

DRIVER KILLED AS CAR FALLS THROUGH SHAFT
NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 25.—Falling through an open elevator shaft in an automobile a distance of two floors to the basement of the Hippodrome Motor Car Co., Marvin Conner, thirty, was instantly killed here at noon yesterday.

The gears of the car accidentally meshed, causing the car to head into the open shaft and turn turtle while falling to the basement, pinning his body underneath.

TOWN CLOCK STRIKES 750 HOURS AWAY; COLLAPSES
McCONNELLSBURG, Pa., July 25.—The old clock in the Fulton county courthouse became disorderly, making such a racket in the early morning that the whole town was aroused. From 3:45 to 5 o'clock it struck continuously, at the rate of about ten strokes a minute, and then collapsed in a stupor.

The clock has a long record of offenses, and residents of McConnellsburg are strong for replacing it.

'BUTTERFLY' NAMED IN SHAW DIVORCE FLITS FROM SIGHT

Follies Girl Accused by Wife of Rich Broker Disappears With Her Mother.

NEW YORK, July 25.—Swathed in black capes, Madrienne La Barre, "Butterfly Girl" of the Ziegfeld Follies, named in the divorce proceedings of Mrs. Philip M. Shaw, has disappeared with her mother from their home at Somerville, Mass.

The Massachusetts record of the divorce obtained by Mrs. Shaw from her first husband, William M. Jordan, will be filed here today. The motion for her alimony and counsel fees in the present case also is to be heard. Shaw, wealthy broker and banker, has alleged that his wife's divorce was not completed when they were married on January 16, 1902.

The "Butterfly Girl" and her mother have denied vigorously the allegations of Mrs. Shaw that the broker had been providing for them. Miss La Barre says her heart has been broken by the revelation that Shaw is married.

After dark mother and daughter stole out of the little two-family house at 45 Mason street, Somerville. The house is deserted and shades drawn.

Attorneys for Mrs. Shaw in Boston told her marriage to the broker had been legal. Records show that Mary Elinor Jordan, the present Mrs. Shaw, was married to the New York man three months and twelve days after her first divorce.

BOOK PRINTS OUT WEAK TRAITS OF D. C. CELEBRITIES

"Mirrors of Washington" Gives Pertinent Facts on Noted, Says Hapgood.

By NORMAN HAPGOOD.
A clever analysis of the weak points of Washington's leading men appears in a book published today. It is called "The Mirrors of Washington," and it is written anonymously by a cultivated author who has a predilection for the failures of other people.

The author has known conspicuous people—it is his specialty—from Roosevelt on. He has seen them rise and fall more roughly than they are treated. Those who get off best of those who are present in the book are to Great Britain, there is least reason to envy.

Virtues of President.
Nevertheless, in spite of the brevity with which virtues and powers are conceded and the joy with which shortcomings are elaborated, this series of sketches offers qualities in criticism rare in Washington. It has humor, or rather wit; it has a well-stored memory; it has knowledge of other countries and of books.

I believe the regular critics call background. It alludes to Browning and Samuel Butler without referring to them, if you know what I mean.

President Harding, according to this critic, has for his greatest powers modesty, tact, and a natural reflection of the attributes and prejudices of the average man. Out of his modesty about the president himself, has proceeded the strongest Cabinet Washington has had in a generation.

Against ex-President Wilson the author is almost savage. He has found in his youth he acquired an inferiority complex from deciding that he was unfit for law or business and so went to teach in a girls' school. Although Wilson had not then heard of Freud, he knew there was nothing for him to do but overcome himself and his lifelong arrogance.

Secretary Hughes, according to the author, has the best mind connected with Government in Washington. His whiskers, which used to be cut to his chin, were a masterpiece of suggestion. A cosmopolitan minister of foreign affairs. The politicians do not like him. "They feel the hippopotamus."

"If he should stay to tea, I thought, there won't be much for us."

The chapter on Colonel House suffers from omniscience. "House gets his visions of the brotherhood of man and the rest of it second hand from Frederick S. Kelle, who read as he is, has overlooked some of the documents and dates in Colonel House's life."

An Estimate of Taft.
While I am on this subject it may be said that an essay mastery of manifold difficulties is an attribute of cleverness, and this book is cleverly and attractively clever. "Mr. Taft was a circuit judge for an extremely short time and was neither better nor worse in those brief months than twenty years ago, then twenty others."

