ORCHARD AND NURSERY.

Little work can now be done in the orchard. All trees should be protected from intruders of every kind. Horses and cattle should be kept from old trees, as they often do much injury by browsing the twigs. Young trees are not only to be guarded against the larger animal, but from mice and rabbits. Hence, when there is a fall of snow, it should be trampled firmly around the trees to keep off the mice. Rabbits are kept away by smearing the trunks with blood or bloody meat. The eggs of the tent-caterpillar are easily seen and removed in winter. Manure may be drawn out and spread in the proper time to think about orchard planting. If fruit trees are to be points should be considered; the thorough preparation of the ground, and the selecting of the varieties of sides. fruit. An orchard set on poor soil, poorly prepared, will be a poor grow a tree of a good variety than a poor one. It is difficult to give a list of varieties of apples, pears, every locality. A list that will aid in making the selection was remedy. A good share of his life, so far as orchard culture goes, has been wasted. Hence our frequent but to always deal directly with a nursery of known reputation. One cannot afford to plant turist. doubtful trees if they are given to him. Therefore unless a "nursery agent" can show that the nursery he represents is responsible for him, don't buy, if the hoped for orchard must be postponed. If disposed to listen to one believed to be an agent of a nursery you know to be reliable, it is always safest, after making up a selection to send it direct to the nursery yourself, and get an answer that it is all right. If there is a reliable nursery near at hand, it is better, other things being equal, to get

Finding that she At used half a package of "silver gloss" starch in the first washing, where she had only had two shirts and two skirts with a few collars, but three dark calico dresses, and several large aprons and baby dreeses and aprons, I proposed to her to make only flour starch and use that for the calicoes, etc., and I would starch the white clothes. She is unwilling to do so, because it takes so much time to make flour starch, or to rub out the lumps of flour to perfect smoothness. My sympathies are with her, and I yield the point, mentally resolving to buy starch by the large, or wooden, box, and to provide large dark gingham aprons for the chil dren, and to give up calico dresses until spring, so that the number of pieces will be diminished. I never feel that I can stop to make flour starch when I do my own large washings, and unless I can get the starch made by another person, I make enough fine starch for all the pieces that need stiffening, or omit orchard at any time.
