SOJOURNER TRUTH.

The Famous Colored Woman in Art at the Fair

HER STRANGE HISTORY RECALLED.

A Veritable Lybian Sibyl--Her Memorable Visit to President Lincoln. Some Notable Incidents of an Active and Useful Career in Behalf of Phil-

Chicago Inter-Ocean. In visiting the Columbian Fair at Chicago one may see in the Michigan building of state exhibits a realistic historical painting, which represents President Lincoln showing Sojourner Truth the Bible presented him by the colored people of Baltimore. The painting was executed by F. C. Courter, a Michigan artist, who seized upon the first and only meeting of these two remarkable personages for the subject of his picture. Sojourner visited Washington in the fall of 1864 and called upon the President in October of that year. The following is the account of her interview with him, as given in her own words: own words:

"It was 8 o'clock in the morning when I called upon the President and found him seated at his desk. My when I cause upon the rease. My friend said to him: "This is Sojourner Truth, who has come all the way from Michigan to see you." He then arose, gave me his hand, made a bow, and said: 'I am pleased to see you.' I said to him: 'Mr. President, when you first took your seat! feared you would be torn to pieces, for I likened you unto Daniel, who was thrown in the lion's den, and if the lions did not tear you into pieces I knew it was God who had saved you. I said if he spared me I would see you before the four years expired. He has done so and I am here to see you for myself."

"He then congratulated mo on having been spared. I then said: 'I appreciate you, for you are the best President who has ever taken the seat.' He replied: 'Doubtless you refer to my having emancipated the slaves in my proclamation.' I then said: 'Thank God that you were the instrument selected by him and the people to do it.' I told him I had never heard of him before he was talked of for President. He smiling replied, 'I had heard of you many times before that.' I then asked to see the Bible which had been given him by the colored people of Baltimore. He dispatched a messenger, who soon returned, bringing with him a silver mounted walbut box containing the Bible. This was placed upon the table, turned the leaves and showed me the engravings, which were richly table, by the side of which I was sitting. The President, standing by the table, turned the leaves and showed me the engravings, which were richly ornamented with gold. The cover bears a large plate of gold representing a slave with the shackles falling from him in a cotton field, stretching out his hands in gratitude to President Lincoln, for the freedom of his race. At the feet of the freedman there is a scroll bearing upon its face the word Emancifeet of the freedman there is a scroll bearing upon its face the word Emancipation, in large letters. On the reverse cover is another gold plate containing the following inscription, "To Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States, the friend of universal liberty, by the loyal people of Baltimore, as a token of respect and gratitude. Baltimore, July 4, 1884. The entire affair cost $5,800.

"After I had looked it over, I said how wonderful that the colored neople have given a Bible to the head of the government, and that government once sanctioned laws that would not permit its people to learn enough to read it.

its people to learn enough to read it. He replied: 'It is indeed most wonder-

He rephed: 'It is indeed also ful,'
"I am proud to say I was never treated with more kindness and cordiality than was shown me by that great and good man, Abraham Lincoln, by the grace of God President of the United States for four years more. He then took my little book, and with the same hand that signed the death warrant of slavery, he wrote:

For Aunty Sojourner Truth, Oct. 29, 1861.
A. Lincoln.

"As I was taking my leave, he arose, took my hand and said he would be pleased to have me call again. Soon be-pleased to have medali agitti. Soundes-coming deeply interested in hospital work, I never repeated my visit."

The life lines of these distinguished individuals were not dissimilar. Born in obscurity and reared in poverty they both achieved greatness. Kentucky's both achieved greatness. Kentucky's favorite son now stood at the head of a great nation, commander-in-chief of its great nation, commander-in-chief of its armies and navies, his social position inferior to none, not even the crowned heads of Europe. He was the idol of the loyal people over whom he ruled.

Sojourner having spent forty years in slavery had been emancipated by her native state New York, and was now not only enjoying the sweets of liberty, but was widely and honorably known. Bishop Haven writing of her says: "There is no more deserving lady in the land than Sojourner Truth. As one of the famous women of these famous times, covering her own experience the emancipation era from the declaration of New York in 1817 to Abraham Linof New York in 1817 to Abraham Lin-coln's proclamation, she deserves a spec-ial honor. The nation could rightfully grant her a pension for her services in the war, no less than for her labora since the war for the amelioration of those half enslayed."

