A DESTRUCTIVE FIRE

Last Night at the Hobbs Glass Factory on the South Side.

EIGHT BUILDINGS WERE BURNED.

Together With an Immense Amount of the Product of the Factory, Aggregating a Loss of About $15,000, Estimated—The Origin of the Conflagration Unknown—It Caught in the Straw Shed and Soon Communicated to the Other Buildings.

The United States Glass Company seems unable to throw off the grasp of the fire demon, which time and time again during the past year has caused heavy loss to this big corporation. The Hobbs branch, or, as it is now known, Factory II, located on the South Side, at Wetzel and Thirty-sixth streets, alone has suffered from fire three times since the United States company took hold—nearly two years ago. One was not of much consequence, but the other, which occurred three months ago, was more extensive, and caused heavy loss. None, however, have equaled the destructive conflagration of last night, which caused a loss which is approximated at $15,000.

The factory was running last night, several hundred men being at work, when at about 9:30 o'clock a bright blaze shot out from the one story straw shed or house, situated at the corner of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad tracks and Thirty-sixth street. Workmen at once raised the cry of "fire," and the alarm was telephoned to the Eighth ward engine house. As soon as possible, too, the alarm was turned in at box No. 63, calling out the department. Wheeling engine first arrived on the scene and immediately got out its lines of hose and began to ply on the now entirely burning building. It was soon seen that the fire was going to be a hard one to fight, and

THE GENERAL ALARM, calling out the entire department, was turned in, bringing every available engine and reel.

The fire department was utterly unable to confine the conflagration to the building in which it started, and it soon communicated to surrounding buildings, parts of the glass factory. It first communicated to the three-story frame etching and decorating department building lying immediately to the east of the straw shed. This building was filled with the various products of the concern and its burning caused the heaviest loss to the company. The inflammable character of the surrounding buildings was one of the drawbacks against the fire being kept in its original bounds. About the same time the three story building caught, the fire also communicated to the big ice storage and bottling house of the Schmutz Brewing company, north of the straw shed; the fire department could not keep the fire from burning this structure also. At this time the scene was grand and awe inspiring, the flames rising nearly two hundred feet in the air and lighting up the surrounding buildings and the immense crowd that had gathered to witness the conflagration. The big Schmutz brewery building to the north, though not in danger of catching, stood out grim and sombre with its background of darkness. The firemen fought the fire gallantly, but worked under discouraging circumstances, the heat being something terrible, so much so that the spectators retreated down to the railway tracks, leaving only the firemen on the unprotected space on Thirty-sixth street, and they were soon behind an improvised barricade made of boxes, placed in front of the brick factory building. At the height of the fire the big bridge connecting the second stories of the factory and decorating department buildings fell with a crash on the upper side; there were several narrow escapes at this time, but happily nobody was hurt. North of the big etching and decorating building was located the two-story frame residence of William Nixon, and though great efforts were made to save it, it was doomed, and burned to the ground, though Nixon saved nearly all his household effects. The heat from this building was the means of communicating the fire to the Schmutz brick stable on Wetzel street, through the two windows on the south side. The chemical engine was at once called into service, and soon had the fire put out, after some hard work. At this time everything north of Thirty-sixth was burning, and with no hopes of saving anything. On the east side of Wetzel street were located a storage house, straw house and two sheds, all one story frame structures, which it was thought could be saved, but the heat was so great that they soon caught fire and were consumed. In the storage house were stored nearly a million beer mugs for J. W. Hunter for use in putting up mustard; these were all destroyed. It was only by the most desperate kind of work that the firemen were able to save the big brick factory building on the south side of Thirty-sixth, but this was finally accomplished. The fire was at about 10 o'clock, when all of the eight buildings that were destroyed, were burning fiercely. Three engines, Niagara, Atlantic and the Eighth ward all this time had streams on the fire, but it was only when the fire had spent itself that the immense amount of water began to have an appreciable effect. At 10:30 the fire was past the climax, and by 11 o'clock it was entirely under the control of the department, though the ruins continued long after that to burn, and will probably not be entirely out until some time this morning.

