THE MISTRESS AND MAID.

A Very Quaint Re-presentation of a Vex-

"Her name is Gertrude,"

"Do you think she will live up to it?" "She may. I never knew a Gertrude who did outside of a novel. And I asked her her name and began to call her by it at once, as if I had a perfect right to do so"

"My dear, hadn't you?"
"No real right, of course; only the right of impertment custom. Think how I would have stared if she would have asked me my name and then proceeded to call me Doris." My neighbor herself stared for a mo-ment or two.

"But they are not parallel cases."

"Exactly parallel. Gertrude Anderson sives me her services for what we call a sufficient recompense, though she knows, and I know, that the benefit is largely on my side, but this places our relationship on a purely business foundation. There is nothing in me that entilles me to any service from any human being except that for which I can given equivalent, So thile I pay Gertrude we stand on equal grounds, and if were really a lady I would call her lists Anderson."

We are all God's women, and while I might be able to teach my housemaid to play a sonata, she might in return give me lessons in some far higher grace. I know the woman grandest in Christian virtues who ever came into my life was a little trish washerwoman, with a face like a saint and a soul to match it. When she saint and a soul to match it. When she told me the history of her early days I felt that I could sit at her feet and learn be noble. And she did not know greatness of the life she unfolded the greatness of the life she unfolded before me. She spoke deprecatingly— 'ashamed to trouble me with her trou-bles.' She did not realize that she had teught me a lesson in courage, in lov-ing kindness—yes, in sublimity of soul— that has helped me to be a better woman ever since.' woman ever since."

"Well, you will certainly admit that she was the exception to the rule?"
"Just as a specially high-minded woman is the exception to the rule in what we call 'our class.' Not long ago I met, at a woman's club of esthelic tendencies, half a dozen women whom I knew well, and who employed each from one to four servants. One of these 'mistresses,' before her fortunate marriage, had made sheets on a sewing machine for a dollar and a half a dozen. Another had walked through snow and rain, ill-fed and ill-clad, to sing in the Another had walked through snow and rain, ill-fed and ill-clad, to sing in the chorus of an opera. Another had worked in a restaurant where only men reserted—men who smoked in her presence and talked siang and perhaps language less permissible occasionally. Another had spent the best years of her life behind a counter selling goods to the multitude. Not one of these women had had the advantages of education. Two of them could not write women and an at the advantages of en-cention. Two of them could not write nor word an ordinary letter with per-fect correctness; yet these were the women who talked of servants as 'a class,' creatures by nature 'inferior'— not to be considered as beings on the same plane with us."

This young man and the pretty girl were seated in the parlor one evening when the telephone bell rang. A maid came to the door and told the pretty girl that she was wanted at the phone. She burried away. The young man sauntered after her, and overheard the sonversation, or rather, her half of it. "Hello."

Philadelphia Times: A pathetic incident came to notice yesterday. A man just returned to Philadelphia after an absence of ten years, sought out his beyhood's church. The preacher took for his text, "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." While the collection was being taken the alto sang, "O Rest in the Lord," and a little later on the entire choir sang, "There is Rest for You." But for one listener, at least, the visiting stranger, there came no rest. To the front, on each side, all around him, were hats, new fall hats, the great big kind, with waving plumes, nodding signettes and enormous birds, like unto which there is nothing in the heaven above nor the earth beneath. Try as he did to look at the preacher, ever and sann tier after tier of big hats rose before him, an almost impenetrable barrier of mammoth millinery construction. The harder he tried, the more hopeless it became, the only results of a persistent ducking, dodging, twisting, furning, first one side and then to the other, an occasional glimpse of two apparently detached fragments of human anatomy alternately and some-times simultaneously gesticulating, and a pain in the back of the head. The pain increased steadily—the sermon was compelled to seek medical assistance.

