Ireland settle her own affairs, she will settle them and settle them right.

"But violence begets violence, and the British are responsible."

EXTREMISTS IN SADDLE.

When he was pressed with evidence that the murders in Ireland recently were planned by an organization working perfectly and were not mere wild outbreaks, Griffith's answer was not clear. Likewise he met with a broad denial only, the assertion made in the House of Commons that there was a "murder gang" within the Sinn Féin now; that this "murder gang" is dominant and that this "murder gang" is running it to suit their own wild selves.

Griffith only knows there is violence being done and he will have nothing to do with it.

The home rule bill he calls "a plunder or partition bill." He said there was nothing to do save sit tight and wait development.

Ireland, he continued, has demonstrated her constitutional right to freedom, and it remains to be seen how long America and the rest of the world will stand by and see this right violated by force.

He declared that every development recently has showed—and will show in the future—that England can only hold Ireland by such an overwhelming force as that displayed here today and which he says is being displayed every day.

BRITAIN HOLDS MARTIAL LAW UNDESIRABLE NOW

LONDON, Nov. 26.—An official telegram was received by the Irish office from Dublin Castle this afternoon reporting the arrest of Arthur Griffith, but the nature of the charge was not revealed.

Although violence in all its forms still stalks through Ireland, the British government has decided not to impose martial law at this time.

That the advisability of imposing martial law on Ireland has been under consideration by the cabinet since Sunday was revealed today. Premier Lloyd George stated, however, that it was "undesirable" to attempt to enforce martial law at present.

News of fresh disorders was received during the day. Michael Moran, a Sinn Féin volunteer, was shot while attempting to escape from Black and Tan policemen in Galway. Martin Lyons, an ex-soldier, was shot and killed.

The body of Dennis O'Donnell was found at Mitchelstown, riddled with bullets.

A serious clash between civilians and police occurred at Millstreet in County Cork. Houses were burned and shops looted. While civilians were attempting to put out a fire, bombs were dropped and exploded in burning houses. The women and children fled from the village in panic.

The Roman Catholic bishop of Galway has received an anonymous death threat if any effort is made to interfere with the soldiers and police in that district, according to a dispatch from Dublin. The telegram added the bishop had notified Sir Hamar Greenwood, chief secretary for Ireland, that he would be held responsible if any attempt were made on the prelate's life.

LONDON SERVICES FOR SLAIN BRITISH OFFICERS

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Impressive military honors were paid today to nine British officers slain in Dublin last Sunday, whose bodies were brought from Ireland on a destroyer and arrived in London shortly before 10 o'clock. The chief mourner at the funeral ceremonies was Sir Hamar Greenwood, chief secretary for Ireland. King George was represented. Large crowds, respectfully silent and bareheaded, lined the streets as the flag-draped coffins were borne from the railway station on gun carriages. The band from the guards played a funeral march and the coffins were escorted by detachments from all branches of the service and details from the Black and Tan and the Royal Irish Constabulary.

Ceremonies for six of the slain officers were held in Westminster Abbey, and services for three others,

As the result of disorders in Dublin in which many people lost their lives, the military have surrounded the city and established "dead lines" with barbed wire entanglements. Back of the entanglements lay British soldiers with machine guns and other arms ready for instant use. The photograph shows a frenzied crowd taunting the guards.

who were Roman Catholics, were conducted in Westminster Cathedral.

DE VALERA APPEAL SENT TO STATE DEPARTMENT

President Wilson has transmitted to the State Department the formal plea by Eamonn De Valera for American recognition of the Irish republic. De Valera signed the document which covers several thousand words, as President of the Irish republic.

This is the first time that the Irish cause has been laid before the State Department in a formal manner. When Secretary of State Colby consented to receive a delegation of the friends of Irish freedom a few weeks ago and listen to their arguments, he let it be understood that they could come only as American citizens and not as representatives of the Irish republic, President De Valera or any organization.

While the Secretary of State could not with propriety receive a formal communication from Mr. De Valera, however, it was understood that such a communication could be sent to the President of the United States. This course was adopted by Mr. De Valera and his plea is now formally before the State Department. Whether a reply will be sent to the President of the Irish republic is problematical, although precedent could be found for such action. Some persons believe that a pronouncement by the State Department or the President might produce a beneficial reaction in both Ireland and England by impressing sympathy with Irish aspirations, but at the same time pointing out the impracticability of Ireland's absolute separation from England.

