THE INTELLIGENCER.

WHEELING, MAY 30, 1898.
CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE.

The Republican Congressional Committee of the First Congressional District will meet at the office of the secretary, 1417 Chapline street, Wheeling, on Tuesday June 7, at 7:30 p. m., to fix the time and place and complete the arrangements for a convention to nominate a candidate for Congress.

C. D. ELLIOT, Chairman.
W. J. W. COWDEN, Secretary.

Memorial Day.
To-day is Memorial Day, set apart as the annual occasion when the people assemble to pay tribute to the Nation's dead, and no Memorial Day celebrated since the beautiful custom was inaugurated, has had a deeper and broader significance than the one to be observed on this 30th of May.

While the custom of decorating the graves of the heroic dead is an ancient one, and the classics are filled with descriptions of how the people assembled at stated periods for such purposes, the idea of making such an occasion a national holiday in this country, by a legislative act of the Congress of the United States, originated about three years after the close of the civil war.

At that time the idea, which had its inception in the mind of Mrs. John A.
Logan, wife of the great volunteer general, on visiting a Confederate cemetery at Richmond, where the graves had been decorated with wreaths of flowers, contemplated the remembrance only of the graves of those who fell in the battles for the Union. It was the husband of Mrs. Logan, who, as commander of the national G. A. R., and at her suggestion, issued the first decoration day order for May 30, 1868, and afterward secured recognition of that date in each year as our National Memorial Day, by act of Congress.

Since then the day has gradually grown to be observed in a broader sense than was at first intended, and while it has retained its distinctive character as an occasion for honoring the memories of those who fell on the northern side in the war between the states, all sectionalism has disappeared, and every grave containing what is mortal of one who made sacrifices in a cause he believed to be right, whether he wore the blue or the gray, is remembered by those who participate in the beautiful ceremony of paying tribute to the memory of their own dead, while it is often made the occasion by individuals for the remembrance of the loved ones that have gone from the family circle.

To-day there is more reason than ever before to make this an occasion on which all American heroes will be remembered, and when sectional lines are to be regarded as only a memory, as they will be regarded forever hereafter.
At this time, when the people of the United States are united by the bonds of patriotism in a mighty cause for humanity and civilization, Decoration Day will be marked by the recalling of American valor and the honoring of the American soldier dead, under whatever sun they lie, and whatever monument or humble slab may mark the resting place.

This will be, in view of the common cause so near to the hearts of all Americans to-day, an occasion for the renewal and the cementing of the ties of the common brotherhood of one country, under one flag and with one patriotic purpose, pledging anew devotion to the government of the great republic in its war for humanity, over the graves of those of the past who made it possible for such a patriotic unity to exist, and never to perish from the earth.

Patriotism of Our Women.
The daughters of the American Revolution have begun practical work on the lines laid down in the offer made by the national board of management, in tendering the services of the society to the government, at its April meeting. The surgeons general of the army and the navy have approved and recognized this offer, and at the regular May meeting of the board it was resolved to raise a large fund to carry on the work of mercy the daughters have mapped out.

In taking this action the representatives of this society of patriotic women have set an example that will doubtless be followed by other organizations of women whose aims and objects are humane, patriotic and charitable. The acceptance by the government of the offers of the D. A. R. hospital corps, and the response of the members of the society to the efforts of the board of management on that line, has quickened the desire to broaden the work, and the resolutions adopted at the May meeting outline the programme as follows:

"Whereas, The efforts of this hospital corps have quickened the desire for further work in this hour of our country's need; and

"Whereas, We are informed that the time is approaching when a large amount of money will be needed for special demands from sickness and other causes, consequent upon this struggle by sea and by land; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That in addition to the work of the D. A. R. Hospital Corps, every chapter and member-at-large of our National Society, D. A. R., be requested to unite at once in a general effort to succor families of men who have gone to the front, and to furnish comforts for soldiers and sailors, regular or volunteer.

