For six weeks a mild type of diptheria has existed among the children at Abbeville and several are very sick now with the disease. Since the flatter at its first appearance but little alarm was feit until the death of Master Frank, son of Colonel E. B. Gary, last Sunday night. Since then our people have been considerably excited on the subject, and many children have been taken out of town. Among those who have sought refuge elsewhere, we have heard of the following:

Troubles Never Come Singly.

A ten-year old son of Mr. Henry Power, of Antreville, after scuffling with typhoid fever for several weeks, in which scuffle he was coming off victorious, while asleep in the night accidentally received a ball in his knee. His brother had been aroused by a disturbance in the hen roost, when he got up to settle the trouble with a breech-loading gun which accidentally "went off," inflicting a which accidentally "went off," inflicting a painful wound in his brother's leg. Much sympathy is felt for the unfortunate youth, but hopes are entertained of his early recovery. Dr. Neufler went to see him.

Dr. A. P. McNell, of White Hall, has been at Jacksonville, Florida, for three weeks, attending the sick. He has had fine success up to this time, and we have no doubt that his usefulness there will equal that of any other physician in the place. He left his home to be of service to his fellow man, and we hope that he may escape the epidemic unharmed. It was a brave act to face danger as he has done, and his presence among the sick and dying attest his fidelity and love for his chosen profession.

Our people sympathize very much with Colonel and Mrs. E. B. Gary in the loss of Frank, their nine-year old son, who was a favorite with all who knew him. After a struggle with diptheria, he yielded up his young life, and his soul returned to the God who gave it. "Suffer little children to come unto me."

THE editor of the Press and Banner was in Greenwood yesterday for a short time. It is one of the most pleasant places to visit of which we have any knowledge. Every citizen gives the visitor a cheerful greeting, and he is sure to make a pleasant impression on the guest. Like begets like, so we like Greenwood.

GREENWOOD is to have two printing office Mr. S. P. Britton has rented the type and presses of the Abbeville Messenger, and moved them down to that town. We asked Mr. Riley how it was that Greenwood could support two printing offices, when he said it was just the irresistible push of the place.

ants can safely say a good true man, one of Abbeville's best, will occupy that position for the next four years. Up to a few days prior to the first election but little was said about it, yet there was all of the time a strong undercurrent of feeling and excitement, and as the election approached the respective candidates and their chances were freely "discussed" all over the county. Well it is all over and a very large majority of us will have "to possess our souls in patience" till another vacancy occurs. The "dear five hundred friends" of some of us who have been relegated for a time to private life are perhaps being "cussed" because the many promises and pledges made us before the election do not exactly tally with the canvass of the votes by the County club. None of us so far as I know are very sick nor as mad as a hornet on the election of it. ants can safely say a good true man, one are very sick nor as mad as a hornet on the strength of it. We think the county ha strength of it. We think the county has made a great mistake in not providing offices enough for us all. I think I but voice the seutiments of my brothers in defeat, when I say that we are very grateful to the people of the county for their toleration, attention and kindness whilst we running around eating their "pies and things."

TROUPE.

Agricultural Work for To-day. COTTON PICKING.

We used to estimate the final total yield of our individual cotton crop by simply multiplying by two the total picked out by the first day of October, experience having shown that under ordinary circumstances one-half our crop was usually harvested by that date. With the constant improvement in the varieties of cotton in respect of earliness of maturity, aided by the almost universal use of concentrated and stimulating fertilizers, the rule will not now hold good. The dates of the appearance of the "first bale," the active opening of the cotton season, and the gathering of the bulk of the crop, have all been moved back perhaps two weeks as compared with twenty years ago. The present crop is later than usual, and yet we juc, e that more than half of it has been gathered and half of the remainder is open in the fields. These remarks apply particularly to the latitude of 23½ degrees, and are made to illustrate the changes that have been wrought by improvement in seed and than tweet of commercial fer-We used to estimate the final total yield iges that have been wrought by improve ment in seed and the use of commercial fer tilizers. It is remarkable, however, that no practical device or machine has yet been per-fected to aid in-the tedious work of cottonpicking, and we stand just where we did forty years ago. And yet there is no detail of the work of cotton production which so urgently calls for the aid of inventive talent as that of

As the time can be spared from the cotton field the corn should be housed without unnecessary delay, and let the hogs have the gleanings of failen corn and peas. The first of November should not find an ear in the field. We have always deprecated the practice of permitting fodder and hay to stand in stacks in the fields exposed to the rapidly damaging effects of the elements. Now is the set time, the favored month in which to convert peas, peanuls, potatoes, chufas, etc., into pork. Do not wait until cold, wet weather, postponing until everything else is done the attention needed by the hogs intended for the smoke-house this winter. The porkers ought to have all they will eat of the best food until full fat; they should be ready for the knife by the first cold spell in December. Remember that one pound of food now will make as the first cold spell in December. Remember that one pound of food now will make as much pork as two pounds fed in mid-winter. In cold weather a large part of the food consumed by animals is expended—burned in the lungs—to keep up the animal heat. In mild weather nearly all of the food is laid up as flesh and fat, therefore it is certainly wise economy in having the porkers fat enough to be killed during the first cold spell.
