JOSEPH JEFFERSON.

"THE CENTURY MAGAZINE" IN 1890.

Joseph Jefferson's Autobiography—Novels by Frank R. Stockton, Amelia E. Barr, and others—A Capital Programme.

During 1890 The Century Magazine (whose recent successes have included the famous "War Papers," the Lincoln History and George Kennan's series on "Siberia and the Exile System") will publish the long-looked-for Autobiography of Joseph Jefferson, whose "Rip Van Winkle" has made his name a household word. No more interesting record of a life upon the stage could be laid before the public. Mr. Jefferson is the fourth in a generation of actors, and, with his children and grand-children, there are six generations of actors among the Jeffersons. His story of the early days of the American stage, when, as a boy, traveling in his father's company, they would settle down for a season in a western town, playing in their own extemporized theater—the particulars of the creation of his famous "Rip Van Winkle," how he acted "Ticket-of-Leave Man" before an audience of that class in Australia, etc.—all this, enriched with illustrations and portraits of contemporary actors and actresses, and with anecdotes, will form one of the most delightful serials The Century has ever printed.

Amelia E. Barr, Frank R. Stockton, Mark Twain, H. H. Boyesen, and many other well-known writers will furnish the fiction for the new volume, which is to be unusually strong including several novels, illustrated novelettes, and short stories. "The Women of the French Salons" are to be described in a brilliant series of illustrated papers. The important discoveries made with the great Lick Telescope at San Francisco (the largest telescope in the world) and the latest explorations relating to prehistoric America (including the famous Serpent Mound, of Ohio) are to be chronicled in The Century.

Prof. George P. Fisher of Yale University is to write a series on "The Nature and Method of Revelation," which will attract every Bible Student. Bishop Potter of New York will be one of several prominent writers who are to contribute a series of "Present-day Papers" on living topics, and there will be art papers, timely articles, etc., etc., and the choicest pictures that the greatest artists and engravers can produce.

Every bookseller, postmaster and subscription agent takes subscriptions to The Century ($4.00 a year), or remittance may be made directly to the publishers, THE CENTURY CO., of New York. Begin new subscriptions with November (the first issue of the volume) and get Mark Twain's Story, "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," in that number.

ST. NICHOLAS.

The Century Co's Magazine for Young Folks. Enlarged and printed in New Type.

Since 1873, when under the editorial management of Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge, the publication of St. Nicholas for Young Folks was begun, it has led all magazines for girls and boys. Nothing like it was known before, and to-day, as the Chicago Inter-Ocean recently said, "it is the model and ideal juvenile magazine of the world." Through its pages the greatest writers of our time are speaking to the youth of America and England, and the best artists and engravers are training the eyes of the boys and girls to appreciate the highest in art. Nobody knows how many readers St. Nicholas has. In the third largest public library in America—that in Indianaps olis—more than 3000 people read each month's number.

Since the first issue Mrs. Dodge has remained as editor. Early in its history other young people's magazines, "Our Young Folks," "The Little Corporal," "Riverside," etc., were consolidated with it, and its history has been one of growth from the first. Tennyson, Bryant, Longfellow, Whittier, Miss Alcott, Mrs. Burnett, Charles Dudley Warner, W. D. Howells, and almost every well-known writer of our time have contributed to its pages. There is only one way in which its conductors can make it better, and that is by making more of it, and so they announce that with the beginning of the seventeenth volume (November, 1889) St. Nicholas will be enlarged by the addition of eight, and sometimes sixteen, extra pages in each number. This enlargement is absolutely required to make room for the rich store of new material which has been secured for the benefit of St. Nicholas readers. The use of new and clearer type will be begun with the November number.

During the coming year there are to be four important serial stories by four well-known American authors. Athletics and outdoor sports will be a special feature (contributed by Walter Camp, of Yale, and others), and there will be stories of character and adventure, sketches of information and travel, outdoor papers, articles of special literary interest, suggestive talks on natural history, other scientific subjects, and the march of events. Both the December and January numbers are to be holiday issues.

The price will be the same as heretofore, $3.00 a year, 25 cents a number, and all dealers and the publishers (The Century Co., New York) take subscriptions. New subscribers should begin with November.

PRESERVING EGGS.

Methods Successfully Praticed for Keeping Eggs.

It is stated by an English authority that while eggs preserved in lime or salt have proved to be good after the expiration of four months, it has not until recently been established for what length of time the action of these preservatives will keep them good, as four months is comparatively of little use. From the above the reader might reasonably suppose that some new process in the use of the two articles, salt and lime, was about to be given, as it is stated as the result of numerous experiments with various substances that these have shown their undoubted superiority over all others. As heretofore tried in England, one process consisted in packing the eggs as soon as laid in dry salt, the other in immersing them in freshly made lime water. Of these two only successful processes lime proved much superior to salt, though more troublesome. Salt attracts moisture from the eggs, the albumen or white of the egg consequently becomes thickened and a considerable air space is left. When lime water is employed the eggs are quite full and it is necessary to prick them before boiling or they will crack by the expansion of their contents by heat.

