

BUSINESS MATTERS.

A Healthy Tone Pervades New York Stock Market.

A VERY CONSERVATIVE SPIRIT

Animates all Transactions—The Last Six Months of Business Revival Will Result in the Liberal Distribution of Earnings—A Still Better State of Trade is Expected for the Next Season—Bright Prospects Ahead for the New Year.

Special Correspondence.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The market for securities retains the same general features as we have had to note for recent weeks; except that the volume of transactions has fallen still lower. Outside speculative operations have become almost insignificant, and transactions are mainly confined to operators for fractional profits by room traders.

The purely speculative spirit is at a low ebb, and very naturally so. Such a reaction as we have lately experienced makes the most sanguine sober and timid. All great and sudden rises are largely stimulated by the feeble and less experienced operators. Their confidence rises in proportion as prices advance; and when the more prudent have realized at a profit and the whole weight of the market rests on these lighter supports, they rush from the extreme of sanguine expectation to that of utter disappointment and distrust; and, worse still, their means are dispersed and they are no longer a buying factor in the market.

It is some years since so many of this class of operators were on the market as during the recent rise; they were the main element in the advance, and their absence or inability now constitute a main cause of the prevailing stagnancy. No matter how cheap stocks may be at the present range of values; nor how large the earnings of the railroads; nor how encouraging the condition and general outlook of business interests; nor how much political dangers may have abated—all this amounts to little so long as the market lacks the vanguard of the mass of sanguine minor operators who always take the lead in starting booms.

The larger operators await their lead, because they value their co-operation and do not care to buy until they see in the market a class on whom they may be able to sell out.

With the large mass of stocks placed on the market during the recent realization of railroad capitalists, the larger operators are likely to stand aloof until they see some new elements of speculative vitality in the market. With them, good conditions are not the only prerequisite to buying; they want the co-operation of a class who will help them in advancing prices. Apparently, there are few now remaining in the market of those who performed that service during the late rise. A new set of outside buyers is needed, and it is a matter of conjecture as to when that contingent may be expected in the field.

Approaching conditions may supply that want. The settlements and interest disbursements made at the end of the year distribute a large amount of funds, which usually contribute to a January rise in prices. The last six months of business revival, especially in the interior cities, is likely to result in liberal distributions of earnings; and that money may be expected to find its way, more or less, into Wall street.

That, however, will depend, in some measure, upon what may be the prevailing feeling at the opening of the year. That ought to be good. All reports agree in representing that, in the agricultural sections, the results of the last half year's business have been unusually satisfactory. Moreover, a still better state of trade is expected for the next season. The improved state of our manufactures is showing itself in a steady increase in wages and the general full operation of the factories.

In short, a prosperous spring trade is taken as a foregone conclusion. How the action of Congress may affect these prospects remains to be seen. It seems safe to take it for granted that we have little to fear from Congress. Also, there seems reason to hope that, when Congressmen feel the public pulse as it beats at Washington, they will come to the conclusion that the currency question cannot be so easily shelved as some of them have hoped; and any disposition to do something real and effective toward giving us permanently sound money would prove a very positive help to confidence among the business and investing classes, and would favorably affect the status of our securities in the foreign market.

Personal Bryanite hostility to the transportation interest. Upon the whole, therefore, we see no reasons why the New Year may not be expected to open with a better feeling in the stock market and a renewal of speculative buying. The congressional discussion of the railroad question is likely to be attended with disturbing proposals, but so long as there is little probability of their acceptance, such occurrences would afford only transient variations in the course of prices. There is no doubt much holding back from Wall street operations with a view to

A Never-die.

The "life-time" of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup will never draw to a close. When a mother once uses it, she continues its use right along; because, she found, for curing cough, cold, croup and whooping-cough, Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup unequalled by any other similar medicine. "I have used Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, for ten or fifteen years in the family, for coughs and throat troubles caused by colds, and have found no superior article." Mrs. D. T. Clarke, 103 Congress St., Cleveland, O. Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup can be had everywhere for 25 cents. Dealers will say they have something else "just as good or better," because they want to make more profit. Don't be "taken in." Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is the best.

ascertaining the temper of Congress and the drift of conditions at the opening of the year; and, when those have ceased to be uncertainties of the future, we look for a resumption of speculation; with what force or measure of results the event must show. Nothing is more difficult than to forecast the moods of Wall street. They depend more on whims, or accidents, or ruts than upon conditions of fact which really affect the earning capacity of property; a fact of which the present instability of stocks to the large earnings of the railroads is a striking evidence. Two great facts are obvious, however: that stocks are low at present prices, and that the general conditions which regulate their value warrant an upward movement.

To permanent investors, the market presents probably about as low a range of prices as we are likely to see for some time. For such a defensible purchase, would be to face a prospect that, at a later stage, higher prices will have to be paid. Speculative purchases, if made on drops, afford a fair chance for moderate gains on the principle of small profits and quick returns. Such operations are better suited to the present position of the market than large purchases and long holdings.

