Hoofland's German Bitters!

From J. Newton Brown, D. D., Editor of the Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge, Although not disposed to favor or recommend Patent Mediciness in general, through distruss of their ingredients and effects, I yas know of no sufficient reason, why a man may not testify to the benfit be believes himself to have received from any simple preparations, in the hope that he may thus contribnote to the benefit of others.

I do this the more readily in regard to Hoofland's German Bitters, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, of this city, because I was prejudiced against them for many years, under the impression that thay were otherly an alcoholic mixture. I am indebted to my friend Bobert Shoemaker, Esq., for the removal of this prejudice by proper tests and for encourage-chiefly an alcoholic mixture. I am indebted to my friend Robert Shoemaker, Eeq., for the removal of this prejudice by proper tests and for encouragement to try them, when suffering from great and long continued debility. The use of three bottles of these Bitters, at the beginning of the present year, was followed by evident relief, and actoration to a degree of bodily and mental vigor which I had not felt for six months before and had almost despaired of regulating. I therefore thank God and my friend for directing me to the use of them.

nation's heroes, whose life, to use his own language, "has been saved by the Bitters."

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 23d, 1862.

MESSHS. JONES & EVANS.—Well, gentlemen, your Hoofland's German-Bitters has saved my life. There is no mistake in this. It is vouched for by numbers of my comrades, some of whose names are appended, and who were cognisant of all she bircumstances of my case. I am, and have been for the last four years, a member of Sherman's celebrated battery, and und; the immediate command of Captain E. B. Ayers. Through the exposures attendant apon my ardnous duties, I was attacked in November last with inflammation of the lungs, and was for seventy-two days in the hospital. This was followed by great debitty, heightened by an attack of dysactery. I was then removed from the White House, and sent to this city on board the "State of Maine," from which I landed on the 28th of Jun. Since that time I have been about as low as any one could be and still rotain as spark of vitality. For a week or more I was scarcely able to swallow anything, and if I did force a mored down, it was immeniately thrown up again.

Levelid not even keep a glass of water on my force a morsel down, it was immeniately thrown up again.

I could not even keep a glass of water on my stomach. Life could not last under such circumstances; and, accordingly, the physicians, who have been working faithfully, though unsuccessfully, to rescue me from the grasp of the dread Archer, frankly told me they could do no more for me, and advised me to see a clergyman, and to make such disposition of my limited funds as best suited me. An acquintance who visited me at the hospital, Mr. Frederick Steinbrown, of Sixth street, below Arch, advised me, as a forlorn hope, to try your Bitters, and kindly procured me a bottle. From the time I commenced taking them the gloomy shadow of death receded, and I am now, thank God for it, getting better. Though I have taken but two bottles, I have already gained ten pounds; and I feel sangaine of being permitted to rejoin my wife and daughters, from whom I have heard nothing for eighteen months; for, gentlemen, I am a loyal Virginian, from the vicinity of Front Royal. To your invaluable Bitters I owe the certainty of life which has taken the place of vague fears—to rour Bitters will I owe the glorious privilege of again clasping to my becom those who are the dearest to me in life. Very truly yours, I saad Malon E.

We fully concur in the truth of the above state ment, as we had despaired of seeing our comrade Mr. Malone, restored to bealth.

Afraid of Their Friends.

Nobody better understands the relation of Northern Copperheadism to the rebelion than do the former faction. But while they well know that the success of the rebellion now chiefly rests upon the attempts to divide the loyal men of the North, they are shrewd enough to keep that fact from the knowledge of their followers .-"In vain is the net spead in the sight of any bird." The trap must be concealed from the view of the game.

As showing how the Vallandigham leaders look upon this matter, we may state that the Cincinnati Enquirer and the Chi cago Times refused to publish the well known extract from the Richmond Enquir er, which we give below, and which each of them, in common with all daily journals, received by telegraph. The Cincinnati Copperhead organ even went so far as to change the extract from the shape in which it appeared in the Richmond paper to suit the interests of the Vallandicham leaders in Ohio. Look at the original dispatch and the Cincinnati Enquirer's forgery:

We call the attention of all having relations or friends in the army to the fact that "Hooffand's German Bittere" will cure nine-teaths of the diseases induced by exposure and privations incident to camp life. In the lists, published almost daily in the newspapers, on the arrival of the sick, it will be noticed that a very large proportion are suffering from debility. Every case of that kind can be readily cured by Hooffand's German Bitters. Diseases resulting from disorders of the digestive organs are speedly removed. We have no heattation in stating that if these Bitters were freely used among our soldiers, hundreds of lives might be saved that otherwise would be lost.

We call particular attention to the following remarkable and well authenticated cure of one of the nation's heroes, whose life, to use his own langaage, "has been saved by the Bitters."

PHILARELPHIA, Aug. 236, 1862.