A letter from Parker Pillsbury to the A latter from Parker Pillsbury to the Boston Liberator, October 5, 1858, says of Sojourner: "The wondrous experiences of this most remarkable women would make a library, if not a literature, could they all be gathered and spread before the world. I was much in her company for several years in the antislavery conflict, and have often seen her engaged in what seemed most unequal combat with the defenders of slavery and toes of freedom, but I never saw her when she did net scatter lier enemies with dismay and confusion, winning more than victory in every battle. In repartee Sojourner had no peer. winning more than victory in every battle. In repartee Sojourner had no peer. To a man who accosted her at the close of one her meetings with "Old women, do you think your talk about slavery does any good? Why," he continued, "I don't care any more for your talk than I do for the bits of a flea, "Perhaps not," she responded, "but the Lord willing I will keep you scratching." The Lord never hear'n tell of you," was her comforting remark to a young minister who was very much afflicted for fear that women would get their rights.

for fear that women would get their rights.
Lincoln like Sojourner, was an inimitable story-teller. His illustrations contained a keen sense of humor, a convincing logic, and of times a needed rebuke. His story of the revolving oven, as all may remember, was not only amusing, but in this respect quite in point. His wise sayings will go down as proverbs for coming generations.

During the war of the rebellion, Sojourner held a meeting in the Kalamano college. When she arose to speak there was quite a commotion among the students. Some broke into hilarious laughter, some thumped on the seats, others hissed. Sojourner stood upon the platform proud and grand, her tall, unbent form had a slightly swaying, graceful motion, as she fixed her keen oyes on the audience. At length she graceful motion, as she fixed her keen eyes on the audience. At length she addressed them with, "Well, children, when you go to heaven and God asks you what made you hate the colored people, have you got your answer roady?" After a pause she continued in a deep voice like rolling thunder: "When I go before the throne of God and God says, "Sojourner, what made you hate the whits people?" I have got my answer ready. She undid the collar of her dress and bared her arms to the shoulders, showing them covered with a perfect network of, scars made by the slave master's lash. The effect was overwhelming. The confusion ceased. Hisses and scoffs were succeeded by a baptism of tears.

Wendell Phillips witnessed the following scene. It was at a crowded public wendell Phillips witnessed the following scene. It was at a crowded public meeting at Faneuil Hall, where Frederick Douglass was one of the chief speaking. Douglass had been deeribing the wrongs of the black race, and as he proceeded he grew more and more excited, and finally ended by saying that they had no hope of justice from the whites, no possible hope except in their own right arms. It must come to blood; they must fight for themselves and redeem themselves, or it would never be done. Sojourner, was sittine, tall and dark, on the front seat, facing the platform; and in that hush of deep feeling, dark, on the front seat, facing the platform; and in that hush of deep feeling, after Douglass sat down, she spoke out in her deep, peculiar voige, heard all over the house, "Frederick, is God dead?" The effect was perfectly electrical, and thrilled through the whole house, changing as if by a flash the whole feeling of the audience. Not another word she said; it was enough. December 18, 1830, the Inter-Ocean wrote Sojourner asking for an original thought or sentiment to publish in its Christmas number.

thought or sentiment to publish in its Christmas number.

She responded as follows: "God or good is from everlasting to everlasting. To say that we had a beginning is to limit aternity. We must have existed in the eternal mind forever. There was no beginning till sin came. All that which had a beginning will have an end. Truth burns up error. God is the great house that holds all his children. We dwell in him as the fishes in the sens."

Sojourner says: In slavery I was dren. We dwell in him as the fishes in the seas."

Sojourner says: In slavery I was called Isabella and my last name was that of my last master. I was sold many times. But when I left the house of bondage I wanted to leave everything behind that reminded me of my former life. I asked the Lord to give me a new name and he gave me Sojourner, because I was to travol up and down the land showing the people their sins and being a sign unto harm. Afterward I told the Lord that I wanted a handle to my name, for other people had two names, and the Lord gave me Truth, becruse I was to declare the truth to the people.

In 1863 Harriet Beecher Stowe published an article in the Atlantic Monthly entitled "Sojourner Truth, the Lybian Sibyl," giving a graphic account of a visit she received from Sojourner at her home in Andover. Mrs. Stowe was entertaining several distinguished personages at this time, of whom Dr. Lymon Beecher was most conspicuous. Sojourner was formally introduced to this august-company. Mrs. Stowe goes on to say no princess could have received a drawing room with more composed dignity than Sojourner her audience. She stood among them calm and erect as one of her own native palm trees waving alone in the desert. and erect as one of her own native palm dience. She stood among them calm and erect as one of her own native palm trees waving alone in the desert.

I presented one after another to her, and at last said: "Sojourner, this is Dr. Beecher; he is a very celebrated preacher." "Is he?" she said, offering her hand in a condescending manner and looking down on his white head. "Ye dear lamb. I am glad to see you, the Lord bless ye, I loves preachers, I am kind of a preacher myself." "You are?" said Dr. Beecher. "Do you preach from the Bible?" "No, child, I can't preach from the Bible?" "No, child, I can't preach from the Bible, can't read a word." "Why, Sojourner, what do you preach from then?" Her answer was given with a solemn power of voice peculiar to herself that hushed everyone in the room: "When I preaches I have just one text to preach from, and I always preaches from this one text, 'When I found Jesus, etc."