"Be it further resolved, That all members of the National Society, D. A. R., are strongly urged to immediate action for the accumulation of a large sum of money to be used in emergency and extraordinary calls of every kind, such as are attendant upon the condition of a nation engaged in warfare, and in furtherance of this purpose we would recommend that the interest of all patriots be invoked in raising this fund, to be known as the 'D. A. R. fund.'

"Be it further resolved, That a war committee, composed of the members of the national board of managers, with the addition of Mrs. George M. Sternberg and Mrs. Charles L. Alden, be formed; that the treasurer general, National Society of the D. A. R., be elected treasurer of the war fund, and that the monies be under the authority and direction of a sub-committee.

"Be it further resolved, That we advise the raising of such a sum of money as will be commensurate with the spirit and aims of the National Society of the D. A. R."

This is a noble undertaking, and fairly reflects the spirit which prevails among the women of all America in this great hour of a crisis in the history of the country, which has gone to war to promote civilization and the cause of humanity. We may confidently look to similar action by other organizations, for it is characteristic of American womanhood to step promptly to the front at such a time. It has been the case in all the wars of our history from the time of the women of the revolution, down to the present. It was witnessed in both the north and the south in the civil war, the last vestige of feeling from which strife has been completely obliterated by the present emergency among the noble women of our land, as well as among the patriotic manhood finding its way to the front to fight the battles with a common foreign foe.

It is true we have the Red Cross Society, led by that blessed angel of mercy, Clara Barton, but there is other work to do, and if the war should assume a more serious phase than that which is now expected, there will be no lack of earnest volunteers from among the women for the purpose of seconding with contributions and personal effort the heroic labors of that noble band.

The daughters of the American Revolution represent in themselves the type of American womanhood whose patriotism has been the theme of song and story for a century—a womanhood, which is not all descended from the revolutionary fathers and mothers, but which is found in every American home, whether it be a home established by adoption by those of foreign birth in recent years, or a home which traces its ancestry back to the Pilgrim fathers, or the pioneers of Virginia.

Spaniards Deceive Spaniards.
If one-half the reports that the Spanish government is giving out to the public in Madrid were true the war would already be settled in favor of Spain. One of the latest is that the leader of the Philippine insurgents has declared in favor of the Spaniards after having received arms and field pieces from Rear Admiral Dewey; another is that the Spaniards have re-taken Cavite; another that Cervera's fleet at Santiago has defeated the American flying squadron under Schley. All of these, of course, are untrue.

There are other and similar reports given out to bolster up the courage of the Spanish populace at home, and to allay the revolutionary spirit, which needs but the news of another Spanish defeat to be again stirred into action.
This sort of home tactics cannot last long in Spain, for dispatches to London papers already assert that the people are growing tired of the deceits that have been practiced upon them, and which they are beginning to suspect. It has been easy heretofore for the Spanish authorities to deceive the masses in Spain into believing anything and everything they chose to promulgate.

With a government censorship of the press, strictly enforced, and the fact that more than 70 per cent of the Spanish population is illiterate, it is no wonder that for almost a month after the battle of Manila we read of celebrations of the alleged dispersal of the Dewey fleet being held in some portions of Spain. What the Spanish authorities expect to gain by this course toward their own people, except a postponement of the uprising that threatens the dynasty would be hard to imagine. Such things are not doing the American cause any harm, but they are laying up for the Spanish government a reckoning for the future, when the Spanish populace come to learn how they are being misled into a feeling of security when there is everything in the situation that should tend to discourage them.

Work of the Cruiser St. Louis.

The auxiliary cruiser St. Louis, which returned to New York Saturday, gives a good account of herself—or, at least, her officers do for her. She has just finished a 6,000 mile cruise in the West Indies, and had some exciting experiences. She accomplished her mission, however, and has returned none the worse for wear to have heavier guns placed upon her, when she will be ready for further important duty.

