EMIGRATION TO CALIFORNIA .- A large number of South Carolinians, discouraged by the appearance of things in this State, by their losses from the war, and especially by their disfranchisement under the Reconstruction acts, have left and are leaving their native State to seek their fortunes anew on the Pacific coast. With the subjects of their discontent removed from their sight, with the necessity of hard work upon them, on the fertile lands and among the prosperous people of California, their energies and abilities will have freer scope and greater stimulus than at home, and they will doubtless achieve in a greater or less degree that good fortune which they seek. The same freedom from repining, the same energy and hard work, would, however, enable them to overcome the difficulties which now surround us at home, and to achieve on their native soil and almorg friends and relatives a degree of success tenfold more productive of enjoyment than the best of fortune in a strange land. To command the same spirit and energetic industry among the de- lative judgment against Mr. Clark, depriving him of bris of our fallen fortunes as in a new country, iequires of course no small degree of philosophy.

That philosophy, we believe, is possessed by most right tried by jury. This principle, if carried out, of our people, and in ten or at most twenty years, when the great Southern Pacific Railroad has its eastern terminus in Cherleston, our friends tion of the judiciary as well as of the rights of the who have gone to the other end of the cit'zen. line will have little to boast of that we wal not

THE CHARLESTON ELECTION. Proceedings Under the Writ of Quo

Warranto The hearing of the arguments in the matter of the writ of quo warranto sued out by Gilbert Pillsbury and others, against the Acting Mayor and Aldermen of Charleston, was begun yesterday in the Circuit Court before Judge Carpenter. The first question which arose was as to the que warranto, alleged by the counsel for the Mayor and Aldermen to be pending in the Supreme Court. The counsel for Mr. Pillsbury admitted that no order of discontinuance was made by the court, and contended that the discontinuance by the relators, in open court, was sufficient without an order. The counsel on the other side contended that without motion made and order of court, ti ere could be no valid Mr. Corbin, counsel for Mr. Pillsbury and the claimants, read an argument in reply to the pleas of the Acting Mayor and Aldermen. He argued that the whole case resolved itself into two questions: 1. Whether Gilbert Pillsbury and others received the largest number of votes for Mayor and Aldermen of Charleston, 2. Whether the act to confirm and make valid the election was indeed a law. The first point was admitted, when it was acknowledged that the Acting Board of Aldermen did declare the election, which at first they refused to do, so that Pillsbury and others were brought within the section of the State Constitution, which declares that in an election the persons receiving the largest number of votes a hall be elected. Then ceased the tenure of the Acting Mayor and Aldermen, and because they refused to go out, the Legislature passed the validating act. Any defect that there might have been was made goo d by that act. That act was a proper exercise of the legislative power. The powers of a corporation are not in the nature of a contract, and no contract was violated by it. It was not retrospective, but prospective. In conclusion, he said that it was a thing unprecedented in this State or the United States, for the Acting Mayor and Aldermen to con tinue in office in face of that law, and that their usurged power had produced none but peaceful re sults, we must thank God and the remarkable forbearance of this people.

