THE CANAL.

The funeral services are being read over the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal before it is a corpse. This is due to the earnest desire of its enemies, who are anxious that the official announcement of its death may be made as soon as possible and that it may be buried deeply and forever.

But the canal is not dead yet, and there is no reason why it may not take a new lease of life and become more vigorous and beneficial than ever.

The railroad companies desire the death of the canal. The Davis system of railroads would like to build a railroad along the tow-path as far as Montgomery. Williamsport, where connection would and possibly to continue the line to Washington. The B. & O. wants the EX-SENATOR DWIGHT M. SABIN has canal removed as a competitor, but of sued for divorce from his wife. He course would not like a railroad built

The politicians and those whose in terests are with the railroads have painted the old canal in dismal colors, and have utterly discouraged most of the people who naturally want the ditch kept open. All the talk is one way, and hardly a voice is heard to sympathy to the Johnstown sufferers. say a word in favor of the canal. But a revolution of feeling will come soon, and we will hear from the other side. The first estimates of the disaster were nia, and probably by the time this is that it would take a million dollars to repair the damage; then it dropped to half a million; now the officials admit that $300,000 will cover the loss. We believe it can be gotten in as good most active Republicans of this State, shape as it was before the flood for $200,000. Indeed, when the first wild figures were given out we heard a gentleman say he would repair all dam-> what he says, too. Now, the question is, will the State of Maryland allow this great industrial enterprise, on which the prosperity of so many of its citizens is dependent, and which is such an important competitor with the railroads, to perish for the want of a quarter of a million dollars? Will the large business interests of Cumberland and Georgetown, and the dozens of thriving manufactories and large and small enterprises along its line, remain quiet and see their very life taken from them? We think not.

Let the people along the line enter protest against the schemes of the canal wreckers. The energetic business men of Georgetown are making themselves heard, and with some effect, too. Let Cumberland and Williamsport join them, and so all along the line. Now is the time to take the bushel would like to find the "home | canal out of politics and put it under business management. The flood has swept away a great deal of debris from the canal itself-now sweep away also incompetent and unworthy officials who only use it for political will be greatest when the State will tom land, was either washed away make it a free waterway, as New York has done with the Erie. But if the State will not do this the business men who are interested should see that it is kept open by some

The circular of Messrs. John A. Hambleton & Co., the Baltimore bankers, issued last Friday, thus reviews the destruction of the Chesapeake and Ohio canal as a water-way Chesapeake and Ohio canal. Either the State of Maryland must assume its liabilities and make it a free waterway, as did the State of New York, or the canal must be sold for the purpose of constructing a railroad upon its corpus. It is not likely that the State will assume the liabilities of the canal and make it a free waterthat the canal will be sold to a rail-road company, which will construct a railroad from the coal fields to tide water. The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad would no doubt like to get possession of the canal and use it to shorten its route or to prevent any competing road from using it. There are other competitors who would be willing to buy the canal, which would be very valuable to any railroad company. The State of Maryland has put millions into it, but the expenditure, although unproductive, served the purpose intended and benefited the State and people. At the last session of our Legislature a movement was inaugurated to lease a part of the caual (Cumberland to Williamsport) to the Western Maryland Railroad, which strikes the canal at Williamsport. The movement failed, much to the regret of the people of Baltimore. The Legislature will be in session next winter, and no doubt some disposition will be made of the canal and the $500,000, repair bonds be provided for by payment, or some satisfactory guarantee from any purchaser or lessee of the canal. If the canal is sold outright it would bring enough to cover the $500,000 repair bonds, and, probably, in addition enough to pay something to the holders of the $1,700,000 old non-mor-tgage bonds and a dividend to the The canal ought to bring at

Job Smith, aged about forty years, son of Elder Jonathan Smith, of Roane county, and who resided near Walton, was shot and instantly killed by Sam. Cronhecker, alias Cummings, last Thursday evening. It appears that Smith's wife died some time since and left six small children, and out of sympathy Mrs. Cummings and her husband took up their residence at the Smith homestead. All went well until last Monday, when Mrs. Cummings had a row with her husband and drove him away, which resulted in his return Thursday, and upon seeing his wife and Smith together in the yard he fired a doublebarreled shot-gun at Smith, resulting in filling the latter's body with lead, from which he died in a few minutes. Cummings was arrested and confessed the killing, and said that his wife had been unfaithful to him, and that Smith was the destroyer of his happiness. Cummings is in the Roane county jail.