What those men pronounce our "invading the pronounce our " know-what all intelligent men do know the execution is as follows: -that but for the aid it is expecting from Northern Democrats, the rebellion would collapse within sixty days. This the rebel leaders concede. What says Lieut. Maury, the special emissary of Jeff. Davis in England? Read the following from his letter in the London Times, in which he undertook to show that the rebel cause had "Other agents have to be called into play. What are they? Let us inquire. They are divisions in the camp of the enemy, dissensions among the people of the North. There is already a peace party there. All the embarrassments with which that party can surround Mr. Lincoln, and all the difthe war party of the North, operate directly as so much aid and comfort to the South." ficulties that it can throw in the way of ticket, he swells the strength of the "peace party" on which the rebel leaders now confess their chief reliance for breaking up the Union and establishing their Confederacy? And understanding this, will any loyal man deliberately become a party to the fact that the act is done in the name of "Paised himself, and standing perfectly erectly and the conscience to history?" As they value their country and its institutions and their own future good name and that of their families, we warn name and that of their families, we warn our fellow-citizens against this great wrong.

the rebels intend to do by treachery what they are unable to do by a fair contest, keep the Mississippi clear of federal steamers. The steamer Ruth, burned a few miles below Cairo, with over two millions dollars in treasury notes on board, was the first victim of this nefarious scheme. Soon after four valuable steamers were burned at St. Louis: then followed in quick succession the Memphis and St. Louis steamer Hope, the Champion at Memphis, a boat worth $50,000, and the attempt to burn the Chotean at Columbus, Ky., which was but partially successful. The last exploits in this line, are the burning of the Robert Campbell at Milliken's Bend, last week, Tuesday, with the loss of a number of lives, and the steamers Chancellor, Forest Queen and Cataboula, at St. Louis on Sunday. Thus far extraordinary success seems to have attended the villalnous efforts of the rebels. They are fast making good their threat to clear every steamer from the Mississippi, by the torch of the incendiary. Our authorities have need to exercise extraordinary care and vigilance; and if any of the villains engaged in this valuable means of intimidating the remainder of the steamboat incendiaries. There can be but little doubt that the rebels intend to enlarge their operations nothing. It declaims loudly to the world about conducting the war in a civilized to accomplish the ends which it cannot effect by a fair stand up fight. The dagger of the assassin and the torch of the incendiary seem to be regarded as legitimate weapons if only used secretly. In all probability the recent fires at Boston, occurring in quick succession at the works where iron clads were constructing for the government, were caused by rebel instrumentality, and we shall not be sur prised to see the same thing attempted at other places where damage can be done to the government. We repeat our caution peel, on this point to those who have the charge of government works. Extra and extreme vigilance is needed everywhere, and it will bels will be able to seriously cripple our resources in this or any other way; but they can and will cause a good deal of annoyance and delay if we do not nip their fine her to continue them, and you will please send us "A short but impressive prayer was offered by the minister, at the conclusion of which the condemned man unaccompanied mounted the scaffold. In a few moments Detective Capehart followed, and com-menced to adjust the rope over the nack of the criminal, in which he assisted, all the while talking with the officer. On taking off his hat to admit the noose over his head, he threw it one side, and falling off took to show that the rebel cause had "other agents" at work, in addition to the armies which he confessed were rapidly being overwhelmed with "reverses." He said:

"the scaffold, itstruck a gentleman beneath, when the prisoner turned quickly, and bowing, said: "Excuse me, sir." After getting the rope on his neck arranged to his satisfaction, Detective Capehart commenced to pinion the arms of the condems ed, to which he submitted composedly, simply remarking: 'Aint this hard cap-His ankles were then tied together and his hat given to him, which he held in his hand behind him. Capehart then shook hands and left him. A negro next came on the scaffold with a ladder, and proceeded to fasten the rope to the upper beam, the prisoner meanwhile regarding him with the greatest composure. The rope being fastened, the negro was in the act of coming down, rince him that in voting the Vallandigham when the prisoner, looking up at the rope remarked, 'this won't break my neck! 'Tisn't more than a foot fall! Doctor, I wish you would come up and arrange this thing! I don't want to have a botch job of it!' The rope was then re-arranged to bis satisfaction, and the cloth cap placed over his head. He was apparently about 33 years of age. The wretch had previously confessed his guilt, the substance of which confession was that he had hired himself in the contederate engi-neer corps at Island No. 10, for the purpose of gaining information for the benefit of the federal government, and though at last detected, he died with the conviction that he had furnished more valuable infor-motion, in the character of a spy, to that government than any other ten men in the United States service."

A Rival of Beauregard.

The great adjective-hurler, Beaure gard, will have to look to his laurels. If he is not very active, one of his subordinate officers will outstrip him in the "grand style." Msjor Echolls is the rival. Just see how he addresses the owners of "labor ers," urging them to send their negroes to work on the coast fortifications of South Carolina:

"Have you the same buoyant heart that placed your State in the van of secession endeavored to make her the van guard to independence? Have you done your duty to those who are now baring their breasts in the defense of your great gateway, whilst work can be caught, a long rope and a it has been and is now in your power to short shrift should be awarded them.— shield them?