The essay on Hoover is interesting, centering around the usual idea about his publicity sense. This statement is always made about people like Roosevelt, Sarah Bernhardt and even Wilson, whose powers attract attention.

With a character like Lodge, whose key motive is venom, the author's gifts are at their best. As the advertisements say, the sketch must be read to be appreciated. For the next edition—I am sure there will be one—I contribute this tale.

It is related that Charles William Elliot said: "I have known Cabot Lodge all his life and I never knew him to have a generous emotion."

The author makes a felicitous conclusion to his sketch by quoting Macaulay's Review of Barre's Memoirs: "We now propose to do him, by the blessing of God, full and signal justice."

The final chapter, on Borah, contains a welcome absence of certainty: "He is virtually unknown in that strange bedlam composed largely of social climbers and official poseurs called Washington society."

He is not understood by the other Senators. Strangest of all, he is not understood by the author.

This Week's Photoplays

"The Man Who," Delightful Comedy, Based on Saturday Evening Post Story, at Palace—Good Programs at Other Theaters.

LOEW'S PALACE—
"The Man Who."

It is difficult for any reviewer to definitely say whether the story is greater than the story in "The Man Who," the Maxwell Karger adaptation of Lloyd Osborne's Saturday Evening Post story, which began a week's engagement at Loew's Palace Theater yesterday.

In keeping with the tone of the production, the management offers a brilliant array of extra added screen and musical attractions that combine to make the program one of unalloyed interest and fascination.

METROPOLITAN—
Viola Dana and Harold Lloyd.
A double feature bill composed of camera subjects of sufficient diversity to appeal to a wide catholicity of tastes holds the screen at the Metropolitan Theater this week.

Viola Dana, one of the most gifted and most versatile of silent drama's younger stars, provides five reels of serious comedy in "The House of the Living Dead," a story of a woman who is haunted by the ghost of her husband.

Harold Lloyd, most likable of the screen comedians, appears in a new three-reel comedy of unexpected twists and continuous laughter, "Among Those Present."

"Home Stuff" is a photodrama that affords Miss Dana ample opportunity to do those things in which she has been proved most efficient. Her role of Madge Joy is a "small time" leading lady with a repertoire company that has come upon hard times. To salvage his production, which has been attacked by the sheriff, the company manager engages a new leading woman whose husband seems to have money, leaving Madge stranded at a rural way station 400 miles from the city.

The simple life of the farm where she seeks refuge, the assurance that meals will be regular and the genial companionship of the young man of the house, gradually persuade her to abandon the footlights and become his bride. It then develops that the girl who took her place with the troupe in the city is the daughter of the household in which Madge has found so happy a place. In order to soften the heart of an irate father, she agrees to kill the love of her son for her, provided only that the father will permit his daughter to resume her place in the home. Again all seems dark for the plucky little girl, but in the end, her own good nature and her own love for the young man who is as completely satisfying as it is unexpected.

In "Among Those Present," Harold Lloyd goes hunting in a successful search for romance and laughs. The central figure in the action is a young New York bell-hop from a swaggy New York hotel, who feels that all he lacks to be as much of a boulevard as the swell he is the property of. While aping the manners of the very rich in garments that have been given him to check, he attracts the attention of a society girl who plots to shake down the O'Brien of the nouveau riche for a cool million or so. The bell-hop is engaged to impersonate Lord Algernon Abbott at a dinner party at the O'Brien house party and fox hunt. Having bragged himself into a totally false position as one of the world's greatest aristocrats, the bell-hop is given Dynamite, the means to his riches, to ride to the hounds. It is here that fun that is fast and furious reaches the swiftness and power of a cyclone.

The bill for the week is rounded out by the new issue of the Pathe News, a new symposium of the Literary Digest, "Copies of the Day," a marvelously beautiful picture, "Through Winding Walls," depicting the natural grandeur of the Ausable Chasm and River, and enlivening oracular accompaniment.

CRANDALL'S—
"Trust Your Wife."
Katherine "Lead" Donahoe, the personification of feminine loveliness, in the picture star of the bill arranged for initial Washington presentation throughout the current week at Crandall's Theater, in "Trust Your Wife," one of the season's most intensely interesting attractions. Yesterday's capacity crowds offered conclusive proof of the popularity of "The Trust Your Wife," and the picture's reputation bore mute evidence of the grip of her latest vehicle.

