An Essex man bought a pig Saturday, says the Darby News. "What do you feed your pig?" asked a neighbor. "Corn," said he. "Do you feed it in the ear?" asked the friend. "Do you think I am a fool?" said the Essex street man, sarcastically.

Adversity exasperates fools, dejects cowards, draws out six faculties of the wise, puts the modest to the necessity of trying their skill, awes the opulent and makes the idle industrious. Much may be said in favor of adversity, but the worst of it is that it has no friends.

A gentleman, whose horse was under repair, went out one day to see how his work progressed, and, observing a quantity of material lying about, said to the carpenter, "Why don't you take care of these nails? They certainly are lost." "No," replied the carpenter, "you'll find them in the bill."

If you desire to know whether a woman is constant, persevering and capable of pursuing an object to the end, look into her work-basket. If you find there two, three, or more unfinished pieces of work, each one of which has become soiled from lying around, you may safely conclude that she is fickle.

A Chinese servant was brought home by the gentleman of the house, and his mistress inquired his name: "Yung Hoo Win." "Oh!" said she, "I cannot call that; I will call you Charley." "What's your name?" he asked in return. "My name is Mrs. John Browning." "Well, I call you John!" exclaimed the celestial.

Fever and Ague,
from which mankind suffer over a large part of the globe, is the most dangerous and distressing ailment in the system, induced by the miasmatic influence of vegetable decay. This miasmatic influence is evolved by the action of solar heat on wet soil, and rises with the watery vapor from it. When the sun is below the horizon this vapor lingers near the earth's surface, and the virus is taken with it through the lungs into the blood. There it acts as an irritating poison on the internal viscera and excretory organs of the body. The liver becomes torpid and fails to secrete not only this virus, but also the bile from the blood. Both the virus and the bile accumulate in the circulation, and produce a miasmatic or malarial disorder. The spleen, the kidneys, and the stomach sympathize with the liver, and become disordered also. Finally, the instinct of our organism, as if in an attempt to remove the miasmatic infusion, concentrates the whole blood of the body in the internal excretory organs to force them to cast it out. The blood leaves the surface, and rushes to the central organs with congestive violence. This is the crisis. But in this effort fails. Then the Pyrexia follows, in which the blood sweats out miasmatic virus and ague fever, and the patient is left in another effort to expel the irritating poison through that other great excretory—the skin. In this also it fails, and the system abandons the attempt exhausted, and waits for the recovery of strength to repeat the hopeless effort another day. These are the fits or paroxysms of Fever and Ague. Such constitutional disorder will of course undermine the health of the system.

We have labored to find, and have found, an antidote.

which neutralizes the malarious poison in the blood, and stimulates the liver to expel it from the body. As it should, so it does cure this afflicting disorder with perfect certainty. And it does more, or does less, as the quantity of miasmatic virus subject to this infection. It takes in no season, and is taken from the system as it is absorbed, and thus keeps those who use it free from its attacks; keeps the system healthy, and the liver active, and prevents the great variety of ailments which are induced by this malignant influence, such as Remittent Fever, Chills, Fever, Dumb Ague, Biliousness, Periodical Headache, or Bilious Headache, Bilious Fevers, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Blindness, Toothache, Earache, Catarrh, Asthma, Palpitation, Painful Affections of the Spine, Hysterics, Colic, Paralysis, and Painful Affections of the Stomach and Bowels, all of which, when arising from this cause, will be found to assume more or less the intermittent type. This Ayer's Ague Cure removes the cause of these derangements, and cures the disease.

This it accomplishes by stimulating the excretory organs, and forcing the virus to leave the system, and thus the system is restored to its normal condition. Hence it is what we term a restorative. Time may accomplish the same end, but often life is not long enough to do for their relief all it has ever been found to do.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral
has won for itself such a renown for the cure of every variety of Throat and Lung Complaint, that it is entirely unnecessary for us to recount the evidence of its virtues, wherever it has been employed. As it has long been in constant use throughout this section, we need not do more than assure the people its quality is kept up to the best it ever has been, and that it is the only one to do for their relief all it has ever been found to do.
