The Result of Hatching on Clay Soil In Wet Weather.

In certain districts where the soil is exactly right, or, rather, exactly wrong, the partridges so carefully preserved in England are likely to be attacked by a peculiar misfortune known as "balling." The word means simply that a partridge hatched out on a clay soil in wet weather may find the mud adhering to its feet as it struggles along after the mother bird.

This is a small beginning, but the chances are that the earth accumulates. Sometimes indeed the soil attached to the foot of a little partridge will increase from a mere speck to a weight of several ounces. says that the heaviest ball he ever justice. knew weighed four ounces, and the ! its proper size, although the rest of as the heaven, his subjects as the tle creature could only move along | way, the subject follows it. in a kind of flying scramble, dragging the ball on the ground.

Naturalists say that this balling | ment. of birds is one of nature's provisions for scattering seeds. It is easy to demonstrate this, and the "answer comes true." of England clergyman to preach a sermon on "kissing." The deed was recently done in an Anglican church in the most fashionable suburb of Melbourne. Naturally a good many giggling girls were in vidence among the congregation. they doubtless yielded their assent the preacher's preliminary propotion that "a kiss is one of the most easant of earthly things" and that a kiss is not perfect unless it is exected and reciprocated." The bulk f the sermon was devoted to Scriparal forms of the practice-the iss of peace, the kiss of reconciliaion, the kiss of consecration, etc.

The following telephone conversation recently overheard between a woman whose home is in the suburbs and a business acquaintance of her husband illustrates some of the curiosities of our language:

Here is a curious little story told by a solicitor. He had among his clients a few years ago a notorious company promoter whose financial affairs came to grief. One day happening to pass by a stationer's shop his attention was attracted by a barrister. Mr. - was attired in wig and gown, and in his hand he held a paper on which the solicitor's sharp eyes caught the name of his client. His curiosity aroused, he purchased the photo and proceeded to decipher the words of Mr. --- 's brief, speedily discovering that they indicated that a warrant was "out" for the arrest of his client. In a few hours the man of finance was out of England, to which country he has not since returned.-London Globe.

Important Testimony.

A witness was testifying that he had met the defendant at breakfast, and the latter called to the waiter and said-

"One moment," exclaimed the counsel for the defense. "I object to what he said."

Then followed a legal argument of about half an hour on the objection, which was overruled, and the court decided that the witness might state what was said.

"Well, go on and state what was said to the waiter," remarked the winning counsel, flushed with his legal victory. "Well," replied the witness, "he said, 'Bring me a beefsteak and fried potatoes.'"

His Caution Not Appreciated. The young wife was weeping when her mother called. "It's all because of George," she wailed. "He's a brute, and he does not love me any more. I asked him if I wasn't the dearest little wife in the world"-

"I know, I know," interrupted the elder woman. "And he said his checks indicated that you were."

"No, he didn't." "He didn't?" "No."

"Well, husbands must have changed since I was a bride. What did he say?"

"He said very cautiously, 'Well, you know, my dear, I haven't seen them all."

Free Weddings?

The new assistant to Cupid is Rev James Clarence Jones, of St. Mary's Episcopal church, New York, He wants to make marriage as easy as falling out of bed: to remove every obstaele from the path of the little god who makes business for the divorce

So James Clarence Jones has promulgated. He believes that marrying should be done free; that the officiating minister should turn his back lon the fat little envelope and say: "No. no! Not a penny, my dear sir. All / that I ask is that you should treat her well and be happy.' In Mr. Smith's church the marrying is to be free, the heat and lights are march without a cent to pay. If a New Yorker wants to commit matrimony, all that is necessary is the girl, for Rev. Jones will do the rest. When the ministers are all paid good salaries the scheme may become popular, but not until then.

And there is another side of it. If there is a time in every man's life when he desires to be liberal it is when he is marrying. He is plump full of joy and wants everybody to be exuberant. He has some money saved for the purpose of spreading happiness. It would be a crime to prevent him from spending it. Every human being looks to him like a friend, and the minister like a long-lost brother. He puts anywhere from $3 to $50 into an envelope, and right after the words that make him a husband have been said, slaps the wad into the preacher's hands and feels like a prince while doing it. And in years after he never A Brooklyn woman lately return- tires of telling about the good bargain ed from Europe was describing to he made when he paid a preacher for