"Trust Your Wife" is a screen adaptation of H. S. Sheldon's successful stage play, and has for its leading figures a young married couple who visit New York to "put over" a money-making scheme with no more capital than a few dollars. The husband, a young man, has been living far beyond their means in order to give the impression of financial stability, they seek the aid of one Slater T. Holcomb, millionaire and reprobate. Holcomb brings pressure to bear against the husband, Francis Hastings, who has learned of Holcomb's scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

The husband, who has learned of Hastings' scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

CRANDALL'S—
"Trust Your Wife."
Katherine "Lead" Donahoe, the personification of feminine loveliness, in the picture star of the bill arranged for initial Washington presentation throughout the current week at Crandall's Theater, in "Trust Your Wife," one of the season's most intensely interesting attractions. Yesterday's capacity crowds offered conclusive proof of the popularity of "The Trust Your Wife," and the picture's reputation bore mute evidence of the grip of her latest vehicle.

"Trust Your Wife" is a screen adaptation of H. S. Sheldon's successful stage play, and has for its leading figures a young married couple who visit New York to "put over" a money-making scheme with no more capital than a few dollars. The husband, a young man, has been living far beyond their means in order to give the impression of financial stability, they seek the aid of one Slater T. Holcomb, millionaire and reprobate. Holcomb brings pressure to bear against the husband, Francis Hastings, who has learned of Holcomb's scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

The husband, who has learned of Hastings' scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

CRANDALL'S—
"Trust Your Wife."
Katherine "Lead" Donahoe, the personification of feminine loveliness, in the picture star of the bill arranged for initial Washington presentation throughout the current week at Crandall's Theater, in "Trust Your Wife," one of the season's most intensely interesting attractions. Yesterday's capacity crowds offered conclusive proof of the popularity of "The Trust Your Wife," and the picture's reputation bore mute evidence of the grip of her latest vehicle.

"Trust Your Wife" is a screen adaptation of H. S. Sheldon's successful stage play, and has for its leading figures a young married couple who visit New York to "put over" a money-making scheme with no more capital than a few dollars. The husband, a young man, has been living far beyond their means in order to give the impression of financial stability, they seek the aid of one Slater T. Holcomb, millionaire and reprobate. Holcomb brings pressure to bear against the husband, Francis Hastings, who has learned of Holcomb's scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

The husband, who has learned of Hastings' scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

CRANDALL'S—
"Trust Your Wife."
Katherine "Lead" Donahoe, the personification of feminine loveliness, in the picture star of the bill arranged for initial Washington presentation throughout the current week at Crandall's Theater, in "Trust Your Wife," one of the season's most intensely interesting attractions. Yesterday's capacity crowds offered conclusive proof of the popularity of "The Trust Your Wife," and the picture's reputation bore mute evidence of the grip of her latest vehicle.

"Trust Your Wife" is a screen adaptation of H. S. Sheldon's successful stage play, and has for its leading figures a young married couple who visit New York to "put over" a money-making scheme with no more capital than a few dollars. The husband, a young man, has been living far beyond their means in order to give the impression of financial stability, they seek the aid of one Slater T. Holcomb, millionaire and reprobate. Holcomb brings pressure to bear against the husband, Francis Hastings, who has learned of Holcomb's scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

The husband, who has learned of Hastings' scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

CRANDALL'S—
"Trust Your Wife."
Katherine "Lead" Donahoe, the personification of feminine loveliness, in the picture star of the bill arranged for initial Washington presentation throughout the current week at Crandall's Theater, in "Trust Your Wife," one of the season's most intensely interesting attractions. Yesterday's capacity crowds offered conclusive proof of the popularity of "The Trust Your Wife," and the picture's reputation bore mute evidence of the grip of her latest vehicle.

"Trust Your Wife" is a screen adaptation of H. S. Sheldon's successful stage play, and has for its leading figures a young married couple who visit New York to "put over" a money-making scheme with no more capital than a few dollars. The husband, a young man, has been living far beyond their means in order to give the impression of financial stability, they seek the aid of one Slater T. Holcomb, millionaire and reprobate. Holcomb brings pressure to bear against the husband, Francis Hastings, who has learned of Holcomb's scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

The husband, who has learned of Hastings' scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

CRANDALL'S—
"Trust Your Wife."
Katherine "Lead" Donahoe, the personification of feminine loveliness, in the picture star of the bill arranged for initial Washington presentation throughout the current week at Crandall's Theater, in "Trust Your Wife," one of the season's most intensely interesting attractions. Yesterday's capacity crowds offered conclusive proof of the popularity of "The Trust Your Wife," and the picture's reputation bore mute evidence of the grip of her latest vehicle.

