. "To make enemies," he remarks, "is perfectly easy; the difficult thing is to keep them; the first you know they are no longer hating you, they are not even thinking of you. Any author can test the fact in his own case. Read a bitter censure of your book the morning it is printed, and the world is filled with it forever; read it next month, and there never was anything of it."

Consumption Surely Cured. To Tue Entron.—Please inform your readers that I have a positive remody for the above named disease. By its timely use thousands of hopeless cases have been permanently cured. Uncork that Stocking. Cincinnati Times Star : Since the begin ing of President Harrison's administration amount of money in circulation has been creased more than $100,000,000, yet, acording to Secretary Wimdom, "the effect has been scarcely appreciable." It is the Secretary's opinion that the people who received this money for bonds are hoarding The bulk of this enormous sum has cone into stockings and will stay there till pportunities are offered for safe and profitable investments. It is not so much the lack of money as the lack of confidence that produces financial stringency; and probably the chief cause of corpulent stockings is found in the uncontrolled crankery which has been developed in the West and South.