COMPULLED TO SEEK PROTECTION

The chemical engine was relieved at 11 o'clock and returned to its house. The only man who was injured during the progress of the fire was an employee of the Schmutz brewery, who went into the burning ice house to save his tools, and while there was painfully though not seriously injured. There was no certainty last night as to the exact loss sustained by the United States Glass Company, though it was estimated at $15,000, which makes it one of the most serious conflagrations experienced here this year, exceeded only by the big Caldwell & Peterson fire. As the books of the concern are at the Pittsburgh office, it is not known the amount of insurance carried on factory "II," though it was stated that the loss would be almost if not quite covered by insurance. plied, was by the use of many blankets and water saved.

The origin of the fire is not known. The first seen of the fire, was by the workmen in the factory building at 9:30, and at that time it seemed to have already had a good start. Many theories were hazarded, but none had any reliability.

The factory will, it is supposed, be rebuilt, though this cannot now be definitely stated.

A PARTY AT THE PARK.

Dancing in the Bracing and Fragrant Air last Night.

A more delightful place for a party could not be imagined than the park last night, with its bracing breezes, the fragrance of flowers and the ozone of the pines. With these charming surroundings, over fifty couples whiled away the hours from 8 o'clock until midnight dancing to the tuneful strains of the Opera House orchestra. Two notable features of the opening dance of the season at the park were the large number of visitors present from out of town and the beautiful display of attractive summer toilets worn by the ladies. The gentlemen were unconventional in their attire; dress suits, cool white flannels and negligee outfits were on an equality.

To Mr. Charles Cooke, who carefully arranged and carried out with success this charming June social event, those present are indebted for the many pleasant features of the evening. Refreshments were served at the Park restaurant.

Among the visitors present from other cities were Miss Rose McGraw and Miss Minnie McGraw, of Grafton; Miss Nellie Hazlett, of Washington, Pa.; Miss Ella Lewis, of Pittsburgh; Miss Mattie Swain, of New York; Miss Isabelle Spring, of Cumberland, Md.; Miss Mattie Bridgeport, of Mt. Sterling, Ky.; Miss Ada Collins, of Quincy, Ill.; Miss Bossie Dana, of Charleston, W. Va.; Mrs. Charles Mason Farrel, of Richmond, Va.; Mrs. Charles Hughes, of Atlanta, Ga.; Mr. Will Pearce, of Cumberland, Md.; Mr. Anderson, of Charleston, and Mr. Will Morris, of Pittsburgh.

Hague; vice councillor, Henry Hagedorn; recording secretary, Charles F. Schultze; assistant recording secretary, Dallas Porter; financial secretary, John Hagedorn; treasurer, William Latoush; inductor, John Copp; examiner, Thomas Spear; inside protector, William E. Hercules; outside protector, W. Harsho; trustee, S. Hague; representative to state council, which meets at Point Pleasant in August, Charles F. Schultze.

Insurance Agent Indicted.

At New Cumberland yesterday the jury directed the prosecuting attorney to draw up an indictment against F. H. Lemon, late agent of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, who was arrested for defrauding the company about the same time an agent and a physician got into trouble here. The grand jury is also investigating the sale of "hop tea." Numerous witnesses have been examined on the recent prize fight, the apparent intention being to indict participants and spectators alike.

Shot Himself for a Burglar.

DENVER, Col., June 25.—Col. Sam P. Rose was awakened at his residence, No. 1434 Evans street, early this morning and thinking it came from burglars he took his revolver and started to investigate. When about half way down stairs the revolver was accidentally discharged, the ball passing through his abdomen and causing death, before a physician could reach him. Col. Rose was one of the most prominent lawyers in the west.

DIED.

THOMAS—On Monday, June 25, 1893, WILLIAM THOMAS, aged 70 years, 3 months and 6 days. Funeral will take place from his late residence, No. 741 Main street, on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Friends of the family invited.

All gone—woman's suffering and woman's weakness. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription puts a stop to it. It's a remedy for all the delicate derangements and disorders that make her suffer, and a cure for all the diseases and disturbances that make her weak. It's a legitimate medicine, that corrects and cures; a tonic that invigorates and builds up; a nervine that soothes and strengthens. For bearing-down pains, displacements, and all the functional irregularities peculiar to the sex, it's a safe and certain remedy. Other medicines claim to cure? That's true. But they don't claim to do this: If the "Favorite Prescription" fails to benefit or cure, in any case for which it's recommended, the money paid for it is refunded. Judge for yourself which is likely to be the better medicine. And think whether something else offered by the dealer is likely to be "just as good." You pay only for the good you get. On these terms it's the cheapest.