Subsequently Mrs. Stowe visited.

one text, 'When I found Jesus, etc.'
Subsequently Mrs. Stowe visited
Rome, where she met Mr. W. W. Story, the sculptor, who was then engaged on the modeling of his glorious Cleopatra.
Already had his mind begun to turn toward Egypt in search of a type of art which would represent a larger and more vigorous development of nature than the cold elegance of Greek lines.
He became desployinterested in Sojourn-He became deeply interested in Sciourn er's history, which led his thought into the deeper recesses of the African na-ture, those unexplored mazes of being and feeling, mighty and dark as the and leeling, mighty and that as the gigantic depths of tropical icrests, mys-terious as the hidden rivers and mines of that burning continent, whose life history is yet to be. A few days later he conceived the idea of a statue which he called the Lybian Sibyl.

KILLED BY ANAROHISTS. Mrs. Reese Knew Their Secrets and They

Put Her Out of the Way. PITTSRURGH, PA., Sept. 25 .- Mrs. August Resse was murdered and her husband brutaffy and seriously beaten by anarchists at Calamity, Pa., last night. Calamity is a small mining town twenty miles south of here. There are two factions among the miners, one favoring and the other opposing anarchy. The Reeses belong to the latter. Sometime ago Mrs. Reese learned the secrets of the snarchiate and ner death was at once decreed.

Last night while they were returning from church they were met by two of the anarchiate, named Moen Laisen and August Brice, who at once opened fire upon them. Mrs. Reese was killed at the second shoot. The murderers then turned upon the husbend and beat him the second shoot. The murderers then turned upon the husbend and beat him into insensibility, after which they left him for dead. The firing attracted the attention of neighbors, who found the couple on the road. Reese was soon revived, and told the story of the assault. A party was organized and Laisens captured as he was leaving town. Brice had already succeeded in getting away.

Constable Mehaffey, of Calamity, says
the murder is the indirect result of the killing of a Frenchman a year ago.
Mrs. Reese became acquainted with the facts and also discovered that Laisen and Brice were about to leave for Canada where they were to blow up public buildings. Upon discovery that their secrets were known it was determined to put the Reese family out of the way.
It is thought Brice will be captured today.

THE CAMPERDOWN AGROUND. Another Sensation Caused in English Na val Circles.

London, September 25 .- Another sensation has been caused in naval circles. A dispatch to Lloyds from Malta says that the British battleship Camperdown ran aground there to-day while leaving port for England, where she was to undergo a thorough overhaul-ing. The Camperdown will be remem-membered as the monster ironclad which off Tripoli, Syria, ran into and sank the British flagship Victoria. When Lloyds' dispatch was sent the Ferris Wheel, at Chicago. Chicago, Sept. 24.—The guard in one of the cars of the Ferris wheel at the World's Fair had an exciting experience yesterday afternoon, as also did Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Wherritt, of Covington, Ky. Mr. Wherritt, it seems, is strangely affected when he ascends to great beighths, but his wife, who had been up in the wheel, said that she had no idea that it would affect him. Yes-terday afternoon they started up toterday afternoon they started up to-gether, and when the car was at the upper turn, 300 feet from the ground, Mr. Wherritt gave a scream and tried to dash through one of the windows. He seized one of the iron bars with which they are guarded, and tried to break it. The guard and some of the gentlemen in the car grappled with him and a furious struggle followed, the women in the car screaming and rushing franturious struggle followed, the women in the car screaming and rushing fran-tically from side to side to avoid the struggling men. The glass in the win-dows was broken, and Mr. Wherritt-cantinued unmanageable until the car reached the lower turn, when he began to calm down, and shortly after being removed from the car came to his senses again.

Why Bismarck is Delayed.

BERLIN, Sept. 25,-A dispatch from Kissengen says that the cause for delaying the return of Prince Bismarck to Friedrichsruhe is the illness of a female servant there, who is suffering from typhus fever. Mrs. Foster was from New England, and regarded life very seriously, never shrinking or turning back from the path of duty which lay before her, but she never realized that French was at all necessary until she visited Paris. Then she had to rely on a phrase-book, which relieved her mind of all care, but great-ly exercised the mental powers of the natives with whom she came in contact. natives with whom she came in contact. Her nephew, who was studying art in the French capital, secured for her an invitation to a reception given by a famious French artist. Mrs. Foster went, accompanied by her nephew (and the phrase book). She thought she knew just where to open it and read her lines. She was introduced in French to the artist. He spoke in French, her nephew replied in French. French, ber nephew replied in French, until the dear old lady got bewildered. -that's the way with the imitations of Pearline. It isn't surprising that so great a household help in all washing and cleaning should be so largely imitated; it isn't /1 surprising that these imitations fail; and it isn't surprising that they make still more popular the article on which the fraud is attempted. The merits of Pearline alone would make its sales increase, and the claims of peddlers and unscrupulous grocers that they have "the same
