Manning of Albany.

On the witness stand Nichols declared that he had worked for the Equitable in 1904, saying it was in his province to look after people in mical to the com pany. Queries propounded led to the bringing forth of one W. S. Manning, of Albany, who later, it developed, was Albany, who later, it developed, was the "rantankerous friend" who was referred to Senator Denew.

Mr. Hughes drew from the witness that Manning acted for others, and that he brought charges that the dividends were not large enough.

Mr. Hughes showed the witness three vouchers, July 1, 1889, $6,000; October 1, 1888, $6.407, and July 1, 1890, for $6,000, but Mr. Nichols said that he could not remember to whom he paid the money which he received from the Equitable.

Mr. Nichols said that Manning was anxious to withdraw from the arrangement, and he wrote to Senator Depew. Nichols said that Depew did not know Manning. In explaining, Mr. Nichols said that he urged Manning to leave the insurance business, as Manning, as an actuary, was proving himself annoying to the company. Nichols said that Manning wanted to get out of the arrangement.

Mr. Nichols was shown some vouch-to the company. Nichols said that Manning wanted to get out of the arrangement.

Mr. Nichols was shown some vouchers from the Mutual, and it was disclosed that Nichols had paid $450 a year to Mr. Manning on behalf of the Mutual Life.

Mr. Nichols said that up to 1899 he had received a retainer of $1,000 from the New York Life. Nichols said that through an arrangement with President McCall, the sum of $650 was paid to Manning. Nichols said that the payments of the New York Life began at the same time as those of the Equitable and Mutual. The witness said that Mr. Hyde teld him to keep Manning straight. Mr. Nichols was ogain asked if Manning was, not paid because he was in possession of facts which had come to him in the investigation in 1877, and the witness replied in the negative.

Tammany Man Called.

Tammany Man Called.

Cowan, a former insgistrate, and a member of Tammany Hall, was called and testified that he was employed in the real estate department of the Equitduced to $5,400.

"What did you do this year?" Cowan was asked.
"Nothing much," was the reply.
"What does the Equitable pay you $6,000 a year for?"
"To look after some of its business."
"Now. as a matter of fact, you act as an intermediary between the city departments and the Equitable?"
"Yes."
Mr. Cowan said that he got the personal tax assessment of Mr. Alexander, Mr. Hyde and Mr. Tarbell reduced, Senator Platt was then called to the stand.

"THE PEASANT AND HIS SEVEN PARASITES."

This cartoon is intended to show the oppression and injustice under which the Russian masses stagger. A peasant is at his plow and before him are the seven parasites his labor must maintain-the landowner, the priest, the soldier, the grand duchess, the professor, the money-lender, and the tradesman. Each of these has a spoon in his hand, indicating that the peasant, by his work, must feed all.

"A 'public improvement' is that which that is to say, saving to the District accomplishes the greatest good to the greatest number, keeping in view the tendency toward reduction in taxation that is to say, saving to the District government by its performing this duty itself, and owning its own plant, at tendency toward reduction in taxation n the future."

The foregoing is George W. King's definition of what constitutes a public improvement.

"This saving applied to a sinking fund toward paying money borrowed, for the purchase of said plant, or building one of our own, would repay the improvement.

"To accomplish this 'public improvement,' " continued Mr. King, "we must see wherein the municipal authorities are spending the largest amount of money, and wherein the largest portion of the said expenditure could be saved, and benefits derived therefrom to the taxpayer.

"There is no better illustration than "There is no better illustration than the District of Columbia" "I will cite one instance of many:
