The Wool Text—Democratic Promise.

What do wool-growers think now of the promises of the Democratic party? The Ohio Democratic platform, when it was expanded before wool-growers, was read to mean ample protection to all industries with special favor to the wool industry.

Democrats elsewhere were pointed to what the brethren were promising in the great State of Ohio, and they were asked if that wasn't good enough for them.

We have heard a good deal of this in West Virginia. Let us see what promises the Democrats made in Ohio when the election was pending.

The following is from a circular widely cast upon the waters by the Democratic committee in Ohio:

It is possible to obtain a restoration of the duty on wool. This is the question which every sheep owner in Ohio is asking himself.

We say to every farmer, and with all possible emphasis, that the question must be answered. Next year will not do.

Next year will not do. The reason is clear, the issue has been raised in the present Ohio campaign, and the wool interest elsewhere, as well as the interests of the wool interest, are manifestly in recognition of the result of the Ohio campaign.

Whether the duty shall be read or immediately or whether its restoration shall be left to the chance of the future.

How on the other hand means the triumph of the Democrats and the success of their objects, of which the unconditional restoration of the duty on wool entire is one of the most important.

This triumph will create a most favorable sentiment throughout the nation in favor of the wool-growers, and when Congress next winter (it is fortunately Democratic in the House) the strength of public opinion will be so great that the President will not dare resist it, and he will readily sign all measures brought forward for relief.

The consequence will be that farmers will be able to retain their flocks and go on with the profitable production of wool.

The election of a Democratic Legislature insures the election of a Democratic United States Senator from Ohio, and largely increases the chance of having a Democratic majority in the United States Senate, and in that event the Democratic party will be in a situation to redeem its promise to the wool-growers in Ohio and its State platform.

Farmers of Ohio, can you trust the party that has in our National Legislature outraged and robbed you at the bidding of the capitalists of New England? Is there any hope for you from such a party, who have thus deliberately sacrificed your dearest and best interest?

The party that created this great wrong cannot be trusted to give you relief. The Democrats in Congress were your friends. They sought by every means in their power to prevent this wrong from being inflicted on you.

Trust the Democratic party this winter. We have promised to, and will give you relief. Will you ignore their promises so authoritatively?

What was the effect of this falsification? It helped to elect Hoadly. Farmers were deluded into the belief that the Republican party had wronged them and the Democratic party would jump at the first opportunity to right the wrong.

A promise could not have been more direct and explicit; with honorable men no pledge would have been more binding. What has the Democratic party done—kept its pledge to the wool-growers?

When the Congress bill to restore the wool tariff of 1867 came up 115 Democrats voted against it and laid it out cold.

Only thirty-six Democrats favored the bill. It is some text of party sentiment on the question of protection that only 12 Republican votes were recorded in the negative, and some of these because they feared to reopen the tariff question lest the Democrats knock down the whole system.

Do wool-growers continue to look for relief at the hands of the Democratic party? Do they think it is to be trusted? And is it likely to be more truthful in the future than in the past?

THE INDIAN ANEYLU.

A Dead Man's Face Eaten by Taint—General Incompetency of the Management. To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

Sir:—I have been in your paper many chapters against the present management of the various State institutions, and believing that you are ever ready and willing to expose and correct public evils, I feel assured that the complaint I have to make against the misadministration of the West Virginia Insane Hospital will receive attention and find space in your columns.

Permit me to be in the first place to state that I am not in the least sore-headed or disappointed, having never sought a place in that institution and not now desiring one.

I propose to narrate absolute and indubitable facts and dry contradictions in the first place in a well-repaired edition that it is not a caritative institution and that it never can be under the superintendency of Dr. W. J. Brand. He is not qualified to manage and control an institution of that kind.

It is time in this country to retain his position and is not in the least concerned about the welfare of those under his charge. He is now making a great external show of improvement on the part of the way of cleaning the hospital, but he is not making a great effort to do so.

He does not take one attendant from each ward or hall and requires them to work the same length of time, except the attendants in two large halls of the wing. It does not occur to me that if ever was the object of that institution to lessen the number of employes and to decrease the amount of necessary attention, simply for the purpose of cultivating large crops, after these attendants work eight hours they are put on duty until 10 p. m., and are frequently called up during the night.