It has been ascertained that the recent unprecedented floods of water Potomac last week came mostly from the South Branch. The Moorefield Examiner says: "The Moorefield Examiner says: most terrible scourge the South Branch Valley has ever experienced was visited upon it last Friday. From one end of the valley to the other the ravages of terrible waters are seen upon every side. It is beyond the power of tongue or pen to fully convey an understanding of the damage done by the mad waters in a single day. Those who saw the flood of 1877 can fully appreciate the condition of our beautiful little valley at this time, except that this flood was far more destructive to the farms lying along the streams. The farmers had their corn in-most of it had been plowed the first time, some the true usefulness of the canal second time. All of this, in the botplow depth or covered over with rocks and sand. It seems that wherever the land was in grass, wheat or oats it suffered very little from washing. The loss is tremendous; in fact there is no way of estimating it. Every farmer along the valley is a sufferer in land, crops and fencing. Nearly all of the fencing along the valley was swept off, but this is a small loss compared to the loss of land. This is the worst season of the year for a flood. The land is plowed up and in corn, making it loose and easily washed, the season is too far advanced two things that can be done with the | to put in another crop, the wheat and oats are maturing and easily ruined, and upon the whole the prospect for the farmers this year is anything but encouraging.' heard from there was no loss of life.

In making the arrest of a woman named Fredericks Eppiger, on the charge of boarding infants without a license from the board of health, a queer monstrosity was discovered by the officers of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children in New York on Tuesday. It was a child strangely malformed into a horrible resemblance to a fish. Its head recedes from the eyes backward, and a protruding mouth is kept constantly motion as the child breathes in short gasps. There is the mixed appearance of a fish's and a child's head all in one. The arms are connected to the sides by a thin membrane, and have the appearance of fins. The legs are bound together by a similar ligature, and the feet turn outward. It is said that the mother of the monstrosity was a servant and the father her employer, and that the girl is now suing the latter in the courts. The mother, it is said, received a fright in a dime museum, which caused the

The Verdict Unanimous. W. D. Sult, Druggist, Bippus, Ind., testifies:
"I can recommend Electric Bitters as the very best remedy. Every bottle sold has given relief in every case. One man took six bottles and was cured of Rheumatism of 10 years' and was cured of Rheumatism of 10 years' standing." Abraham Hare, druggist, Bell-ville, Ohio, affirms: "The best seiling medicine I have ever handled in my 20 years' experience is Electric Bitlers." Thousands of others have added their testimouy, so that the verdict is unanimous that Electric Bitters do cure all diseases of the Liver, Kidneys or Blood. Only a half doliar a bottle at J. G. Business is being gradually resumed at Johnstown, Pa., and a more hopeful view prevails among the people. The State of Pennsylvania has assumed the work of removing the wreckage from the river. The distribution of supplies to the 20,000 people who must be taken care of goes on systematic-ally. The American Society of Civil Engineers has appointed a committee to report on the South Fork dam. breaking of which caused the disaster. New York City has given $450,000 for the relief of the sufferers.

and not forget! Remember the beautiful town on the stream so famous in history and in song—reviving the times when the poet sang "All quiet along the Poto-mac to-night." Remember that the fields of battle and of carnage are now waving in green or adorned with silent statuary to mark the undying glory of the "AMERICAN SOLDIER." Remember, if the murmur of the beautiful river whisper a plaintive requiem over the noble dead who sleep near her lovely shores, or mourn the wrecks of more recent floods-yet fed from the little rills in the hills and rolling on to the sea, she still is typical of human life. And yet, too, prophetic, as we look upon the everhanging water, and yet ever-endur ing stream-that men die, the world survives; men die, the Church of God lives on. Remember her beautiful fields, her hills and valleys, and her fairy "Leeland," where on a single hillock the eve beholds the grandeur and the beauty which four States combine to make

Remember, ave, and with memories more tender than those for hill or plain or river-the "most abounding hospitality" that welcomed "strangers" to the homes of her good citizens, who with a touch of their magic wands transmuted the stranger guest into the grateful friend.