"Trust Your Wife" is a screen adaptation of H. S. Sheldon's successful stage play, and has for its leading figures a young married couple who visit New York to "put over" a money-making scheme with no more capital than a few dollars. The husband, a young man, has been living far beyond their means in order to give the impression of financial stability, they seek the aid of one Slater T. Holcomb, millionaire and reprobate. Holcomb brings pressure to bear against the husband, Francis Hastings, who has learned of Holcomb's scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

The husband, who has learned of Hastings' scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

CRANDALL'S—
"Trust Your Wife."
Katherine "Lead" Donahoe, the personification of feminine loveliness, in the picture star of the bill arranged for initial Washington presentation throughout the current week at Crandall's Theater, in "Trust Your Wife," one of the season's most intensely interesting attractions. Yesterday's capacity crowds offered conclusive proof of the popularity of "The Trust Your Wife," and the picture's reputation bore mute evidence of the grip of her latest vehicle.

"Trust Your Wife" is a screen adaptation of H. S. Sheldon's successful stage play, and has for its leading figures a young married couple who visit New York to "put over" a money-making scheme with no more capital than a few dollars. The husband, a young man, has been living far beyond their means in order to give the impression of financial stability, they seek the aid of one Slater T. Holcomb, millionaire and reprobate. Holcomb brings pressure to bear against the husband, Francis Hastings, who has learned of Holcomb's scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

The husband, who has learned of Hastings' scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

CRANDALL'S—
"Trust Your Wife."
Katherine "Lead" Donahoe, the personification of feminine loveliness, in the picture star of the bill arranged for initial Washington presentation throughout the current week at Crandall's Theater, in "Trust Your Wife," one of the season's most intensely interesting attractions. Yesterday's capacity crowds offered conclusive proof of the popularity of "The Trust Your Wife," and the picture's reputation bore mute evidence of the grip of her latest vehicle.

"Trust Your Wife" is a screen adaptation of H. S. Sheldon's successful stage play, and has for its leading figures a young married couple who visit New York to "put over" a money-making scheme with no more capital than a few dollars. The husband, a young man, has been living far beyond their means in order to give the impression of financial stability, they seek the aid of one Slater T. Holcomb, millionaire and reprobate. Holcomb brings pressure to bear against the husband, Francis Hastings, who has learned of Holcomb's scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

The husband, who has learned of Hastings' scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

finds himself burdened with a too-tentative wife and his thoughts wander toward the old sweetheart, now married to a man she does not love. The woman's instincts of a mistress are aroused by the renewed interest of her old sweetheart and gradually the two approach a domestic scandal that would involve both their families. The two, however, manage to intercept a note between the two and in the resultant showdown, both women learn the basic errors of their matrimonial ways.

The star of the show is a gorgeous gown, luxurious motor-cars, palatial home, rare tapestries and furnishings and all the other atmosphere of luxurious living have for women in general been emphatically recognized by Miss Weber in the production, and "Too Wise Wives" is at once one of the most dramatic and one of the most gorgeous of all Loew's Palace photoplays.

In keeping with the tone of the production, the management offers a brilliant array of extra added screen and musical attractions that combine to make the program one of unalloyed interest and fascination.

LOEW'S PALACE—
"The Man Who."
It is difficult for any reviewer to definitely say whether the story is greater than the story in "The Man Who," the Maxwell Karger adaptation of Lloyd Osborne's Saturday Evening Post story, which began a week's engagement at Loew's Palace Theater yesterday.

In keeping with the tone of the production, the management offers a brilliant array of extra added screen and musical attractions that combine to make the program one of unalloyed interest and fascination.

METROPOLITAN—
Viola Dana and Harold Lloyd.
A double feature bill composed of camera subjects of sufficient diversity to appeal to a wide catholicity of tastes holds the screen at the Metropolitan Theater this week.

Viola Dana, one of the most gifted and most versatile of silent drama's younger stars, provides five reels of serious comedy in "The House of the Living Dead," a story of a woman who is haunted by the ghost of her husband.

Harold Lloyd, most likable of the screen comedians, appears in a new three-reel comedy of unexpected twists and continuous laughter, "Among Those Present."

