

Motor Company plan to distribute a $100,000 million to employees.

"Some people will say: Ford can't afford to do that," said the Secretary. "That kind of talk is foolish. It doesn't depend on whether he can afford it or not. I see in this, as in the removal of Morgan members from directorates, a great step forward. It is a social advance, recognizing the value of men, which may be, and I hope is, epochal."

"One must not discuss the details of such a plan because this may only be done by one who knows the details of the business but the broad principle involved of recognition of the essential value of the men, and the equity of appraising that value at its true worth is entirely sound."

Asked if he viewed this step as only one move of business men to avoid the growth of socialism, the secretary replied:

"It is social advance."

Assistant Secretary of Labor Post declared he was pleased with the Ford move. As a single taxer he made this comment:

"It is a good thing to have a participation such as this, but such things will not amount to a great deal in this country until the landowner, too, shares the profits."

LOSS OF POODLE DISTRESSES BOY

Somewhere in Washington there is a poodle, eight months old, the playmate of this boy. "Snookums" is the name of the dog, and she has been missing from Willie's home, 318 C street northwest, for two weeks. He's a very lonesome little boy, and today he asked The Times to help locate her.

"I am writing to see if you will please try and help me find my dog Snookums which I lost," a letter stated. "She is a female white poodle, eight months old. I am very sad since I lost her. Please try and help me find her."

The youthful owner promises a reward for the return of the canine.

HESS MADE HEAD OF BOTANIC GARDENS

George W. Hess, formerly of this city, and for the past seven years engaged in operating a demonstration farm near Jacksonville, Fla., has been appointed superintendent of the Botanic Gardens. He will assume his new duties within a few days.

Mr. Hess was born in Washington forty-nine years ago. At the age of sixteen he entered the flower business here with John Saul. He later worked for a number of the leading florists of the country, among them Muir, of Chicago.

He was associated with the late Edwin A. Mosely for years at the latter's place in Kenilworth, D. C., where he made a specialty of violets and carnations. During his employment with Mosely these flowers were the best that could be had in the District, according to florists. He also earned an enviable reputation by his success in growing Chinese and other foreign vegetables.

When a disastrous fire blew him out of the flower business he took a competitive examination under the civil service and entered the Government employ, with a rating of 90 per cent on the growing of foreign plants and 98 per cent on general gardening.

M'REYNOLDS TALKS TO NEW HAVEN HEAD

Begin First of Series of Conferences to Determine Upon Course of Action.

Conferences that will determine whether the Department of Justice shall press proceedings against the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad and its allied interests, organized of voluntary disunion can be arranged, were opened today between Howard Elliott, the New Haven president, and Attorney General McReynolds, who visited the city for two hours this morning.

Later he had an extended conference with J. W. Grayson, special assistant to the Attorney General, who, with Assistant Attorney General Adkins, recently completed an exhaustive investigation of New Haven affairs.

At the suggestion of Attorney General McReynolds, Mr. Elliott would not discuss what took place in the conferences. "Much as I hate the word," he said, "all I can say is that we are making progress."

First of a Series.

Asked if he would have any further conferences today, Mr. Elliott admitted that this would be only the first of a series of discussions he would hold with the Attorney General.

"I expect to be here several days," he said. "and the Attorney General may want to talk with me further."

Mr. Elliott was silent as to the inquiry he had Saturday with J. P. Morgan.

While Mr. Morgan has quit the New Haven directorate, he said, "He still is interested as a stockholder in the company."

Developments of the last few days have brought the New Haven situation to a point where something is expected to "break" at once in the reporting to the Attorney General, Messrs. Adkins and Gregory are said to have recommended that the department take steps to dislodge the New Haven completely from its competing rail holdings, and its control of water transportation lines, which were held to give that road a virtual monopoly of transportation facilities between New England and the West and South.

Has Made Overtures.

Already the road has made overtures to meet the department's wishes that it be made to conform to the Sherman law. An offer has been made to turn over its stock in the Boston and Maine to trustees to be appointed under the supervision of the Attorney General, such trustees to dispose of its stock to others than New Haven stockholders. Another move made by the New Haven was the canceling of an agreement it held with the New York Central, by which the two roads shared jointly in the profits of the Boston and Maine.