MANCHESTER, England, November 26.—An Irish rally, which was to have been held here tomorrow with Arthur Griffith, acting president of the Irish republic, as chief speaker, was prohibited today by the mayor.

STATUE OF EX-KAISER SOLD FOR SCRAP IRON

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The bronze from the statue of the ex-kaiser at Metz, which was taken down immediately after the armistice, has been sold by the town council of Metz for 75,000 francs.

The money will be devoted to the erection of two statues—one to the French "patriot" and the other to the French patriot, Paul Deroulade.

served, has put foreigners operating in this country precisely on the same footing as Americans, treating the petroleum supplies as a sort of trusteeship and placing no restrictions on the export trade. Sixty per cent of the world's oil supply, it was pointed out, has come from America.

The general leasing law of February 25, 1920, it is said, provides a remedy in the event foreign nations attempt to shut out American from fields within their zone of influence.

According to confidential advisers received from British sources by officials here, an agreement has been concluded between a French company headed by Sir Basil Zaharoff, and the Anglo-Persian Oil Company whereby large quantities of crude and refined oils are to be imported and distributed in France. The Société Navale de l'Ouest, said to be one of the largest of the French shipping concerns, is heavily interested, according to the advisers.

By the terms of the agreement, the new concern is assured practically unlimited supplies of petroleum, the reports said. Fifty-five per cent of the capital stock of the new company is said to be held in France, while the Anglo-Persian company holds the remaining 45 per cent.

This agreement, officials here stated, is in line with that arrived at last April by Premiers Millerand and Lloyd George, but ostensibly abandoned because of protest from nations not included in the understanding.

The board of control of the new company is said to consist of Admiral Ronarch and Sir Basil Zaharoff, representing the French interests and Sir Charles Greenwood and other members of the Anglo-Persian company, representing British interests.

CHICAGO EDUCATOR ADDED TO PROBERS

Dean Robert Morris Lovett, of Chicago University, has been added to the subcommittee of the American Commission on Conditions in Ireland, which will go to England and Ireland in search of first-hand evidence. Dean Lovett has accepted an invitation to serve on the subcommittee if he can obtain a leave of absence from his duties at the university.

The subcommittee now numbers five, with Major Oliver P. Newman, of this city, as chairman. Major Newman and the other original members—the Rev. Dr. Norman Thomas, of New York City; James H. Moore, president of the Pennsylvania State Labor Federation; and Arthur Gleason, of New York City—applied for their passports today.

Dean Lovett has held the chair of English literature at Chicago University for many years. He has a wide acquaintance in British intellectual circles.

In sending his application for a passport, the Rev. Dr. Thomas wired to Secretary Colby: "In applying for a passport as a member of the American Commission on Ireland, may I make clear that I am animated now as in the past by a profound desire for world peace which is inevitably menaced by continuance of strife and hatred between England and Ireland. I am certain that your own desire for peace coincides with mine. You will want to avoid any chance that later the Irish tragedy may serve as moral justification of a world war inspired by financial and naval rivalries. On this assumption, am confident you will expedite passport."

Mrs. Thomas MacCurtain, whose husband, McSwire's predecessor as lord mayor of Cork was murdered last March, has cabled the commission that her health will not permit her to go to America. She suggests that her two sisters be invited to testify in her place.

FEELS CONSTANTINE CANNOT COME BACK

PARIS, Nov. 26.—Ex-King Constantine is expected to arrive in Athens on Monday or Tuesday, said an Athens dispatch to the Matin today.

NICE, Nov. 26.—Eleutherios Venizelos, former Premier of Greece, who exiled himself from his native land after the monarchist victory in the Greek general election, declared today that Ex-King Constantine could not return to Athens.

"The Greek people are not unanimous in wishing the return of the former king, and I do not believe he could return," said M. Venizelos. "As for myself, I shall rest and watch future events."

M. Venizelos intimated that some other representative of royalty other than Constantine might be acceptable to the non-monarchist population of Greece and the powers.

The ex-premier arrived yesterday from Piraeus, Messina.

PEACE TREATY DEAD AT SHORT SESSION

Daily informal conferences are being held among Senate and House Republican leaders at the Capitol over legislation for the short session and plans for the extra session.