CRANDALL'S—
"Trust Your Wife."
Katherine "Lead" Donahoe, the personification of feminine loveliness, in the picture star of the bill arranged for initial Washington presentation throughout the current week at Crandall's Theater, in "Trust Your Wife," one of the season's most intensely interesting attractions. Yesterday's capacity crowds offered conclusive proof of the popularity of "The Trust Your Wife," and the picture's reputation bore mute evidence of the grip of her latest vehicle.

"Trust Your Wife" is a screen adaptation of H. S. Sheldon's successful stage play, and has for its leading figures a young married couple who visit New York to "put over" a money-making scheme with no more capital than a few dollars. The husband, a young man, has been living far beyond their means in order to give the impression of financial stability, they seek the aid of one Slater T. Holcomb, millionaire and reprobate. Holcomb brings pressure to bear against the husband, Francis Hastings, who has learned of Holcomb's scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

The husband, who has learned of Hastings' scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

CRANDALL'S—
"Trust Your Wife."
Katherine "Lead" Donahoe, the personification of feminine loveliness, in the picture star of the bill arranged for initial Washington presentation throughout the current week at Crandall's Theater, in "Trust Your Wife," one of the season's most intensely interesting attractions. Yesterday's capacity crowds offered conclusive proof of the popularity of "The Trust Your Wife," and the picture's reputation bore mute evidence of the grip of her latest vehicle.

"Trust Your Wife" is a screen adaptation of H. S. Sheldon's successful stage play, and has for its leading figures a young married couple who visit New York to "put over" a money-making scheme with no more capital than a few dollars. The husband, a young man, has been living far beyond their means in order to give the impression of financial stability, they seek the aid of one Slater T. Holcomb, millionaire and reprobate. Holcomb brings pressure to bear against the husband, Francis Hastings, who has learned of Holcomb's scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

The husband, who has learned of Hastings' scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

CRANDALL'S—
"Trust Your Wife."
Katherine "Lead" Donahoe, the personification of feminine loveliness, in the picture star of the bill arranged for initial Washington presentation throughout the current week at Crandall's Theater, in "Trust Your Wife," one of the season's most intensely interesting attractions. Yesterday's capacity crowds offered conclusive proof of the popularity of "The Trust Your Wife," and the picture's reputation bore mute evidence of the grip of her latest vehicle.

"Trust Your Wife" is a screen adaptation of H. S. Sheldon's successful stage play, and has for its leading figures a young married couple who visit New York to "put over" a money-making scheme with no more capital than a few dollars. The husband, a young man, has been living far beyond their means in order to give the impression of financial stability, they seek the aid of one Slater T. Holcomb, millionaire and reprobate. Holcomb brings pressure to bear against the husband, Francis Hastings, who has learned of Holcomb's scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

The husband, who has learned of Hastings' scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

CRANDALL'S—
"Trust Your Wife."
Katherine "Lead" Donahoe, the personification of feminine loveliness, in the picture star of the bill arranged for initial Washington presentation throughout the current week at Crandall's Theater, in "Trust Your Wife," one of the season's most intensely interesting attractions. Yesterday's capacity crowds offered conclusive proof of the popularity of "The Trust Your Wife," and the picture's reputation bore mute evidence of the grip of her latest vehicle.

"Trust Your Wife" is a screen adaptation of H. S. Sheldon's successful stage play, and has for its leading figures a young married couple who visit New York to "put over" a money-making scheme with no more capital than a few dollars. The husband, a young man, has been living far beyond their means in order to give the impression of financial stability, they seek the aid of one Slater T. Holcomb, millionaire and reprobate. Holcomb brings pressure to bear against the husband, Francis Hastings, who has learned of Holcomb's scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

The husband, who has learned of Hastings' scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

CRANDALL'S—
"Trust Your Wife."
Katherine "Lead" Donahoe, the personification of feminine loveliness, in the picture star of the bill arranged for initial Washington presentation throughout the current week at Crandall's Theater, in "Trust Your Wife," one of the season's most intensely interesting attractions. Yesterday's capacity crowds offered conclusive proof of the popularity of "The Trust Your Wife," and the picture's reputation bore mute evidence of the grip of her latest vehicle.

"Trust Your Wife" is a screen adaptation of H. S. Sheldon's successful stage play, and has for its leading figures a young married couple who visit New York to "put over" a money-making scheme with no more capital than a few dollars. The husband, a young man, has been living far beyond their means in order to give the impression of financial stability, they seek the aid of one Slater T. Holcomb, millionaire and reprobate. Holcomb brings pressure to bear against the husband, Francis Hastings, who has learned of Holcomb's scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

The husband, who has learned of Hastings' scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

CRANDALL'S—
"Trust Your Wife."
Katherine "Lead" Donahoe, the personification of feminine loveliness, in the picture star of the bill arranged for initial Washington presentation throughout the current week at Crandall's Theater, in "Trust Your Wife," one of the season's most intensely interesting attractions. Yesterday's capacity crowds offered conclusive proof of the popularity of "The Trust Your Wife," and the picture's reputation bore mute evidence of the grip of her latest vehicle.

