A Coal Miner Killed. William McMahon was instantly killed at the Franklin coal mine yesterday. He and a driver named Owens started into the mine in a car and in some way the car struck a timber that supported the roof of the entry. The disturbance started a fall of several tons of the earth which came down on the car in which McMahon and the driver were riding. The driver was in the front of the car and escaped with slight injury, but McMahon was under the main part of the fall and was crushed to death. It took hard work for several hours to remove the earth and recover the body. He had been instantly killed. Deceased was sixty-one years of age. Some years ago he met with an accident by which he lost a leg and was otherwise injured.

A WARM FIRE

In the Heart of the City Last Night Gave the Firemen

AN OPPORTUNITY TO SHOW

THEIR SKILL IN FIGHTING UNDER DIFFICULTIES—CHIEF KILVEES AND HIS MEN ACQUITTED THEMSELVES WITH CREDIT—THE OLD BECK BREWERY MALT HOUSE THE SCENE OF THE BLAZE, WHICH LOOKED LIKE A CONFLAGRATION FOR A TIME.

A hot fire in the heart of the city last night gave Chief Kilvees and his men the opportunity to demonstrate that the standard of Wheeling's fire department, both as to ability in leadership and capacity of the men to carry out orders, has not been allowed to decrease one iota.

At 9:15 o'clock Officer Joe McCausland turned in an alarm at box 25 that brought out the entire strength of the city fire department to the corner of alley 12 and Market street. It had just been discovered that the large two and one-half story brick structure in the rear of Miller's saloon, occupied as a warehouse by W. A. List, and as a metal measuring factory by G. W. Stephens, was on fire. This is the former malt house of the old Beck brewery, and a building that has stood on its present site many years.

When the department arrived on the scene, fire was bursting in large volume from the roof and from one of the chimneys on the alley side. For a time the department was unable to get the water on the blaze effectively, and it appeared that the fire would involve surrounding property on at least three sides. The big five story brick building to the west, occupied by Schaefer & Eriehorst, the liquor wholesalers, was exposed to the heat for a time, but finally employees entered the building and closed the heavy iron shutters with which it is equipped at the rear. The Snyder building also has these iron shutters, and they were closed, so there was no danger of the fire spreading to that building.

Chief Kilvees and his men soon had two lines of hose on the roof of an adjoining building north of the burning structure, and in a minute the flames no longer soared high in the air, and it was at once seen that the firemen had got at the heart of the fire and had it conquered. A hearty cheer arose from the crowded alley where the efforts of the firemen had been watched with intense interest and anxiety. After that it was only a matter of time to put out the fire completely, and in forty minutes this was accomplished, and without having allowed the blaze to extend beyond the building in which it started—an accomplishment of which the department can feel proud. Much of the surrounding property is of a highly inflammable character and the long spell of dry weather made it almost like tinder. Under the circumstances it is wonderful that the fire did not extend and cause heavy loss.

When the department arrived on the scene, the word passed round that there was a large quantity of oil stored on the lower floor. Some of the firemen were engaged in moving this oil to a safe distance, when Foreman Henry Frohme was involved in an accident which, happily, did not result in injury. He was stumbling about in the darkness when he fell into the elevator shaft to the cellar below. Fortunately he was not in the least injured, and was soon assisted out of the shaft by the fire. A rumor was in circulation that Frohme had been suffocated in the building, but this of course was not true.

The principal loss by the fire falls on the Nick Crawley estate, the late owner of the building, in which the fire raged. Mr. E. B. Carney, agent for the estate, stated last night that the building is valued at $5,000, and that $2,500 insurance is carried in the Peabody, of Wheeling, is carried. He was not in a position to estimate the loss, but it is believed to have exceeded $1,000, probably less than that figure.

The first and second floors of the building were occupied by W. A. List & Company, the iron roofing and tin plate business in on Main street, big used as a warehouse. Until two weeks ago this firm also occupied the third floor, where the fire raged, but had sold out the metal measure manufacturing business to George W. Stephens, who continued it in the same place.

Mr. List said last night that his loss is fully covered by insurance, but it is not thought it will amount to much, the goods being of a kind not affected by water. Stephens' loss will reach $500 and is covered by insurance. The fire made a very bright light. Persons on the Island, in the upper and lower parts of the city and in neighboring towns thought a terrific conflagration was in progress. Many telephone inquiries were received at the Intelligencer office.

Investigation after the fire had been extinguished revealed the manner of its starting. It seems two men employed in the factory on the third floor were at work in painting severely diseased measures that were to be shipped to-day, just as the work was being finished a candle that illuminated the room was overturned and, as one of the men puts it, "the light just seemed to jump to those freshly painted measures." The two men, it is believed, were on the blaze at its inception, but after one had burned his face badly and the hand of the other was blistered, they gave up the unequal and hopeless struggle and ran down into the alley and spread the alarm. They went back to the building, but at that time the fire had spread with wonderful rapidity and the entire third floor was a sea of seething flame.

Blaze in a Kitchen. About 5:30 o'clock last evening the fire department was called to extinguish a blaze at the home of Mr. George Breidling, 2105 Eoff street. The fire was located in a summer kitchen, and originated in some manner from natural gas. Some of the dishes were on the stove when the blaze was extinguished, it having got a good start when the firemen reached it. The damage was about $250; covered by insurance.