Wool. Bradstreets: The market has shown more activity in Australian wools, and some large lines have been cleaned up in Boston during the past ten days. The sales were fully 8,000 to 9,000 bales, and fully 75 per cent. went to manufacturers. The London sales open this week with the prospect of higher prices, and manufacturers have quietly bought these big lines in anticipation. The prices ruling are about 4c to 5c below the scoured cost to import, and leading mill men look upon it as good business to buy. Many leading importers have sold out, and others could have done so if they would let the balance of their wool go at ruling prices. Domestic wools are quiet, but the tone is firmer as a whole, and dealers feel that their holdings are good property.

MORE EVIDENCES OF THE PROSPERITY THAT WAS PROPAGATED INCREASED WAGES. PITTSBURGH, Nov. 28.—There was rejoicing among 3,000 employees of Jones & Laughlin's American iron works yesterday. The cause of this display of feeling was the announcement made by the firm that all the day men will receive a ten per cent. advance in wages after Wednesday, December 1. Assistant Manager William Albright went around among the foremen of the various departments yesterday morning and announced the increase. The advance is a restoration of the ten per cent. reduction made by the firm last year.

Every department in the big works will be affected. The increase applies to all employees who are paid by the day. Among these are the laborers, who will get $1.25 instead of $1.12; the roll-turners, machinists, foundry employees and day men in the steel works and rolling mills. The announcement of the advance did not come entirely unexpected. It was promised about two months ago when the machinists asked for an advance. At that time Manager Jones said the firm intended to increase the wages of all day men before the beginning of the new year. No specific reason for the change was given, but it is known that the firm has been pressed with orders during the past few months, and it has also been learned that still greater activity is looked for in the spring.

Recently Jones & Laughlin have been receiving orders from all parts of the world, in a number of cases they have under-sold English steel rail manufacturers in their own market, and only a few days ago an order for 12,000 shafting hangers was received from one of the big South Africa gold mining companies and an additional order has been received for a large supply of mining machinery. This order, it is said, is one of the largest ever received from a foreign country. The shafting to be used in the machinery above mentioned was secured by an English firm who were bidding against the Pittsburgh company.

CATCH A MONSTER TURTLE. Fishermen at Foot of Randolph Street, Chicago, Made a Novel Hunt. CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—The green turtle-fishing industry was fairly started at the Randolph street pier to-day, when three hardy fishermen of the lake front captured one of the largest turtles ever seen in Chicago. Incidentally, this capture violates tradition and the dictum of every natural history.

Never before was a green turtle captured in northern waters or in any of the great lakes and the only recorded instances where these turtles were found in fresh water was in a few cases along the lower Mississippi. Yet the turtle—a giant, weighing 620 pounds—was caught in ice-cold fresh water fully 5,000 miles by the lake route from its home and was alive and pugnacious when brought to shore.

Frank and John Martin and Charles Crager, who have a houseboat off the pier and run a number of nets out in deeper water, went out at noon to gather in their morning catch of perch. The first net proved so heavy that the men thought a dead body—probably that of the aeronaut who was drowned in the vicinity a few days ago—had become tangled in the meshes. As the net neared the surface, it could be seen dimly heaving and surging, as if some huge creature was imprisoned within.

Believing that a sturgeon had wandered into the trap, the men pulled hard, and a flipper shot out of the water and swept around like a fan.

Although utterly astounded, the men did not let go of their prize. Thinking that a sea lion had become their prisoner, they sent one of their number after weapons, and then, armed for the encounter, gave another pull. The vicious head of a huge turtle appeared above the surface and a lively battle followed. A blow from a hatchet stunned the creature and three flaps were sunk into its shell. By the hardest kind of work, it was towed ashore.

"I never heard of such a thing before," said one of the fishermen. "The color, the size, the shape of the flippers and the kite form of the shell all identify it as a green sea turtle—a tropical creature. It either escaped from the world's fair aquariums four years ago, and has managed to survive the cold winters since, or it swam all the way from the Gulf of Mexico. The former idea seems impossible, as it surely would have been killed by too long a swim, so that it must have beaten all turtle records in the way of travel. First time I ever heard of a salt-water turtle living in the great lakes, into the bargain."

The turtle is about five feet over the shell, has flippers as large as turkey wings and a head and neck the size of a calf's dome of understanding. Naturalists and scientific men are invited to view it and offer explanations of its presence to-morrow.

Miraculous Benefit RECEIVED FROM Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure.

ELI P. BABCOCK, of Avoca, N. Y., a veteran of the 8th N. Y. Artillery and for thirty years of the Babcock & Munsell Carriage Co., of Auburn, says: "I write to express my gratitude for the miraculous benefit received from Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. I suffered for years, as a result of army life, from catarrh which affected my heart in the worst form, my limbs swelled from the ankles up. I bloated until I was unable to button my clothing; had sharp pains about the heart, smothering spells and shortness of breath. For three months I was unable to lie down, and all the sleep I got was in an arm chair. I was treated by the best doctors but gradually grew worse. About a year ago I commenced taking Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure and it saved my life as if by a miracle."

Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle benefits or money refunded. Book on diseases of the heart and nerves free. Address, DR. MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

Coffee Which is Good. To very many people a cup of coffee means the whole of one's breakfast and if that cup is not perfect half the day is spoiled. There are several different ways to make splendid coffee.

One method is to have a tinsmith make a cup of perforated tin about the size of a coffee cup with a securely fitting cover into which is soldered a ring by which it may be removed from the pot before the coffee is served. Into this cup put a small tablespoonful of pulverized coffee for each person and let it stand all night in the coffee-pot with one cupful of cold water for each spoonful of coffee. In the morning place it on the stove and let it come to a boil and then keep it hot on the back of the stove while breakfast is put on the table. Before serving remove the cup containing the grounds and add a cup of boiling water and you have coffee which is perfect. A thin muslin sack may be used in place of the cup, but is not so satisfactory.

In serving the coffee put the sugar and cream in the cup and then pour on the coffee and the result will rival the famous Vienna coffee.

To make good coffee from package coffee take a tablespoonful for each person, add one egg, mix well and add a cup of cold water for each spoonful. After boiling add a cup of hot water to replace what has steamed away. Coffee to be used for dinner should be prepared in cold water in the morning. If this method is tried it will be found a great improvement on the old way of boiling at the precise moment the coffee is wanted.

THE three-year-old boy of J. A. Johnson, of Lynn Center, Ill., is subject to attacks of croup. Mr. Johnson says he is satisfied that the timely use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, during a severe attack, saved his little boy's life. He is in the drug business, a member of the firm of Johnson Bros., of that place; and they handle a great many patent medicines for throat and lung diseases. He had all these to choose from, and skilled physicians ready to respond to his call, but selected this remedy for use in his own family at a time when his child's life was in danger, because he knew it to be superior to any other, and famous the country round for its cures of croup. Mr. Johnson says this is the best selling cough medicine they handle, and that it gives splendid satisfaction in all cases. Sold by all druggists.

MR. WYNKOOP'S BAD MEMORY.

Tale of a Delayed Letter and a Preacher's Sunday Text.

Mr. Wynkoop—By the way, dear, here is a letter that came to-day. Mrs. Wynkoop—Ah, yes, to be sure. It's from Sarah, dated ten days ago. Mr. Wynkoop, I think it's an outrage for you to lug my letters around in your musty, damp pockets for a week at a time. If necessary, I'll—

Mr. Wynkoop—You are mistaken; that letter arrived this morning. Mrs. Wynkoop—It did, did it? In soiled condition; ten days from Staunton? That's a likely story.

Mr. Wynkoop—You do me great injustice, my dear; this letter came by the train that was wrecked at Charlottesville and that accounts for the delay.

Mrs. Wynkoop—That accounts for it, does it? Then how do you account for the fact that the postmark on the back of the letter shows it was received at the post-office in this city the day after it was mailed at Staunton? Mr. Wynkoop, you cannot remember anything over three minutes; it's a wonder you don't forget to draw your salary.

Mr. Wynkoop—Madam, I have a good memory; this is an outrageous attack upon me.

Mrs. Wynkoop—Good memory, indeed! I'll wager my prospective winter bonnet against $10 that you cannot go to church to-morrow and remember Dr. Lamb's text; you need not try to recollect a thing except the text.

Mr. Wynkoop—I accept the proposition, and I promise you that you will have a fine time regretting your hasty action.

Yesterday Mr. Wynkoop occupied a front pew in church. The text was: An angel of the Lord came down from heaven and seized a live coal from near the horns of the altar.

Mr. Wynkoop did not remain to hear the discourse, but dashed home and exclaimed to his wife: "You may go ahead and brush up your old bonnet; I have the text."

Mrs. Wynkoop—Very well; what was it? Mr. Wynkoop—An Indian came down from New Haven and seized a live coal by the tail and jerked him out of the halter.—Washington Post.

Picked Up on the Pike while Our Representative was in Benwood.

As our representative wended his way recently to the southern suburbs of Benwood and walked along the pike to No. 1250 he repeatedly asked himself this question: Will the proof, which now appears below, touching the claims made for an article in daily use in Wheeling, convince the reader more than what he has all his lifetime been accustomed to see, viz.: Long winded statements from people he never knew, never will know, and does not want to know. Read what Mrs. R. E. Sharp says and see. She can be easily found. Her husband keeps the Dry Goods and General Produce store on the Pike: "My back or my kidneys have never been very strong," she says, "especially the last four or five years, but it is only lately that they became real bad. I think probably the trouble was aggravated by a cold, settling chiefly in the left kidney. There was a soreness and aching pain that extended down through the thigh, and I suffered a great deal from headaches, and I felt generally run down and used up, as my back bothered me a great deal in getting around the house. I had seen Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended, on different occasions, and as I was complaining of my back being worse than usual, my mother got a box for me at the Logan Drug Co., and I began to use them. They relieved my back right away, and I feel very much stronger and better. I recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as being all that is claimed for them."
