DAY WAS UNEVENTFUL.

The day, dark and smobre, the leaden clouds occasionally sprinkling rain, was no more colorless than the Coolidge day was uneventful. During the forenoon the governor's secretary, Henry C. "Tarnished Reputation,' written by Leonce Perret, its producer, and therefore a picture which reflects the author's minutest purpose in every scene, yesterday was enthusiastically viewed by, large audiences upon its inauguration of a two-day run as chief feature of the bill at Crandall's Theater, with Dolores Cassinelli as the pictured heroine.

The opening of the engrossing story finds Helen Sanderson an unspoiled country girl who is prevailed upon to pose for a vacationing artist as "The Saint With the Lilies." Through this picture the artist attains fame and a diversity of interests that lead him to forget that he has loved the girl rather too impetuously for her own good. In later years, driven to desperation by the taunts of the villagers. Helen seeks fortune in the city and, through another representation, is made guilty of misdemeanors that result in a term in the reforma-tory. When it eventuates that the girl may personally remonstrate with the judge who sentenced her for his injustice, the interest of a famous play-justice, the interest of a famous play-wright is enlisted. Under his tute-lage, Helen becomes a great actress, is afforded opportunity to square accounts with the artist who again falls desperately in love with her and finally finds happiness.

G. O. P. Defeat Seen By Democratic Bosses

By J. E. WATSON.

FRENCH LICK, Ind., June 14. With Warren G. Harding and Calvin Coolidge selected as the G. O. P. White Hopes, the eyes of the nation are focused on the Democratic Presidential conference, to be held here this week.

Every Democratic politician of national prominence is either at French Lick or is scheduled to arrive within the next few days. The Tammany clan, from "Boss" Charles F. Murphy to the humblest slave, already is on the ground, determined to have a leading role in the selection of the Democratic nominees and division of the spoils in the event of victory.

Harding's selection by the Republicans is hailed with joy by the Democrats. They plan to attack him on the ground that he is a member of the Foraker-Mark Hanna school of thought. It is claimed that he already has lost the East and that the manner of his nomination by Republican reactionaries will drive a million protesting votes away from the Republican ticket. McAdoo, Palmer, Edwards, and Cox are the candidates most prominently mentioned for the Democratic nomination. The Eastern contingent favors an out and out wet plank in the national platform, but is willing to compromise on and wine. A distinct bid for progressive and radical votes also will be made by Democratic leaders, who see in expressed Republican policies a chance to clean slate by the elimination of President Wilson and a firm declaration of forward-looking principles. The greatest stumbling block in the way of this is the League of Nations doctrine of the President. A conference of Democratic leaders is scheduled for today.