"Trust Your Wife" is a screen adaptation of H. S. Sheldon's successful stage play, and has for its leading figures a young married couple who visit New York to "put over" a money-making scheme with no more capital than a few dollars. The husband, a young man, has been living far beyond their means in order to give the impression of financial stability, they seek the aid of one Slater T. Holcomb, millionaire and reprobate. Holcomb brings pressure to bear against the husband, Francis Hastings, who has learned of Holcomb's scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

The husband, who has learned of Hastings' scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

CRANDALL'S—
"Trust Your Wife."
Katherine "Lead" Donahoe, the personification of feminine loveliness, in the picture star of the bill arranged for initial Washington presentation throughout the current week at Crandall's Theater, in "Trust Your Wife," one of the season's most intensely interesting attractions. Yesterday's capacity crowds offered conclusive proof of the popularity of "The Trust Your Wife," and the picture's reputation bore mute evidence of the grip of her latest vehicle.

"Trust Your Wife" is a screen adaptation of H. S. Sheldon's successful stage play, and has for its leading figures a young married couple who visit New York to "put over" a money-making scheme with no more capital than a few dollars. The husband, a young man, has been living far beyond their means in order to give the impression of financial stability, they seek the aid of one Slater T. Holcomb, millionaire and reprobate. Holcomb brings pressure to bear against the husband, Francis Hastings, who has learned of Holcomb's scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

The husband, who has learned of Hastings' scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

CRANDALL'S—
"Trust Your Wife."
Katherine "Lead" Donahoe, the personification of feminine loveliness, in the picture star of the bill arranged for initial Washington presentation throughout the current week at Crandall's Theater, in "Trust Your Wife," one of the season's most intensely interesting attractions. Yesterday's capacity crowds offered conclusive proof of the popularity of "The Trust Your Wife," and the picture's reputation bore mute evidence of the grip of her latest vehicle.

"Trust Your Wife" is a screen adaptation of H. S. Sheldon's successful stage play, and has for its leading figures a young married couple who visit New York to "put over" a money-making scheme with no more capital than a few dollars. The husband, a young man, has been living far beyond their means in order to give the impression of financial stability, they seek the aid of one Slater T. Holcomb, millionaire and reprobate. Holcomb brings pressure to bear against the husband, Francis Hastings, who has learned of Holcomb's scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

The husband, who has learned of Hastings' scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

CRANDALL'S—
"Trust Your Wife."
Katherine "Lead" Donahoe, the personification of feminine loveliness, in the picture star of the bill arranged for initial Washington presentation throughout the current week at Crandall's Theater, in "Trust Your Wife," one of the season's most intensely interesting attractions. Yesterday's capacity crowds offered conclusive proof of the popularity of "The Trust Your Wife," and the picture's reputation bore mute evidence of the grip of her latest vehicle.

"Trust Your Wife" is a screen adaptation of H. S. Sheldon's successful stage play, and has for its leading figures a young married couple who visit New York to "put over" a money-making scheme with no more capital than a few dollars. The husband, a young man, has been living far beyond their means in order to give the impression of financial stability, they seek the aid of one Slater T. Holcomb, millionaire and reprobate. Holcomb brings pressure to bear against the husband, Francis Hastings, who has learned of Holcomb's scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

The husband, who has learned of Hastings' scheme, and in the end, Hastings, in his behalf, before she can leave the craft has got under way and is steaming slowly down the river.

close with a sensational and most difficult series of athletic feats that pleased greatly and gave just the proper finish to the picture.

The photodramatic portion of the program included "Lovetime," in which Shirley Mason was featured. Miss Mason has another of those pleasant and extremely palatable romances in which she excels—a romance of buoyant youth and loyal love. Her role is that of a beautiful peasant girl, hearted action of titled aristocracy, who refuses to bow to the social conventions of the circle in which he was reared. The story is made up of the obstacles thrown in the way of the young couple to prevent their union. It is one of much charm and charmingly acted by the star and a most capable supporting cast.