The St. Louis, during her cruise, cut three cables, the one north of Porto Rico, connecting with San Domingo, the one between Santiago and Jamaica, and the one between Guantanamo and Cape Haytien. The St. Louis proved her efficiency by holding up her end well at Santiago, and in a fight with a Spanish gunboat at Guantanamo, which attacked the little American gunboat Wampatuck from ambush.

The cruiser brings much important information, it is said, to the government concerning the fortifications on the Cuban and Porto Rico coast, and confirms the newspaper reports of the damage inflicted at San Juan by Sampson's fleet.
During the entire cruise the Spanish fleet was not sighted at all. The important statement is made that when the cruiser was before Santiago on Tuesday and Wednesday of last week cutting the cable, there was no sign that Cervera's squadron was there. This would seem to contradict the published report that the Spanish ships were in the harbor on Tuesday and Wednesday, although it was possible for them to be there without the St. Louis' knowledge, owing to the intervening embankments.

The Pittsburgh Dispatch's staff correspondent at Chickamauga is doing little in the direction of popularizing that paper in this state by his continued misrepresentations of the West Virginia troops, in detailing sufferings which they have never experienced. The In-TELLIGENCER's correspondent on the ground, who is a member of the regiment, pays his respects to some of these misrepresentations, and shows the absurdity of them. The Dispatch man began his sensational work at Charleston and has been keeping it up ever since.
The friends of our boys at Chickamauga will be glad to learn that they are faring so well, in spite of the Dispatch's stories.

The Emperor William, of Germany, rescued a woman bicyclist from death by jumping from his carriage and snatching her from under the wheels of a cab. This is what most any man of presence of mind and activity would have done, but the incident would not have been cabled over the world had an ordinary citizen been the hero. It might also be said, however, that not every emperor or king would have borered his head about risking his own limbs to rescue an ordinary individual from a street accident, and the Kaiser is entitled to especial credit, on that account, for his gallantry.

The authorities of the United States are making a great mistake in not calling into their councils the able editors of some of the newspapers of the country. More expert opinion on the conduct of the war and advice as to strategy have been developed in the editorial sanctuaries of certain sensational papers than has been written by the army and navy authorities in the past century. It is simply wonderful.

The eighth annual catalogue of the West Virginia Conference Seminary, at Duckhannon, shows the institution to be in a prosperous condition, and widening its field work. The effort is being made, with good hope of success, to raise the courses of studies to the full college grade, and a first class college in the heart of West Virginia is not one of the impossibilities of the future.

Another Spanish canard has been nailed by official reports. There is absolutely no truth in the report that the United States cruiser Baltimore, of Admiral Dewey's fleet, has been damaged by an explosion. The disastrous experiment of the Spaniards in exploding one American battleship should cause them to refrain from engaging in any more such ventures, even on paper.

Now is a golden opportunity for Conan Doyle to write a record-breaking detective story. He might get his pen to work and have Sherlock Holmes find the Spanish Cape Verde fleet for us.