While there is much difference of view as to what should be done, Republicans generally agree no action will be taken this winter with the peace treaty and league covenant.

If President Wilson resubmits the treaty, the Republicans say, it will be given no attention, save as individuals may choose to discuss it.

However, there is little likelihood the President will resubmit it. In circles close to the White House, it is asserted the President, in his last annual message, will express his views on world affairs, but will not present the treaty again.

He will also discuss many domestic questions, but not in the expectation of action within the period of his Administration. Rather, the message will be framed with a view to laying before the country in a way in which they will be officially presented his views on a number of important subjects.

Nurse, 50, Advertises In Paper For Husband

Specifies One of About Fifty.
Gets Good Bid and Turns
Away "Hobo."

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Miss Catherine Louise Stack, fifty-year-old nurse, "full of pep for love's sake," living at 7 Clinton place, this city, with an $8,000 "shack" in Newport, who advertised in a Philadelphia paper for a husband, denied yesterday she would marry only a Philadelphia.

Miss Stack, who has been a trained nurse the last thirty years, and earns $35 a week at her calling, was reported in a Philadelphia dispatch yesterday as saying that men in the Quaker City are "staid, sober and respectable," but that in New York, where she has lived fifteen years the first thing a man does is "run around with other women."

She said yesterday that New York men are "flirts" and "falling out of the windows every day after women." But admitted that if the right kind of "industrious, sober, dark man of fifty" came around, she wouldn't look for her money, she would marry him. As for Philadelphia, she was there only one day in her life, November 12, when she inserted the advertisement. And she didn't go there for that reason.

Miss Stack was annoyed yesterday because a tramp, a "regular hobo," had called after seeing the story. If there's one thing her husband must be it's a good dresser, and this man had a collar on that was yellow. She slammed the door in his face.

One redeeming feature was a letter yesterday morning from Philadelphia. It was from a man who smokes, but has no bad habits. He's a little too young, Miss Stack said, being only forty-eight, while she prefers a suitor of from fifty to fifty-four. But he has "excellent teeth," has "never been sick since he had the measles at seven," thinks women younger than he is "light-headed and frivolous," and makes $155 a month. "which is more than Rogers made," Rogers was her last suitor and she still has a wedding ring he gave her. She refused to marry him, as he was

HERE'S "IDEAL MAN" NURSE WOULD WED

WANTED—A husband. He need NOT come from Philadelphia.

Must be an American, but shouldn't come from Newport. Must be a good dresser and earn more than $25 a week.

Can have any colored hair but red; black preferred.

Must be 5 feet 11 or 6 feet, and not be a runt of a man.

Must have good disposition and not be a "nagger."

Can come from most countries except England, but must not be "fresh" from Ireland.

Address Miss Catherine Louise Stack, No. 7 Clinton place, New York.

making only $25 a week. His first name was Alexander and he wanted her to call him "Al," which was another reason she wouldn't marry him. Her other suitor was a man named Curtis, who died fourteen or fifteen years ago. He helped plaster her Newport house and did a good job. She wouldn't marry a Newporter, for "Newport men haven't enough to maintain a wife." Her future husband must have more than $25 a week.

Her ideal man, she said, is one 5 feet 11 or 6 feet, "some one who isn't a runt." He can have light, gray, or dark hair, but she prefers dark. Though dark men are "thinking," and Miss Stack believes a man over fifty shouldn't be "thinking or jealous."

In her thirty years as graduate nurse Miss Stack has come in contact with more than 700 children, and she doesn't even want one child in the house. Her husband may have dogs and other pets, however.

"I am the supreme woman," said Miss Stack. "I want my husband to understand that. I don't want any 'other woman's man.' He must be gentle and home-like and not snappy or nagging."

The Gift Rush is on with Prices 25% Reduced

WITH the preliminary fall holiday passed, people now turn in earnest to the style of buying Christmas gifts early. And the early shoppers will be in time to save 25% of the money they have figured on, when they come here.

Men's silk neckwear, shirts, bathrobes, houserobes of silk or velvet, smoking jackets, jewelry, house slippers, walking sticks, umbrellas, gloves, and the many, many other gifts men appreciate, are reduced 25% at the Nationally Known Store. All excepting the shirts—they are reduced 30%.

The beginning of the Christmas shopping season finds us in the midst of a reconstruction in business.