Short film features showing careful selection, together with special orchestral numbers arranged by Director Arthur J. Manvell, and including an overture, Brockman's Jamboree, and as exit march, "The Florida Moon," complete two hours of entertainment of the highest caliber.

Chesapeake Beach.
Thousands crowded the boardwalk and picnic grounds at Chesapeake Beach yesterday. The first place in popularity was the salt-water bathing and, wearing vari-colored bathing suits of the most modern cut, hundreds of pretty mermaids splashed about in the water.

The half-mile steamer pier was crowded with fishing enthusiasts. Trout and hardheads were very accommodating and bit viciously at the bait.

Prof. Ralph Garren served toddle music for free dancing on the breezecooled pavilion. Others promenade the gay boardwalk or patronized the many amusements, including the giant Derby racer and the merry-go-round.

Marshall Hall.
Great interest was manifested in the many amusements at Marshall Hall yesterday when hundreds of Washingtonians availed themselves of the management's generous offer of free admission to the roller coaster, Ventian swings, whip, carousel and joy rider. A limited number of passes were given out last week, and his inducement, such as was the appreciation that the experiment will be repeated this week.

Chicago Financier, Wife, and Daughter Vanish as Police Spread Net Nation-Wide.
CHICAGO, July 25.—Police of a continent today took up the hunt for Warren C. Spurgin, missing president of the Chicago Trust Company, who is accused of looting the institution of more than $1,000,000.

Although the search is centering chiefly along the Canadian border, the net which is being thrown out for Spurgin extended today to other sections of the country. It was expected that evidence against Spurgin would be presented to the grand jury today, and his indictment expected.

Discovery in Detroit of an automobile owned by Mrs. Spurgin and evidence that the wife of the missing banker and her daughter were in Detroit a day or two ago, led to the belief that Spurgin has fled toward Canada, and that his wife and daughter are enroute to join him.

Among the latest clues to Spurgin's possible whereabouts was a report received today from Des Moines, Iowa, that friends of Spurgin at Panora, Iowa, believed him to be hiding either at Mobile, Ala., or "somewhere in Florida." Spurgin was reported to have been in Panora at one time was connected with a bank there. According to dispatches from Panora, Spurgin fled to Florida for a time twenty years ago when he became involved in difficulties with the Guthrie County National Bank.

DYNAMITE FUMES CAUSE 2 DEATHS IN PA. MINE
TREVORTON, Pa., July 25.—Overcome by heavy smoke which accumulated after they had fired several charges of dynamite in a mine blast at North Franklin colliery here, Fred Swinhart, thirty-five years old, and Frank Smith, twenty-eight, miners, both residents of this place, were suffocated by the deadly fumes before they could reach safety.

After becoming unconscious, Swinhart fell 100 feet. His skull was crushed and his neck was broken. Smith was found dead at the face of the mine chamber.

WILL ORDERS $80 COFFIN; $8,000 LEFT TO CHURCH
SUNBURY, Pa., July 25.—That she did not believe in elaborate coffins was indicated in the will of Mrs. Elizabeth Kerstetter, of Dalmatia, which was probated here yesterday. She specifically directed that "my coffin shall not cost more than $80."

The remainder of the estate is given to the Stone Valley Lutheran Church, and is said to total upward of $8,000.

Took His Bed to Grave.
POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., July 25.—Brown Hugglett, Howell County's pioneer settler, has been buried with a feather mattress in his rude home-hewn coffin. He was buried in his nightgown as he entered the "long sleep."

These oddities of his funeral were in compliance with his last request.

Letter Goes 2 Miles in 4 Days.
MARTIN'S FERRY, July 25.—Four days elapsed between the time when a letter posted in Wheeling, W. Va., and its arrival in its destination here. The two towns are just across the Ohio river from each other but the distance, via bridges, is two miles.

Minister Presents Armenians.
Dr. Henry Allen Tupper, pastor of the First Baptist Church, in preaching last night on the "Crimes of the Centuries" presented to his congregation two Armenians. He told of the hardships suffered by these Armenians, relatives of whom had been massacred by the Turks.