Asked if he was taking up the demands of the Government singly and disposing of them one at a time, or whether the Attorney General had made his demands as a complete package, Mr. Elliott declared he would not discuss that.

Neither would he say whether the question of criminal prosecution of New Haven officers was discussed. The Gregory-Adkins report is said to call for prosecution of the old "Mellen ring."

POSTAL SLEUTHS ON ROBBERS' TRAIL

Fingerprint on One of the Windowpanes of Mt. Rainier Post-office, and Horse Blanket and Old Rugs Left by Safe-crackers Aid Authorities in Their Hunt.

A fingerprint on one of the windowpanes, a horse blanket, and several small rugs are means by which postal inspectors, aided by the Washington police and the authorities of Prince George county, hope to trail the yeomen who early Monday morning cracked the safe in the Mt. Rainier, Md., postoffice and got away with $300 in currency and stamps.

The horse blanket and the rugs were used by the crackmen to muffle the sound of the explosion. The fingerprint was discovered by Fred Sanberg, official photographer of the Washington Post-Office, who visited the scene of the robbery Monday evening. The fingerprint was on the upper pane of the window through which the robbers gained entrance to the postoffice. Sanberg was unable to take a copy of the fingerprint and it was necessary to remove the pane to preserve it.

The safe is of an old type, and a bolt in the door was removed so that the nitroglycerin could be poured inside. The cracks around the door were sealed with soap, and the fact that the explosion was so well muffled that it did not awaken the occupants of an adjoining house, only a few feet away from the postoffice, indicates, the police say, that the robbery was the work of experienced safe crackers.

It was pointed out today that the robbers did no experimenting, but had apparently gone to work like men familiar with the business. The safe was blown "clean," that is, the door was forced out by the explosion, but only a sufficient amount of explosive was used to accomplish this without wrecking the safe or even tearing the door from the hinges.

The horse blanket and the rugs found on the floor of the postoffice were old ones, and the postal inspectors think they may prove valuable clues.

SMALLPOX CHANGES BATTLESHIP PLANS

Daniels Blames Sailing Orders on Quarantine Placed on Guantanamo.

The fact that the Navy Department has been unable to raise the quarantine placed on the naval station at Guantanamo on account of the smallpox cases taken there from the battleship Ohio was the reason given this morning by Secretary Daniels for another change in the plans for the winter battleship practice.

Under the new arrangement, the battleships and torpedo boats, suspected of being sent south as much on account of the Mexican situation as from a desire to provide them opportunity for winter maneuvers, either will remain the entire time at Culebra or base at Guayanayabo Bay, on the south coast of Cuba.

According to Secretary Daniels, there now are nine violent cases of smallpox and twenty-five suspects at Guantanamo.

The battleships which will take part in the winter practice include the Wyoming (Cal., Florida, South Carolina, and Georgia—five of the most powerful dreadnoughts in the navy, should the Admiralty decide to make more drastic steps, the presence of these ships in southern waters will enable the United States to concentrate practically its entire naval strength at Mexico within a few hours after the decision is reached.

More than 100 persons witnessed the public installation of the officers of Equal Lodge, No. 11, Knights of Pythias, at Pythian Temple, Monday night.

PHONE CO. MUST NOT AID VIRGINIA BRANCH

Public Utilities Commission Denies Petition of C. & P. of District.

The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company was today denied permission to invest $100,000 of its surplus sinking fund in gold bonds of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Virginia. Action was taken at a continued sitting today of the Public Utilities Commission of the District of Columbia, to whom written application had been made for such authority.

In disposing of the petition the commission finds that the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, which operates the telephone system of the District of Columbia, is the owner of all the stock of the Virginia corporation whose bonds it proposed to purchase and it is the judgment of the commission that permission to make such investment under such circumstances should not be granted in view of the design and purpose of the public utility and anti-trust laws of the District of Columbia.