594c. Mexican dollars 454c. To-day's market looked very much as though an effort was being made to test it for a rise. Many of the profes sional*traders have concluded that liquidation has about run its course, and there has been a cessation of the bear campaign. Opinions have differed among the professionals as to whether conditions in the stock market are ready for a sustained advance in prices again. The bears made an abortive effort early in the day to raid the market and directed an attack against Sugar and Chicago Gas. The fallure of the raid encouraged the bulls to ag-gressive action, and there were indica-tions of the reappearance in the market of some of the lavge buying interests which were prominent in the late rise of the market. This professional buy-ing carried prices up quite strongly, net advances throughout the list ranging of the market. This professional buying carried prices up quite strongly, net advances throughout the list ranging from one to three points. But the bulls were apparently satisfied with a short turn and they commenced to sell to realize profits about half an hour before the close. This carried prices down in some cases below last night's close, and where net gains remained they were in almost all cases fractional. The success of the bears was frustrated in part owing to the special strength in Sugarand Chicago Gas upon which they relied to work a sympathetic decline in the balance of the list. Sugar was strong on the decision of the treasury department to hold Dutch refined sugars conditionally liable to the countervailing duty, which applies to imported sugars upon which an export bounty is paid.

Chicago Gas derived strength from rumors of a compromise with the threatened competition. The market showed considerable increase of activity ascompared with the last few days, but was still almost purely professional.

compared with the last few days, but was still almost purely professional. London changed from its recent attitude and sold stocks here. Additional reports of railroad earnings for the second week in October all show handsome increases and many vague tumors were afloat of still more striking improvements to be shown in statements not yet issued. The large movement of cotton along lines recently released from quarantine restriction was ments not yet issued. The large movement of cotton along lines recently released from quarantine restriction was shown by reports and gave strength to the railroads affected. The exchange continued firm and the local money market easy, the small withdrawal of American eagles from the Bank of England for shipment to New York, not being considered of importance. Some business is being done in the placing of loans on long sterling which is in effect the lending of money abroad. This naturally tends to keep up the rate of exchange. The continued ease of the local money market and the large resources in hand by interior banks owing to the large payment of debts following the crop movement are the inducements for thus deferring the movement of gold this way. The marked net changes were gains of six points by Hocking Valley preferred; 2½ by Manhattan; 2 by Metropolitan Traction and New Jersey Central; 4 by Rubber preferred; 3 by Minneapolis & St. Louis second preferred, and 2½ by Pullman.

Bonds were strong in sympathy with stocks. One 250,000 block of Union Pacific collateral trust notes was sold at 69, and another block of 150,000 at the same price. Total sales $2,325,000.

Evening Post's London financial cablegram:

The stock markets were idle to-day,

only professional.
The dullest market was Brazils which stock markets were idle to-day,

The duliest market was Brazils, which were flat on reports that the negotia-tions for the sale of certain Brazillar state rallways to a foreign syndicate have been suspended.

state railways to a toreign syndrate have been suspended.

I am informed in credible quarters that the sale of American eagles yesterday and to-day by the Bank of England is really for Germany, the reason given being that owing to the lightness of many of the sovereigns withdrawn, it pays better to take eagles at the present price. The amount of eagles withdrawn to-day was 52,000, and the total amount of bullion taken was 72,000 pounds.

Wheat was steady at about yesterday's closing price at and for a few minutes after the opening and then it was subjected to some bearish influences that caused it to decline I per cent per bushel during the next hour. May was not as weak as December during the time referred to, owing, it was supposed, to the action of the buil clique, who, as on the day before, sold December at or above $1c, and bought the May when it was weak. The comparative firmness during the first few minutes was because of a further reduction in northwestern receipts and steadiness of the Liverpool and Paris markets, both of which quoted prices unchanged from the previous day's closing. The bearish news came partly from the northwest, and partly from the northwest of the first fact, but more serious news was the reported sale at Duluth of 200,000 bushels of 125,000,000 bushels instead of 125,000,000 bushels in the reported sale at Duluth of 200,000 bushels of 100,000 bushels of 100,00
