

DAILY GAZETTE.

C. P. JOHNSON, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

WILMINGTON, Del., August 23, 1878.

THE DAILY GAZETTE is published every afternoon, except Sunday, at 416 Market street, and served by carriers to subscribers in all parts of Wilmington and the surrounding town and villages, for six cents a week, payable weekly. Yearly subscribers $5 in advance.

The DELAWARE GAZETTE, established 1784, is the largest and most flourishing weekly in the State, and has a larger circulation than any other in the Peninsula. Published every Friday morning at 10 a. m. in advance.

Qualification for Office.

When we opened this campaign on the Democratic side our first effort was to induce our party to put forward gentlemen who were especially qualified for the offices to which they were to be chosen. We hope this position has been regarded as far as possible.

With reference to the gentlemen on the ticket running through the whole city, we are sure it has been. The nomination election will be held tomorrow, and the candidates are Wm. S. McCaulley, Esq., for President of the City Council. He has no opposition so far, and we presume will have none, and receive the unanimous vote of the party. He deserves this distinction. His election on the 24 of September, would prove that in popular elections the people were not governed wholly by party causes.

The candidates before the nomination election for the very important and responsible office of City Treasurer are both especially qualified for the duties devolving upon the City Treasurer. They are both good accountants and write hand, some, accustomed to keeping books with large accounts—there is no danger that either of them would deface the handsome set of journals and ledgers that the present skillful City Treasurer has had prepared with great care. Mr. JOHN H. FRASER is the affable and popular real estate agent, at the corner of Third and Shipley streets. He has been clerking for himself and others nearly all his life.

ROBERT D. HICKS, Esq., is known to all of our old citizens. He was formerly a Dry Goods Merchant; from which he entered the Farmers' Bank as Cashier, and held that position for many years, and was known as one of the most agreeable, skillful and careful Bank officers this city ever had. And Wilmington has been especially proud of her Banking officials.

We have thus briefly called attention, as it becomes our duty, to the gentlemen our party will be called on to-morrow to vote for in selecting candidates.

The Produce Market.

Our city markets that are now held on King street have caused the Council much trouble at various times, and are not now conducted as they should be. The market people are too closely packed together on the street. There is neither sense nor reason to justify this disposition of their wagons by our country friends. The crowd is often so dense on the pavement that it is impossible to pass or get into the street. This could be remedied very easily. It was the prime cause for moving the market to King street; and the inconvenience there is felt by every person who has marketing to do for a family.

The crowd is caused by the wagons being so closely backed up together. If every wagon was required to be four feet apart, the pavement would be found to be free from the crowd. But a better way would be to require the wagons to stand with their sides to the pavement; and those who attend them to stand in their rear upon boards, which they could readily bring with them to lay across the gutters.

In this way the market would be made to extend as far as Twelfth street, and the whole city would be far more pleasantly accommodated, while the country people would sell a great deal more than they now do, because a great number of citizens will not go into our markets in their present crowded state.

The City Hospital.

The Republic has the audacity, in the face of contrary facts, to assert the following: "Besides, if the City Hospital was brought forward by Democrats, matured by Democrats, and passed by the aid of Democratic votes, it was not a party measure, and the Gazette and its friends are equally accountable for whatever loss may accrue to the city through it."

There is no truth in the above, it is a complete falsification. The proposition the Democrats made was simply to secure a lot of ground for the "Wilmington Hospital Society." They did not propose that the city should have anything to do with the project further than aid the Society by presenting it a lot to build upon; which would have cost from five to ten thousand, as to position; while the city had lots of its own that it could have given to the Society without any cost; or, as one of the councilmen suggested, might have been built upon by the city itself more economically than buying a building, if it chose to undertake to run a City hospital, which no city had undertaken before.

DECLINES.—John P. Allmond was recommended by the Democrats at their meeting in the Seventh Ward as a candidate for the President of the City Council. Mr. Allmond had been previously solicited to stand for the office and had declined in a letter to the Executive Committee. He requests us to tender his thanks and say to his Democratic friends in the Seventh Ward and elsewhere, that he is deeply sensible of the honor that has been done him in soliciting his name; but the many duties that now press upon his time, render it impossible for him to accept of so distinguished a position were it even possible or him to secure it without so great a sacrifice.

A LAWYER SHOT AT THE BAR.—A dispatch from Memphis states that on Monday last, at Lonoke, Ark., shot and killed Nathan Byrd, an attorney who was employed for the plaintiff in a case in which the Rev. Mr. Sullivan was defendant. In the midst of a somewhat violent harangue, addressed to the negro magistrate, Wm. Read, Esq., the lawyer, Byrd assassinated the parson. The son, James Sullivan, was looking on, and the father said to Byrd "that he must not speak so harshly of me." "What did you say?" demanded Byrd. "I say," answered the preacher, "that you shall not speak thus freely of men." Byrd struck the old man, who is very frail, while Byrd weighs 250 pounds. The son, sitting far, drew a Colt's revolver and shot the lawyer, first through the breast and again through the lower part of the body. The wounded man soon died in great agony and the murderer fled.

Five Years and Twenty-five Lashes.

"Robbery accompanied by violence has not often in our days," says the London News of Aug. 7, "been illustrated by so brutal an outrage and visited by so severe a punishment as in a case which has just been tried at the Croydon Assizes before Mr. Baron Pigott. The victim of the assault was Mr. Gray, a merchant, of Brighton. On the 6th of December he was returning home, when, about half past 11 o'clock at night, he was encountered by three men, who insisted on his giving them something to drink. The prosecutor was alarmed and did not venture to refuse. He paid for some drink for them at a public house and when he left it the men followed him and suddenly seized him, knocked him down, and proceeded to rob him. He was terribly beaten about the head and face, so that his teeth were broken. His face was severely wounded, and his eyes were so injured that his sight was for a long after seriously affected. One hand, with which he strove to guard his face, and which proved to have a peculiar attraction for the robbers, was so maltreated that it is believed to be rendered permanently useless. For his assailants saw that there was a diamond ring upon his finger, and strove to have it. The ring would not easily come off, and the ruffians actually endeavored to tear the finger from the socket. They hammered at it until the bones were crushed, and twisted it round and round, with the hope of dismembering the hand, in order to get at the object of their cupidity.

"The robbers made their escape for the time, but the police appeared to have had some suspicion as to the identity. One of the men meanwhile, was convicted of another offense, and sentenced to six months imprisonment, and when he came out he was arrested with a companion for this offense. The defense was an attempt to set up a case of obedi, but the evidence for the prosecution was very clear, and the jury had no difficulty in finding both prisoners guilty. They were sentenced by Baron Pigott to be kept in penal servitude for ten years each, to be under the supervision of the police for five years, and to receive each twenty-five lashes."

The Telegraph, commenting on the sentence, regrets that Baron Pigott did not give the "Black Prince," which appears to be the sobriquet of the leader of the party, fifty lashes—the full allowance of the law—instead of twenty-five.

Special Notices.

ALFRED WALTON, Druggist, No. 235 Market street, respectfully informs his friend and the public in general, that he keeps on hand all descriptions of medicines, and that a competent person is at all times ready to prescribe for such sick as call at his store, and that no charge is made except at the regular price of the medicines, the same price as they would pay anywhere else; but that no one is visited at their residence.