But the process by which it was found eggs may be successfully preserved for twelve months is thus described: To preserve, say, a thousand eggs, take about thirty-six pounds of lime in lumps and place in a strong metal or stone vessel, pouring over the same some two gallons of boiling water. Then cover with strong sacking, taking care the same does not fire, and leave in a safe place until quite cold. Then mix with about twelve gallons of cold water, adding seven pounds of coarse salt and pour carefully over the eggs, quite covering them and leaving out any sediment that may have settled at the bottom of the mixing pan. Pickle, if thus rightly made, will in a few days frost over as if covered with very thin ice, and if this does not happen add more lime until the desired end is attained. The pickle is poured over the eggs in a milky condition, being passed through a fine sieve to catch any large pieces not dissolved. Boiling water should be used for slaking the lime.

The great secret is to have good fresh eggs and to keep up the strength of the pickle and the surface frosted over by adding from time to time fresh strong pickel, or, if not room in the vessel for more liquid, then freshly slaked lime. Stone or earthenware vessels are most suitable and should stand in a cool place and not be moved about. The eggs must be freshly laid, not more than one week old if good results are desired, and must not be cracked, and every egg should be tested before placing in the pickling vessel. By the above means eggs may be kept any reasonable time, certainly from spring to winter.

Of the method thus described, which is substantially the same that has been known and practiced in this country for years, with variations in the proportions of lime and salt as used by different persons, Mr. W. B. Tegetmeier, a well known and excellent authority, says: "I have hitherto been rather prepossessed in favor of the dry salt method, but I doubt whether its efficacy would extend to twelve months. The influence of lime water and salt is apparently due to the entire protection from the action of the air, the absorption of all carbonic acid from the water, the destruction of all germs that might exist in the water, and possibly also to the antiseptic character of the salt and lime." It is further stated that Mr. Tegetmeier, who has tested some of the eggs that have been kept over a year by this method, describes them as being unaltered in appearance and looking better than shop eggs. They were perfectly good when used in omelets and custards, in which they could not be distinguished from ordinary eggs.

Notwithstanding such favorable testimony, it is well remembered that eggs preserved for a long time by any of the methods known, including the one under consideration, in some way betray the fact of their preservation. Even in periods of scarcity preserved eggs sell for so much less per dozen than fresh eggs that extravagant profits from the process are not very often realized. In this connection it may be well to state that a formula, used in New York state with good results, for the lime and soft pickle is in the proportions of one bushel of unslaked lime and eight quarts of salt to sixty-five gallons of water, to be prepared and used in much the same manner as above described.

Agricultural Notes.

Lovett's White is the name of a new peach which is said to have yielded annually in certain eastern states where most other varieties have failed. It is claimed that it is the hardiest white peach yet produced. Its season is very late. The color is a pure white; size very large; it is a long keeper; the quality is sweet and excellent. The flesh parts from the pit perfectly.

Wood ashes are largely used by farmers as a top dressing for meadows. Spread at the rate of about fifty bushels per acre.

Poultry houses should be whitewashed, inside and out, two or three times a year. Into the whitewash for the inside of the house put a little glue or a teacupful of soft boiled rice to a pail of whitewash, and also add ten or twelve drops of crude carbolic acid, as a safeguard against vermin.

Blackcap raspberry plants are easily propagated and any one who has a few plants of a variety that pleases him may greatly increase their number by layering the tips of the young canes and covering them with two or three inches of soil. The proper time to do this is when the end of the cane begins to enlarge and swell, soon after the fruiting season.

Plaster is one of those fertilizers which have a remarkable effect upon some soils, while in other places it has no effect at all.

Dairy cattle should have access to salt every day, and salt should be added daily to all their stable feed, according to Professor Robertson.

Every glorious act of a great life starts forward an eloquent fact. Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is the glorious act of a life's study, and it is a positive fact that it stands without a rival.

"Hope for a season bids the world farewell," when a man finds himself in the relentless grasp of neuralgia, but he smiless and takes heart when his wife brings a bottle of Salvation Oil.

"James, you have been fighting. I can tell it by the look in your eye."

"Yes, but, mother, you should see the look in the other boy's eye."

Boils, carbuncles, and other skin eruptions indicate that the system is endeavoring to reject poisonous acids, and that Ayer's Sarsaparilla is imperatively needed. It is the most reliable of all blood medicines. Ask your druggist for it, and take no other.

CONSUMPTION SURELY CURED.

I shall be glad to send two bottles of my remedy FREE to any of your readers who have consumption if they will send me their express and postoffice address. Respectfully, T. A. SLOCUM, M. TENDERNESS OF MR. CORLISS.

The Great Engineer Delayed a Building to Allow the Birds a Chance.