STOREKEEPER, NEAR 100, TELLS HOW TO LIVE LONG
YEAGERTOWN, Pa., July 25.—J. O. Yeager called upon Barr Spangler, at Marietta, Pa., this week to ascertain what course he followed to promote his long and active life. Mr. Spangler is the owner of a store in Marietta, of which he is active head in spite of the fact that he soon will celebrate his 100th birthday. Spangler's baby son is sixty-five years old. Mr. Spangler said he attributes his long life to his diet and the fact that he sleeps well nights. He has eaten only two meals a day for fifty years. Breakfast consists of one egg, potatoes, bread and butter, eaten sparingly. He has not touched meat for half a century, never tasted coffee, never felt the twinges of rheumatism, and never took a drink of liquor in his life. He smoked one cigar and it made him sick.

He told of the glories of the Volstead act and how it is working out.

POCAHONTAS, REPAIRED. TO START HOME JULY 31
NAPLES, July 25.—The steamship Pocahontas, which was damaged on her recent voyage to this port from New York, allegedly by members of her crew, has finished repairs. It is expected she will sail for New York July 31 with 300 passengers, all Americans.

LOEW'S PALACE
Continues 10:30 A.M.—11 P.M.
NOW PLAYING
BERT LYTELL
With Lucy Cottin in
"THE MAN WHO"
A METRO PICTURE
Beginning Sunday
"Foolish Matrons"
With Robert Roworth

LOEW'S COLUMBIA
Continues 10:30 A.M.—11 P.M.
NOW PLAYING
Paramount Presents
TOO WISE WIVES
With
Claire Windsor—Mona Lisa and Louis Calhern
A Lois Weber Production
Beginning Sunday
"The Lost Romance"
With Conrad Nagel—Lois Wilson—Jack Holt

CRANDALL'S 10th and Col. Rd.
F at 10th
METROPOLITAN
THIS WEEK
10:30 A. M. to 11 P. M.
VIOLA DANA
In "HOME STUFF"
HAROLD LLOYD
In "Among Those Present"
CRANDALL'S 10th and Col. Rd.
KICKERBOCKER
TODAY
Beginning at 6:30 P. M.
VIOLA DANA
In "HOME STUFF"
HAROLD LLOYD
In "Among Those Present"

B. F. KEITH'S 35c and Up
DAILY 2:15 SUN. 2:15 HOLY'S 1:30, 2:15, 3:45, 5:15, 6:45, 8:15
Arrangements by Mrs. Frohman
ETHEL BARRYMORE & CO.
"THE TWELVE POUND LOOK"
TOM PATRICKOLA assisted by Irene Delaney in "The Girl and the Detective"
"FOOL" JACK MCGOWAN, CHARLES OLCOTT & MARY ANN, RIGHT FLYING HALL, DE WILSON, WILLIAM GILES, Genevieve Houghton, Brent Hayes, Lawton, Others.

STR. ST. JOHNS
Leaves 7th Street Wharf
40 Mile Monthly Trips
Mon.-Wed.-Fri. 7:15 P. M.
COLONIAL BEACH
Tues., Thurs., Sunday, 9 a. m.
Sat., 2:30 p. m. Free Dancing.

A Cosmopolitan Production
THE WOMAN GOD CHANGED
—Quivering with Dramatic Intensity and Heart Interest.
It is a Paramount Picture
SEE IT AT
CRANDALL'S APOLLO
634 H St. N. E.
COSMOS THEATRE
919 Pa. Ave. N. W.
Entire 7th Street Sunday, July 25
HOWARD THEATRE
620 T St. N. W.
AND TOMORROW

GLEN ECHO
FREE ADMISSION
AMUSEMENT PARK
10th and Wisconsin Sts.
ELECTRICALLY COOLED
Ball Room Adds to Pleasure of
DANCING
TO HEAR NEW MUSIC
"HEARING IS BELIEVING."
DANCING
GLOVER—414 2nd St. priv. lessons any time
His course ends Monday, 11:00, 12:15, 1:30.

LANSBURGH & BROTHER
TUESDAY STORE NEWS
You May Well Smile Blue Ribbon Day Shoppers You Are Saving Money
Ready-made Sashes
Of the most expensive ribbons in all colors and widths 9 to 12 inches. Roman stripes, fancy satin and faille; finished with knitted fringe. We will make them at half regular prices for tomorrow only. $8.25
Now $2.13 to $2.15

6-inch Satin Ribbons
Assortment of the season's wanted colors; fine quality for sashes, hair bows, millinery, fancy work, etc. Tuesday, yard, 12c
First Floor.

Seasonable Wash Goods
This three of a kind not only beats a pair, but beats anything of its kind ever offered right at the mid-season of its wearing time. Not only that—every item is predicted for next season's wear as well. Don't miss these Blue Ribbon Specials. $1.00