The Century Magazine.
The fifty-fifth volume of The Century, containing the monthly numbers of the magazine from November to April, inclusive, has just made its appearance.
A glance at the table of contents shows what a wide field has been covered.
There are four articles about Andree, one of them written by Jonas Stradling, the Stockholm journalist, giving the description by an eye-witness of "Andree's Flight into the Unknown." There is also an account of the aerostat sent by carrier pigeon from the aerostat, the only word received from his since his departure. R. Talbot Kelly, the English artist, is represented by the English magazine, illustrating the telling of life "in the desert with the Bedouins." In the series of "Heroes of Peace" there are illustrated articles on "Every-Day Heroism," and "Heroes of the Life-Saving Service," by Gustave Kobbe, and "Heroes Who Fought Fire," by Jacob A. Rilis. Two articles on the new gold fields describe "The River Trip to the Klondike," by John Sidney Webb, and "The Rush to the Klondike Over the Mountain Passes," by Edward S. Curtis. Five notable papers by Mrs. Sara Y. Stevenson are devoted to "Maximilian, his Allies and Enemies." Mrs.
Stevenson was in Mexico at the time of the brief and pitiful career of the emperor, from intimate acquaintance with the course of events. Mr. V. C.
Scott O'Connor has contributed two articles concerning the life of Tennyson at his Isle of Wight home, illustrated with reproductions of Mrs. Cameron's remarkable photographs. The famous sea fight in 1879 between Chilean and Peruvian warships is described by Claude H. Wetmore, and Theodore Roosevelt discusses "Fights Between Iron-clads," with reference to their priority and significance. In the way of art there are a number of wood engravings by Timothy Cole from the "Old English Masters" articles on Jean Charles Es-cabin and Fritz von Uhde, engravings from Gilbert Stuart's Portraits of Women, and illustrations by Castaigne of the Mammoth Cave, the Seven Wonders of the World, and for "The Steerage of To-day." The fiction of the volume includes Dr. S. Weir Mitchell's "Adventures of Francois"; Mrs. Burton Harrison's "Good Americans"; eight "Gal-laries," by The Century's new writer, David Gray, and many short stories, including two by Chester Bailey Fernald, author of "The Cat and the Cherub," and John Luther Long's striking tale of Japan, "Madame Butterfly." (New York: The Century Co. Price, in gilt cloth, $3.00.)

Our American Policy.
The policy of this country regarding foreign complications seems likely to remain conservative. The Monroe doctrine, according to the declaration of our leading politicians, will be sustained, but patience and prudence in official quarters will restrain the exuberance of public opinion. The wisest and most prudent course for the rheumatic and the malarious is to use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which also cures kidney complaint and dyspepsia.

Of two evils it is best to choose neither.
It is hard for a man under a cloud to see the silver lining.
When pride turns a man's head he is sure to look the wrong way.

A new spring dress causes a woman to walk with an elastic step.
The first lesson in charity is to give away things you don't need.

A woman's favorite novel is the one in which she thinks the heroine resembles her.

The success of a charity bazaar depends upon how much has been taken in—and how many.

Every time a man invents a good thing some other man comes along and makes a fortune out of it.

The trouble with a great many men is they seem to think they are entitled to a month's vacation every time they do a day's work.

A man sometimes builds better than he knows, but the contractor on a political job is reasonably sure to know better than he builds.

The world laughs at a girl who is anxious to get married, and it laughs if she becomes an old maid, so what can the poor girl do?—Chicago News.

Faith and Works.

Two little children were being put to bed. The little girl was kneeling at her mother's side saying her prayers, while her mischievous brother was standing at the back of the chair making grimaces.
His little sister evidently had one eye open, if not two, for at last she stopped her prayers, and with "Soothe me, Lord, while I go and kick George," jumped up, kicked her brother, and promptly knelt down again.—London Figaro.

North and South.

Bare and bleak and rusty brown.
The fierce old cannon faced the town,
And when the night winds murmured low,
The cannon muttered stern and slow:

"Ho for the battle where the bullets crash!
Where fire balls fall, and fierce swords flash;
Ho, for the smoke and the powder's breath!
War, war is life, and peace is death!"

Two southern birds that that week wed, Saw the cannon. "Why, see," one said, Here is the place to build our nest;
This one of all we've seen is best."

Within the cannon soon there grew The dearest little home for two,
And then three eggs within it lay,
And then three birdlings came that way.

And bird calls soft grew sweet and clear,
And two birds nestled without fear Against the iron heart of him Who once had been so fierce and grim.

And over and over as night winds blow, The cannon murmurs soft and slow, "Oh, sweet is home, and love's pure breath!

Peace, peace is life, and war is death!" —Anna Pierpont Sviriter in Morning Guide.

THERE is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable.
For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken inter-
