

New York City.-The blouse, or bod- | great deal of fur. without adding ice, that closes at the back appears to much to the warmth of the garment grow in favor week by week. This tasteful and stylish May Manton model is emirently simple at the same time that it makes an admirable effect. The original is made of white peau de soie banded with black velvet ribbon, the yoke being of cream lace over white and the under-sleeves white Liberty silk; but all delicate colors are in vogue for afternoon and evening wear, and all soft finished silks and wool materials are appropriate. As shown the blouse matches the skirt, but the design suits the separate waist, worn with odd skirts, and the entire costume equally well.

Cylindrical Gewgaw.

In the train of the popular eyelet was bound to come some sort of a change, for fashion's followers are as tickle as the important dame herself. This novelty is of the thin sheet metal of tubular shape. It is about two inches in length and three-fourths of an inch in diameter. Through it are pulled ribbons, Chiffons, silks or whatever. On a hat it may support a pompom effect, or even a double-ender in the shape of a bow. While it is highest class in gun metal, it is to be had in every finish, and with or without ornament.

The Drum Muff.

As yet there are no symptoms of return to the small ornamental muffs. which always suggested having come from a milliner's shop rather than from the furrier. Lace and bunches of violets are out of place on a winter muff, and the fanciful affairs are not so much liked as the conventional fur cylinders. The shape of a muff adds much to its style. The fashionable model for the season of 1901-02 is without doubt the "drum" of goodly proportions. A handsome drum muff of chinchilla is lined with pale gray satin and has an inside pocket, deep enough to hold a purse. It is decorated with a cluster of three tails.

The Mode of Red.

So many shades of red are to be The simple lining is smoothly fitted worn this season that many women and closes with the waist at the centre | seem to be laboring under the impresback. On it are arranged the prettily sion that plum shades are back again, curved yoke, the full front and backs too. But that is hardly the case, as and the becoming bertha. The sleeves the new reds range from the bright are novel and attractive. The upper | red wine shades to the tints of crimson portions are shaped in curves and purple, the red with plenty of yellow

Woman's Yoke Shirt Waist.

Yoke shirt waists have taken a firm hold on the popular taste and, by many wearers are preferred to every other sort. The smart May Manton model shown in the large drawing is box front with the half-fitted back and one of the latest and has many admirable characteristics. The deep point of the front portion of the yoke is becoming, and the groups of tucks below provide graceful fulness at the lower portion of the waist. The back is smooth, with a desirable tapering effect produced by the line of the tucks. As shown the material is doeskin flannel in submarine green, with gold buttons; but all flannels and waists cloths, plain, striped and figured, taffeta and other simple silks, velveteen and corduroy are appropriate. The fitted lining is smooth and extends to the waist line only. The fronts of the waist are tucked in groups, of three each; they are stitched a short distance below the yoke, and include the full length centre box pleats. The back is tucked in groups to the waist line, that give a graceful tapering effect which is universally becoming. The sleeves are in bishop style, with narrow pointed cuffs; and at the neck is a collar with turn-over portions, under which a ribbon stock is worn.

To cut this waist for a woman of medium size three and three-quarter yards of material twenty inches wide. three yards twenty-seven inches wide. two and three-quarter yards thirtytwo inches wide or one and threequarter yards forty-four inches wide will be required.

Fur Sleeves.

A winter fashion of some importance. A cloth or velvet costume has the outer jacket fitted with a pair of furred sleeves, not used as trimming but as entire arm coverings. The sleeves are by no means tight fitting, and instead of a coat finish or straight edge on the wrist, they are drawn like a gathered bag with a ribbon bow at the wrist, and flare again over the hand. This makes a warm sleeve, which will be appreciated in stormy weather. A fur "storm" or Medici collar should be worn, with a fur teen years of age one and a half

Double-Breasted Coat.

Severely plain, double-breasted coats are much worn by young girls, and have the merit of being eminently serviceable as well as stylish. The May Manton model shown combines the regulation coat collar and is, by far, the smartest design of the sort that the season has produced. The original is made of tan colored kersey cloth with smoked pearl buttons; but cheviot and plain cloth are equally appropriate and blue, brown, black and Oxford are all correct colors.

The fronts of the coat are loose, but are curved at the under-arm seams to follow the outline of the figure. At each side a pocket is :nserted, the opening being finished with a stitched overlap. The back includes a curved centre seam and under-arm gores that render it shapely and give a smart effect. The neck is finished with a collar, faced with velvet, that rolls over with the fronts to form lapels. The sleeves are in regulation coat style stitched to simulate cuffs.