Remember the gentle graces of the Christian life that portray in her good citizens the work of the great Father's loving "tender mercy," binding them in one communion fold and fellowship-revealing the truth that "he being dead yet speaketh," who here for some three and thirty years lived and loved and labored and stamped his noble character on his people who were his children, on the town and on the church of his love in the American continent. So may the shadow of the mighty and the saintly and the now sainted "ANDREWS" seem yet to fall in blessing on his people, and his mantle to rest upon his most worthy

Bible Wine.—Dr. John Ellis.

A leading writer on the use of Bible wines procured a bottle of Speer's unfermented Grape juice and subjected it to a chemical test. He did not find a trace of alcohol, and after referring to it in his book on Bible wines says that "Here, then, we have an unfermented wine actually in the market, which the writer thinks is far more palatable than fermented wine, and is unpolluted by leaven. Many religious societies are using this wine, and there is no reason for continuing to use a leavened wine while there is an unfermented wine already in the market," Sold by Druggists.

> [From the Sedalia (Mo.) Gazette.] A Tribute to the Dead.

In memory of Mrs. M. E. Beall and Mrs. J. G. Ruckle, mother and daughter, formerly of lefferson county, W. Va., whose deaths were chronicled in the Sedalla papers, Mrs. Beall's demise occurred on December 13, and Mrs. Ruckle's on March 20, 1889.

This little tribute is a task of love to one who knew them. The memory of such characters should be enshrined in our hearts. Mrs. M. E. Beall was a member of the Episcopal Church for almost half a century, filling faithfully and conscientiously every position in a life of almost three score years and ten. and now has gone to her reward. She possessed not only a lovely Christian character, but a fine intellect and rare conversational powers. But the voice we loved so well is still; the hand that was ever ready to do good is cold, and we see her no more. Not dead, but sleepeth.

There is no death, the stars go down To rise upon some fairer shore, And bright in heaven's jeweled crown They shine forevermore. And ever near us, though unseen,

And ever near us, though unseen, The dear immertal spirits tread, For all the boundless universe Is life-there are no dead.

Mrs. J. G. Ruckle, so well known and loved by all who knew her, although an invalid for many years, has made by her death a vacancy that can never be filled. She clung to life with almost marvelous tenacity, not that she feared death, but was loth to leave the loved ones at home. She was the light and guiding spirit of the household and truly she was blessed with a devoted family-a husband that never wearied in his care for her; chi dren that loved to honor her. She possesse all the noble attributes of mind and hear that go to make up a beautiful Christian character-the loving wife, the devoted moth er, the true friend, has passed to the other shore; she has finished the work He gave her to do; the mortal has put on the immor tal and now her's is another home-not made with hands; eternal in the heavens. Dearest loved one, we have laid thee In the peaceful grave's embrace, But thy memory will be cherished 'Till we see thy heavenly face. Yet again we know we'll meet thee When the day of life is fled,

And in heaven with joy to greet thee. Where no farewell tears are shed. A FRIEND.

Every Farmer Knows That weeds must be torn up by the roots, or they will be sure to crop out again. So it is with diseases which have their origin in de-praved blood. The cause of the complaint must be removed by Ayer's Sarsaparilla, or no permanent cure is possible. Try it.

no permanent cure is possible. Try it.

C. W. Allen, Druggist, of Brunswick, Me. says: "I have never known Ayer's Sarsa-parilla fall to give satisfaction. In hundreds of cases within my knowledge it has proved a perfect specific for diseases arising from impurities in the blood. I regard it as an invaluable spring medicine."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla, Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles, $5. Worth $5 a bottle.

Modern Advertising!

The "Old Timers" are perhaps not cognisant of the fact that the more they talk to people about our cheap auction trash-just so much free advertising we get. We are believers in telling everybody what we have through the medium of newspapers, and at the same time we fully appreciate the longwinded credit concerns in helping to boom us along-free of charge-by calling us Cheap

It is certainly no fault of ours that they can not legitimately compete with us. It only requires money, brains and pluck.

To the average person it sounds most absurd to hear our brothers-in-trade trying to make believe that the quality of their goods are most assuredly here to stay, and it is from us and will sell you goods at the theap and shoddy goods, which would in time people won't stay away. They are blessed a good many of them), and are flocking in every cent you spend with us, and alwith their cash more lively than ever and to low you to deduct 4 percent off of the each and every purchaser we extend the privilege to compare our goods both as to quality and price with those of any house they may

Why can't we sell the best goods cheaper than the old fogy credit concerns? We have the boodle : we know a little about buying ; we have no books, and last but by no means least, we mark our stuff at a living profit of
