The American Intelligencer.

THURSDAY MORNING, APRIL 11, 1861.

EDITED BY JACOB A. COOPERSMITH.

Unofficial Assistant Secretary of State.

The view of the Confederate States, in relation to the present revolution, is well known, and the position assumed by the President of the United States in respect to the same has been made plain. The President has confined his remarks to the manner in which he has understood the views of the Confederate States, and it has been sufficiently announced that the government of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress, and that the Executive has no further word to say on the subject.

The President has stated that the Confederate States are to be considered as having been admitted into the Union, and that the President of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress. The President has also stated that the government of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress, and that the Executive has no further word to say on the subject.

The President has stated that the Confederate States are to be considered as having been admitted into the Union, and that the President of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress. The President has also stated that the government of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress, and that the Executive has no further word to say on the subject.

The President has stated that the Confederate States are to be considered as having been admitted into the Union, and that the President of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress. The President has also stated that the government of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress, and that the Executive has no further word to say on the subject.

The President has stated that the Confederate States are to be considered as having been admitted into the Union, and that the President of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress. The President has also stated that the government of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress, and that the Executive has no further word to say on the subject.

The President has stated that the Confederate States are to be considered as having been admitted into the Union, and that the President of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress. The President has also stated that the government of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress, and that the Executive has no further word to say on the subject.

The President has stated that the Confederate States are to be considered as having been admitted into the Union, and that the President of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress. The President has also stated that the government of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress, and that the Executive has no further word to say on the subject.

The President has stated that the Confederate States are to be considered as having been admitted into the Union, and that the President of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress. The President has also stated that the government of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress, and that the Executive has no further word to say on the subject.

The President has stated that the Confederate States are to be considered as having been admitted into the Union, and that the President of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress. The President has also stated that the government of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress, and that the Executive has no further word to say on the subject.

The President has stated that the Confederate States are to be considered as having been admitted into the Union, and that the President of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress. The President has also stated that the government of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress, and that the Executive has no further word to say on the subject.

The President has stated that the Confederate States are to be considered as having been admitted into the Union, and that the President of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress. The President has also stated that the government of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress, and that the Executive has no further word to say on the subject.

The President has stated that the Confederate States are to be considered as having been admitted into the Union, and that the President of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress. The President has also stated that the government of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress, and that the Executive has no further word to say on the subject.

The President has stated that the Confederate States are to be considered as having been admitted into the Union, and that the President of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress. The President has also stated that the government of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress, and that the Executive has no further word to say on the subject.

The President has stated that the Confederate States are to be considered as having been admitted into the Union, and that the President of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress. The President has also stated that the government of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress, and that the Executive has no further word to say on the subject.

The President has stated that the Confederate States are to be considered as having been admitted into the Union, and that the President of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress. The President has also stated that the government of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress, and that the Executive has no further word to say on the subject.

The President has stated that the Confederate States are to be considered as having been admitted into the Union, and that the President of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress. The President has also stated that the government of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress, and that the Executive has no further word to say on the subject.

The President has stated that the Confederate States are to be considered as having been admitted into the Union, and that the President of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress. The President has also stated that the government of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress, and that the Executive has no further word to say on the subject.

The President has stated that the Confederate States are to be considered as having been admitted into the Union, and that the President of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress. The President has also stated that the government of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress, and that the Executive has no further word to say on the subject.

The President has stated that the Confederate States are to be considered as having been admitted into the Union, and that the President of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress. The President has also stated that the government of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress, and that the Executive has no further word to say on the subject.

The President has stated that the Confederate States are to be considered as having been admitted into the Union, and that the President of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress. The President has also stated that the government of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress, and that the Executive has no further word to say on the subject.

The President has stated that the Confederate States are to be considered as having been admitted into the Union, and that the President of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress. The President has also stated that the government of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress, and that the Executive has no further word to say on the subject.

The President has stated that the Confederate States are to be considered as having been admitted into the Union, and that the President of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress. The President has also stated that the government of the United States has been prepared to receive the results of the election of the new Congress, and that the Executive has no further word to say on the subject.