Mr. Corliss, the great engineer, not very long before his death had occasion to build an addition to his manufactory—a big "L" for additional machinery. To prepare the foundation for this L, it was necessary to remove a ledge of rock by blasting. The men to do the work on the addition had been employed and put on the pay roll; the materials had been purchased and brought to the building, and the work of blasting had begun. The next morning Mr. Corliss passed by the place where work was proceeding, when the foreman in charge, knowing his interest in pretty things, called him.

"See here, Mr. Corliss," said he, "here is a bird's nest that we've found, and that's got to go."

He showed the manufacturer a robin sitting upon a nest that had been built fast and snug in the crevice of the rock, among some bushes that grew there. The bird flew off her nest as the men came near, and showed five blue eggs that looked as if they had just been laid.

"Can we move that nest somewhere else?" asked the tender hearted Mr. Corliss.

"I'm afraid not, sir. We'd tear it to pieces getting it out, and it isn't at all likely that you could get the bird to go sitting again anywhere else. We've got to go on, so we may as well rip it out and throw the eggs away."

"No," said Mr. Corliss. "We won't disturb her. Let her bring her brood out right there."

"But we'll have to stop work on the building!"

"Let us stop it, then."

And so orders were given that operations on the addition should be suspended. They were suspended, and the hands stood still, drawing their pay for doing nothing, or next to nothing, while the robin sat on her nest with an air of great consequence and zealous attention to business, and her food brought by her mate, and at last hatched her brood. And then there were three weeks more to go by, at the least, before the young ones could fly. Corliss visited the nest frequently, not with any uneasiness or impatience to have the robin and the young ones out of the way, but with a genuine interest in their growth. The old birds had all the time they wanted; and when at last they had sternly helped the clumsy, reluctant youngsters over the edge of the nest, orders were given to resume the building operations.—Boston Transcript.

The Fiddlers of Cumberland Island.

A Cumberland correspondent thus describes the fiddlers of that island: "After fishing my attention was attracted by an army of fiddlers in the sand. Oh, such funny little folks are the fiddlers! They are a peaceable set, too, and in all the droves and droves that I saw marching about on the sand by the inlet I saw only two who were disorderly. They fought a little, but not for long, and the defeated fellow crawled into his hole, and the army moved on. A fiddler looks like a very small crab. Some are blue, others red and brown, and there are black and gray. Some have no claws and others have a great white claw like a crab, which they seem to keep time with. They are the drum majors. A fiddler never turns to run. They run backward, to the front and sideways without moving their bodies. They have little holes all over the sand that reach to—well, I don't know, for I get a stick and dug and dug until I was tired, and I never did find the bottom. They have a curious little way of making a noise like smacking the lips, and it sounds sometimes as though a lot of folks were kissing.—Savanah News.

Wild Bull and Bustle.

A wild bull broke loose from an inclosure at the corner of Mission and Thirty-first streets. The infuriated animal rushed toward Mission street, and near Twenty-eighth encountered Ricardo Perini, whom he tossed from his horns as if the unfortunate man were a feather. Perini in his fall had two ribs broken.

The bull proceeded a little further, and attacked Pusette Antonio, whom he hurled into the air. Pusetti fell heavily on his face and had his nose badly bruised. He spit blood for some time, but was able to walk home. The wild beast then attacked a woman, whose name The Examiner reporter could not learn, and lodged his horns viciously in her bustle, lifting the frightened young lady from the ground. Owing to the weight of her body the bustle gave way, and its owner fell, more scared than hurt.

The animal, with the feminine flag floating from his horns, continued in his mad career, but was finally lassoed.—San Francisco Examiner.

Low Water in Boilers.

A boiler may be inspected today and found to be safe under a working pressure of 100, and be weakened tonight by low water so as to be dangerous to-morrow with fifty pounds pressure. Yet it may explode a month hence with sixty pounds pressure and plenty of water, but the cause is as certainly low water as if it had exploded when the water was low. There is but one sure remedy, and it is a simple one. Put on a real safe-guard, something simple, which has been tried, and proven to be trustworthy.—Age of Steel.

The Beech and Lightning.

According to an ancient superstition, the beech is never struck by lightning; and so general has been this belief, that a gentleman recently thought it worth while to write to an English journal that he had been told of a lightning shattered beech in Ireland. Beliefs of this sort are rarely without some degree of justification in fact, and it would be interesting to know whether in this country the beech has been observed to possess any greater immunity from electrical dangers than trees of other sorts.—Garden and Forest.

A dull, heavy pain in the sides, sleepiness, want of energy, no continuity of thought of labor, these all indicate disease of liver, and should be removed by the use of laxador, which will surely accompilsh the object.

Suffering will exhibit its presence by the cries of the baby, and should be removed by the prompt use of that highly recommended remedy, Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup. It is free from opium. Price 25 cents.

Girls are so scarce in Dakota that when a new girl enters the Territory all the brass bands turn out en mass and serenade her.