Mr. Barker opened the argument for the Acting Mayor and Aldermen, denying the proposition that the Legislature had the right to destroy the charter of the city, to abrogate the privileges of the people or to diminish in any way those sacred rights which are guaranteed and sustained alike by the Constitution of this State and of the United States, and by the fundamental principles which are the basis of all civil law. He denied that the Legislature could, without previously repealing the charter, thrust in its hand and touch one of the franchises which are the property of the corporation and corporators. Mr. read the sections of the Constitution of the State which supported his view, that the Legislature had not the right to abrogate the charter of the city, and argued that if the claimants could get possession of the offices of Mayor and Aldermen, their exer cise of power would be illigal and an usurpation After showing what was understood by the words office and franchise, he contended that although under the original charter there might have been no contract between the corporation and the Legislature, there had been amendments and extensions of power which make the charter as it stands a contract which cannot be violated. The city had been authorized to contrac a debt, to issue bonds, had become a corporator of corporations outside of the State; it had mad- contructs will, its creditors, and its right of retaining and for its own interest, for sucing and being sued, the Legislature could not abrogate. The corporation and corporators were bound by these contracts, the very machinery was provided for entorcing them, and could the Legislature step in and amend and destroy without impairing the obligation of a contract? Giving a city the power to enter into such contracts, puts it in the position of a private corporation, and it is no longer within the power of the Legislature to meddle with or infrir ge upon its chartered rights and privileges. It would be a monst rous tyrangy to take away the corporate franchises while the property of the corporators still remain-Le gielature still do what they pleased? Under the Constitution of the State and of the United States the citizens of Charleston had the undoubted right of choosing their Mayor. Cnly the Mayor chosen by them, and no other, can be Mayor, and he must b e elected under the law previously existing. Now, the "Validating act" declares in the preemble that store of Mr. Conty, No. 14 Market-street, by raising the election was not according to law; it was, therefore, to make valid and legal what was invalid and lot of clothing. Mr. Coney was absent at church at illegal; it was, in reality, an act to deprive the cit; of of the right of choosing their officers under pre-exis ting laws, to which they were entitled under the constitution. The Mayor and Aldermen who were not chosen by the people according to law could not be made Mayor and Aldermen by one act of the Legislature, for it was one of the vested rights of the citizens to have only the Mayor and Aldermen whom t hey had elected. If there was any defect in the title by which the Acting Mayor and Aldermen continued to hold office until their duly elected suc cessors came, it was made good by the "Validating act" which was directed to them and recognized them in their official caracities. Admitting, however, but only for argument, that the Legislature has the right to repeal the charact, it cannot, without repealing the charter, deprive the citifinal discharge in bankruptcy was referred to the zens of their right to fill their offices with persons dul y elected. To take back the charter of a public cor poration it must be expressly taken back, and no one privilege or right of any citizen under such charter can be taken away without such repeal. It can not be done by a special act in favor of Pillsbury or any other individual. The citizens have the right to have their Mayor elected according to law, unless so much of the charter is repealed, and no Legislature can take up and thrust in a man not so elected. Even if Mayor Clark were to resign, the vacancy in the office would be as great an obstacle in the way of Pillsbury as if Mr. Clark had been duly elected. This would be inconsistent with and repugnant to the State and the United States. The bill violates the charter of the city; it is a violation, not an amendment, modification or repeal. The citizens have the right to elect a Mayor and A!dermen, and yet the act gives those offices to certain specified persons. The charter is not repealed. It is recognized by the ordinances of the convention, and by the municipal elections act, and the act to quiet rights under military orders requires them to hold office until their successors are duly elected and qualified. Admit that the charter may be modified or repealed, and it cannot be done without the thirty days' notice required by the charter. The first election bill, which was veloci, save this notice, but the others do not. The Acting Mayor and Aldermen are actually in possession, and the question whether the claiments were duly elected and qualified can only be determined by the courts. The act is a violation of common right. The prean ble upon which it is based is 1 ot in accordance with the facts. It is a garbling, a twisting of the truth. I illsbury and his Aldermen were declared to have received the largest number of votes, but this can never be made to mean "duly elected." It is also no law, because it deprives the de facto officers of their rights under a charter which is not repealed, and because it imposes a punishment or penalty. Under the form of an action, it attempts to punish them and deprive them of their property without the judgment of their peers or the law of the land," which is not the declaration of the constitution but of Magna Charta. It is also inconsistent with, and and repugnant to itself, in declaring valid what it admits to be invalid. These are violations of common rights, and in themselves make the act void and of

The "Validating act," moreover, is special or class legislation. Its repeal of military orders and the penalty for non-vacating office on demand are no universal in their application, but are confined to the Acting Mayor and Aldermen. It subjects them to restrictions not imposed upon any other persons, it enacts special penalties, it gives Mr. Pillsbury a enuse of action against Mr. Clark, it is retroactive and prospective in its operation, it despoils the Acti ng Mayor and Aldermen of their offices—their propperty-and their franchises, without the judgment of their peers; and, for all these reasons, it is unconstitutional and void. The question of the legality of the election is clearly judicial, and the case is made up and pending in the Supreme Court, for authorities in the State show that a case cannot be discontinued except by an order of court. The case is still pending, and the city cannot be cut off from its right to a judicial decision by an act of the Legislature. No act declaring that to be legal which is be f ore the court as being illegal can be a law at all. A law cannot be made to deny to certain persons the benefit of the general law in particular cases. The Legislature has no right to determine the facts affecting the rights of individuals, and when they go beyond their province their acts are vold.

It being 4 o'clock, Judge Carpenter adjourned the further hearing of the case to Monday next, at 10 A, M., when Mr. Miles will close his cogent and able
