A Premium on Marriage.

An agent for a matrimonial insurance company has been in town several days, and has issued a few policies here. The policies provide that the holder marrying in six months gets a certain amount; if he marry after a longer time he gets more. If you want to know who are contemplating matrimony just find out who have taken policies. One young man is holding back awhile in order to see his girl first and ascertain whether she will have him, before taking out a policy. Another refuses to go into the srrangement on the ground that no provision is made for those who marry within the six months.

The Newberry Debating Club

Held its regular weekly meeting Friday night in Temperance Hall. Several new members were added to the roll. The question, "Was the execution of Charles I justifiable?, was discussed by a number of the members. and was decided for the negative. The subject for debate to-morrow night is Can the South compete successfully with the North in the manufacture of cotton? A motion was adopted providing that hereafter the President shall decide the debate upon the merits of the discussion and the house shall decide it upon the merits of the question. Officers for the month of February will be elected at the meeting to-morrow night.

Rev. Mr. Smart's Sermon

On Sunday morning was a most exellent and practical discourse and well illustrated, upon the text, "Let your light shine," &c. There was one passage which struck the writer, upon the point of consistency wherein the preacher exhorted Christians or professors to be as consistent away from home as at home, and not to go to theatres or bar-rooms or other places of worldly amusement away from home any more than they would at home. Even ministers sometimes go to places of amusement away from home that they would be far from attending at home:

It is an accepted aphorism that the truth sometimes hurts. The destruction of Seven Hundred and Eighteen papers of garden seeds, all of last of pleasantry that old seeds might be dismen and attested by our own sworn posed of without being burnt, just as a dog men and attested by our own sworn may be killed without choking him to death certificate, is having a telling effect; it

Dinner at Jalapa. At sharp 9, morning, the fast freight of the Laurens line leaves the Newberry Depot, that is, this is its schedule time, and except the days it misses, it gets off all right. Having a turkey dinner to dispose of at the hospitable mansion of Dr. R. P. Clark, situated in the suburbs of the old and flourishing city of Jalapa, seven miles distant from the metropolis of Newberry, and deterred by the mud of the old dirt road king the trip that way, we our family-our breaths were not sufficient to warm the coach in the absence large China tree on his corner, which of fire. The train hand too had missequently there was a vast amount of dirt, but we possessed our souls patiently and thought of a warm reception at the end of the journey. Reaching Jalaps at length, we were met by Misses Alma and Lilla, at the stile, and smilingly escorted to the house. It was a pleasant welcome, and the Doctor to prevent any serious consequence which might result from the cold ride gave us each a dose of his celebrated Carminative. It was good, better than it never was before. Soon followed dinner, which was not all of turkey, but a big must close by saying that Dr. Bachman Folk, of Miss., a son of Mr. Wesley of Jalapa, lent their presence to the dinner, but the HERALD is as full as we were on that happy occasion, and we Folk, of Pomaria, and Dr. Wm. We heard of it through a young man who attended a party at the pleasant residence of Mr. Thos. V. Wicker last Thursday evening. The party was lively, the weather cool, and it became necessary to exercise a little, and after several stirring games had been played, some one proposed Tucker. A good deal of whispering ensued; who knew how to play it? Why, Miss ---knew all about it. More whispering, a remedy for throat and lung diseases.