It is reasonable to suppose that they are not in very good condition to give any aid to the patients, as they are only permitted to sleep until half past four in the morning.

To show the neglect and carelessness of the officers of the Insane Hospital, I will give an instance that shows how trifling that it will hardly be credited. About the 20th of February, 1884, a patient whose name was McNamee, if I mistake not, died, and his remains were left to the mercy of rats, and during the night they gnawed off his nose and so disfigured his face that he could not have been recognized. His friends, when I understood he was in Parkersburg, ordered his remains to be sent home, and from some unknown cause, it was not done, but they came here and were interred in the Insane Cemetery without having been seen by them. Consequently they were entirely ignorant of what had occurred.

J. H. Clifton, one of the directors of that institution, spends nearly all his time here, and I am credibly informed, lately appropriated a considerable amount of paint belonging to the State, for the purpose of using it on his own premises. Mr. Clifton was known to be a perfect tool for Dr. Brand, and is at all times willing to plunder his whims; and it may be that his services are paid for in that way. His factory hands work in the woolen mills during the summer months and are transferred to the asylum during the winter.

Judging from the facts heretofore published in your paper in regard to the mismanagement of the Insane Hospital and the positive denials of the Democratic press, I am led to believe that there is against the management of the Insane State institutions, and I feel that many honest thinking citizens throughout the State should and will exercise their influence in aiding to overthrow the most corrupt administration that West Virginia has ever known.

It is hard for a man of ability to abandon political opinions that he has entertained from infancy, and it was only after a thorough investigation that I was in honest compelled to do so. I have believed to thoroughly convince that Democracy is opposed to the interest and welfare of the masses, and I am determined to exert what little talent I possess to correct the evils that have been brought in its name.

We will try to keep you posted on affairs connected with the Insane Hospital.

AMERICAN NEWSPAPERS IN ISS.

From the edition of Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory, now in press, it appears that the newspapers and periodicals of all kinds at present issued in the United States and Canada reach a grand total of 13,402. This is a net gain of precisely 1,000 during the last twelve months, and exhibits an increase of 6,018 over the total number published just ten years since. The increase in 1874 over the total for 1873 was 493. During the past year the dailies have increased from 1,038 to 1,254, or 216 more, or 20.8 per cent. The monthlies from 9,062 to 10,028, and the monthlies from 1,691 to 1,499. The greatest increase is in the Western States. Illinois, for instance, now shows 1,069 papers in place of last year's total of 904. While Missouri issues 691 instead of the 522 reported in 1883. Other leading Western States also exhibit a great percentage of increase. The total number of papers in New York State is 1,253, against 1,399 in 1883. Canada has shared in the general increase.

A New Bacillus.

New York Times. M. Pasteur is tireless in his search after the germs that produce disease. Every few months he announces the discovery of a new germ, and simultaneously assures us that we can protect ourselves against the specific disease by inoculating ourselves with it.

His latest discovery is a bacillus which he calls the bacillus of the cotton-wool disease. He has discovered the bacillus which produces holes in woolen clothing. Scientists have long been aware that the so-called holes which appear occasionally in cotton or linen clothing are not true holes, but are merely tears, and as such are in all cases nothing more than mechanical lesions. The true hole to which woolen clothing is liable, is, on the other hand, a contagious disease. It is true that when the theory that holes are contagious was first announced, some thirty years ago, it was condemned by many physicians, who regarded it as a mere fancy. The truth of the theory is, however, generally conceded at the present day. Observation has shown beyond any doubt, that in an overwhelming majority of cases a man who associates closely with one suffering from holes in the clothing will contract the same disease. Statistics prove that not one railway laborer in a thousand is free from holes in his clothing. Many of these sufferers will testify that they never had a hole in their clothing until they began to work in company with those afflicted with the disease, and that within a period varying from four to twenty days after their coming into contact with the diseased man, they themselves broke out either in their trousers or coats. That the disease, when it once makes its appearance, is sure to develop rapidly, unless the strongest measures are at once taken, is well known. A small hole makes a large one in a few days, and the coat will be followed in a few days by other holes in other parts of the coat, and will speedily spread to the trousers. If suffered to run its course it will rapidly destroy the clothing. The ravages of this disease are confined to no race and no climate, and
