TWO KINDS OF SPELLING

"Baltic" Postal Card Rewritten By Witness in Sensational Divorce Case.

PITTSBURG, July 5.—The Hartje divorce case was renewed today with the same vigor which has characterized it since the trial began one week ago Tuesday.

Hartje was early on the scene, but Tom Madine was there before him.

Mrs. Hartje, the most interesting of this trio of principals in the sensational case, was last to arrive.

Tom Madine was called to the stand as soon as the trial began. Attorney Marron continuing the cross examination he began Tuesday afternoon.

"Madine, I want the Baltic postal card I asked you for the other day," said the lawyer.

Producing a paper on which Marron had on Tuesday required Madine to write the words contained on the "Baltic card," he asked Madine to rewrite them on one of these postals.

Tom wrote laboriously, but evidently did not get all the matter on the card.

"I insist on him writing small to show that he can get it all on the card," said Marron to the court.

"He will only be required to write in his natural hand," said the judge.

Different Ways of Spelling.

"I ask you why you spell 'no' differently on exhibit 49 than you did on exhibit 47. Have you learned to spell it in the meantime?"

"I told you I did not know how to spell very well."

"Well, why did you spell it 'no' today and 'know' twice on Tuesday?"

"That was just a different way of spelling it."

"Three years ago you did not do much writing, did you?"

"Oh, I don't know," said Tom.

Attorney Marron then put Tom through an extra writing test.

"While you were at Schultenbergs where did your mail come?"

"To Schultenbergs," was the reply.

"I believe when you were asked about these letters, that you said you never had them and never saw them," said Attorney Marron, taking up the famous letters.

Denies Receiving Letters.

"No sir," said Tom, after looking them over.

He was shown an envelope addressed to Tom Madine at Schultenbergs stable, postmarked in March.

"Did you ever see that?"

"No."

"That is your address?"

"Yes, I got letters like that but not that one."

"Whom did you get letters like that from?"

"Why, from home, from my mother, sister, and brother and other people—friends of mine."

STEAMERS BUMPED; FRIGHTENED WOMEN

A broadside collision between two excursion steamers occurred yesterday afternoon, when the new steamer Jamestown, of the Norfolk and Washington line, and the St. Johns, of the Colonial Beach line, bumped each other down the Potomac.

The two boats had been running side by side for some distance, and when they entered the Maryland channel the suction drew them together. Both steamers were crowded, and for a short time there was excitement and confusion among the women passengers.

No damage was done.

GIRL HEROINE OF 5 SAVES OLDER SISTER

Extinguishes Blaze That Had Caught Dress of Child of Six, Thus Saves House.

CARNEY, Wis., July 5.—Violet Peterson, five years of age, has proved herself a heroine by saving the life of her sister and extinguishing a fire that would have destroyed her home.

The sister is six years old. The two were alone in the house. The older girl tried to freshen her dress with kerosene and started the blaze. Her dress afire, she attempted vainly to smother the flames in a blanket. She then told Violet to throw water over her. The child kept her head and obeyed her sister's commands, and then, drawing water from the well, extinguished the fire to the kitchen, which was burning briskly.

LONGWORTHS START FOR PARIS TODAY

Filipinos' Efforts to Banquet President's Daughter Fail.

LONDON, July 5.—Representative and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, who are making a tour of Europe, left London this morning for Paris. The Philippines in London endeavored to arrange a banquet in honor of Mrs. Longworth as an indication of their acceptance of American sovereignty over the Philippine Islands. The banquet, a public affair, was to have been given under the patronage of Senator S. Yapho and Roxas, two of the richest Filipinos now living in Europe. Owing to the short sojourn of the Longworths in London, the arrangements for the banquet have fallen through.

FOURTH'S CELEBRATION BY BARRY GARRISON

Patriotism soared high at the celebration of Independence Day by Gen. William F. Barry Garrison of the Army and Navy Union at its headquarters, Pennsylvania avenue and Ninth street last night. The exercises were presided over by Col. Charles F. Noke. On the rostrum with him were Col. A. B. Frisbie, Col. M. F. O'Donoghue, E. G. Burch, F. C. Longstreet, Col. R. F. Chase, James M. Lucas, and J. E. Browne.

An address by Colonel Frisbie, "With Grant At Vicksburg Just Forty-three Years Ago," was applauded as well as another by Colonel Lucas, who served on the battleship Oregon, in the Spanish-American war. The Declaration of Independence was read by Colonel Browne. The "Star-Spangled Banner" was recited in excellent style by Colonel O'Donoghue and "The Dear Old Flag," an original poem by Miss Hallowell, the Fushine Poetess, was recited by the author. Many interesting reminiscences of the civil war were told by Colonel Chasoo, a descendant of a signer of the Declaration of Independence.

The following named sailors and soldiers were initiated into the union: Fred W. Boglia, Wilfred R. McComb, William M. Cain, Maj. Wilds P. Richardson, Herbert W. Cave, Capt. William H. Myers, Capt. W. H. Brooks, William H. Fuse, and Robert Edward Grant.

YEARS TO PROVE HE WAS NOT DEAD

Civil War Veteran Kept Away From Churches and Circuses.

VINELAND, N. J., July 5.—Henry Panoos, of this place, has the distinction of being set down in the national military records as dead, yet he is one of the most active business men of Vineland. For thirty-one years he has been in business here, and during that time he says he has never been in a church, never attended a circus, never was in an opera house or attended any place of amusement and never went to a Fourth of July celebration.

He enlisted in the civil war from Atlantic county and was discharged from the Soldiers' Home, Washington, on January 7, 1863, but in some manner his record became mixed with another, and he was reported dead by the surgeon. It took him twenty years to prove that he was alive and eligible to a pension.

The nearest approach to attending an entertainment in all these years was the taking part in the reunion of his regiment, the Twenty-fifth New Jersey Volunteers, in Atlantic City, several years ago.

His business required his attention early each day, and his invariable habit was to leave the house before his family was up and he retired generally at night when the members of his family were in slumber.

500 women's skirts worth $5 and $6 at $2.98

A manufacturer's entire surplus stock

These skirts were made from the short ends of materials left over from the entire season's selling. The manufacturer came to us with a proposition to take the entire lot, a very low price was agreed upon, and Friday we shall offer them to you at just about half their actual value.

MATERIALS are fine mohairs and Panamas, in black, navy, and cream; also a fine assortment of novelty mixtures in medium shades. THE STYLES are the newest and include both kilted and circular models. About fifty of the lot are in the popular "sun-flare" pleated model, 50 or more in the lot, but even 500 will not last long at the price quoted, and the earlier customers naturally have the best range of selection.
