The mounted organizations will be paid off Monday a few hours before they leave, while funds will be disbursed to the Infantrymen Tuesday.

Following the muster all of the troops were taken to the drill field at Fort Myer and given a stiff drill in which they put considerable snap. This is one of the coldest days the soldiers have experienced in camp. After the drill the troops were given a short hike to keep them warm.

Practically all of the troops appeared today in their woolen uniforms and sweaters, while many of them wore overcoats.

GRAVEUR'S END HALTS PROBE OF BIG FRAUDS

unable to obtain sufficient evidence to cause his arrest and settlement was made.

For six weeks, Irwin said, Graveur and Mrs. Belser were trailed by detectives following this second affair. They expected to find that Graveur had given Mrs. Belser some of the missing jewelry, but their vigilance brought no return.

Irwin said the detectives on the case were convinced that Mrs. Belser was infatuated with Graveur, but despite the fact that they trailed the couple day and night, they never learned anything of a disparaging nature concerning the woman.

She was taken by Graveur to a number of lively parties at well-known New York cafes and spent considerable time at his summer place, but always under the chaperonage of Mrs. Apmann or some other woman.

Detective's Statement.

Detective Irwin said:

"This man Graveur was a mighty shrewd fellow. He was a smooth talker, and even baffled the lawyers for the insurance companies who were trying to uncover his methods. Toward Mrs. Belser, however, things got so bad that he left matters in the hands of Howard V. Fanny, who was his partner. He was afraid to trust anyone before a lawyer for the insurance companies would get him.

"Graveur only had $5,000 in his business. The rest was in notes. He was a great man with paper and liens. He used to do a lot of work on somebody's motor car and then get a lien against it. The next thing the owner knew it had been attached and sold. The car in which Graveur came to Philadelphia was one which he had secured in this manner.

"With all his head for shrewd business, he never lost sight of the woman. It was his weak spot, and it was through this that the detectives hoped to get the real goods on him. A few months ago he fell out with his sister, Mrs. Apmann, and this made the detectives all the more convinced that they would land him."

Joseph C. Le Duc, who was wife, survivor of the Hotel Walton tragedy, is near death in Jefferson Hospital, has protested to the detective bureau against the statement made before a magistrate and go into full details concerning the tragedy.

power—what would be its definite changes in the tariff; what would be its policy toward Mexico; how would it act in the Mexican embargo, and what would it do with the Adamson eight-hour law.

Not what would the Republican party have done, but what would it suggest doing now, is what the President will ask. Until these answers are given the President may be expected merely to explain what he hopes his Administration may accomplish through its actions—not to dwell at length on the achievements themselves.

The attitude of the Administration toward business has been one of assistance and the result unprecedented prosperity, the President means to show.

No war, bigger pay, and increased opportunities are the facts before the country now, he believes—and he will put it up to his political opponents to show how they would change this situation.

Makes No Prediction.

As for the results of the coming election, the President at this time makes no prediction. He believes there are many elements going to make the outcome uncertain. The independent vote which in his estimate will be the greatest the country has ever known has the situation in its hands.

This portion of the electorate he feels is well able to judge the real issues of the campaign and render a satisfactory decision.

One thing is certain, and that is that the President does not court that part of the German vote, which he believes is trying to intimidate him by its activities in the different local elections held to date.

In response to a message of warning against "pro-English" policies, sent him by J. A. O'Leary, president of the American Truth Society, the President sent the following telegram, last night:

"Your telegram received. I feel deeply mortified to have you or anybody like you write for me. Since you have access to many disloyal Americans and I have not, I will ask you to convey this message to them."

"With all his head for shrewd business, he never lost sight of the woman. It was his weak spot, and it was through this that the detectives hoped to get the real goods on him. URGE NEW PAVING IN BRIGHTWOOD PARK

Association Also Thanks P. T. Moran for Work in Favor of Armor Plant.

Deploing the condition of Washington's suburban roads, and stating that once the concrete paving ended far behind similar road construction in other cities of the United States, the members of the Brightwood Park Citizens' Association have petitioned the District Commissioners to extend the concrete paving of Georgia avenue through their district.

It was stated at a meeting of the association last night that Georgia avenue is one of the main thoroughfares leading to Washington, and that the present condition of the road as such at present falls far behind what it should be.

At their first meeting in the Brightwood Park school house last night, the association sent a number of recommendations to the District Commissioners concerning civic improvement in their section of the city. Not only did they ask to have Georgia avenue paved with concrete, but the grading and widening of Illinois avenue, Kennedy street, Longfellow street, Madison street, and Hamilton street was recommended.

The delegate to the confederation of citizens' associations, was instructed to favor: First, the placing on the floor of Congress a delegate from the District of Columbia, with a right of speech, but no vote; second, the free transfer between both street car lines in the District, and third, the effort to do away with the so-called Board of Commissioners.

A letter to the District Commissioners advocating the inspection and condemnation of all second-hand furniture, mattresses, and other material by which disease might be spread, was sent by the association.

Increasing the firemen's pay in the District to equal the recent increase of the police force pay was another measure advocated. The association petitioned the Commissioners to have stationed within Brightwood Park a police station, and to provide a larger school building to meet the increase in the number of students.

WOULD KEEP DOGS OFF STREET NIGHTS

Legislation forbidding Washingtonians to allow dogs to run at large at night, whether tagged or untagged, muzzled or unmuzzled, probably will be recommended by Health Officer W. C. Woodward in his next annual report to the Commissioners.

The number of recent instances of children bitten by dogs has brought forcibly to the attention of officials the need of additional restrictions.

"The prevention of rabies depends upon the prevention of the running at large of dogs without proper muzzles," said the health officer. "The force provided for the pound service is not sufficient to accomplish this end, and in any event it would be impracticable to impound dogs running at large at night."
