The "honest dollar" of the gold bugs and "The Old Family Journal" is the dollar which while it buys twice as much as it ever did, while it buys twice as much as it ever did, gives labor employment only one-half of the time, and yet does not pay as much faxes, insurance, salaries, rents, interest, annuities and freight charges as it did when it bought only one-half as much of farm products.—Advocate.

Is it "buys twice as much as it ever did," Hirschman's it looks as if labor might afford employment only half the time. We cannot accept as true that the "henest dollar" does not pay as much taxes, insurance, salaries, etc. The Grangers at Martinsburg in State meeting did not say that the price of farm products had been affected by the "honest dollar;" but that there was "an overproduction of all kinds of grain and correspondingly low prices," That's what the farmers-nobody but a farmer can be a Granger-in convention said.
