abroad, who are expected to take part in it, embrace representatives of the universities of Berlin, of Geneva, of Florence, of Gotha, and of Halle, Rev. Edmund de Pressensac, of Paris, Professor Tholuck, of Germany, Count Bernstorff, of Count de Gasparin, Dean Alford, of the Earl of Shaftesbury, and many others. The attraction to scholars and divines on this side of the Atlantic will be much more general and imperative. The consensus of articles of faith of the Alliance embrace the divine authority of the Old and New Testaments, the right of private judgment therein, the trinity, the depravity of human nature, the incarnation, and the atonement, justification by faith, and eternal rewards and punishment. The special topics announced for discussion cover a wider range, and relate to the most effectual methods of counteracting infidelity and superstition especially in their organization, the harmony of science and revelation, the religious aspects of popular education, the relations of Christianity to civil government, to philosophy, to social evils, to philanthropy, and to other great interests of mankind. It is the first meeting of the Alliance in this country; the first meetings having been held in Europe, where the association was formed twelve or fifteen years ago.

The Popular Groundswell.

Day by day the Reform movement gathers life and strength, and from every part of the State the eyes of the people are turned with eager expectation and confidence to the approaching June Convention. Many of the counties are already in motion. Marion will, on Saturday, the 14th instant, elect delegates to a county meeting to be held at the courthouse on the 25th instant, for the purpose of electing delegates to Columbia. Williamsburg holds her County Convention on the first Monday in June. Union will come nobly up to the work on the same day. Barnwell, ever prompt, will hold her nominating convention on Saturday, the 14th instant, and Laurens will do the same, on Saturday, in June. The other counties are, one and all, preparing for action, and we can promise our friends in the interior that Charleston will speak on the 16th instant, with no uncertain voice. Keep the ball rolling, and let every county send her very best representative men, white and colored, to the Council of The People in June!

"Even-Handed Justice."

It is announced that Mr. T. J. Mackey is, by the grace of his Excellency, "Governor Scott," a trial justice of South Carolina. We are happy to find our expectation in this case more than realized. When any one within the boundaries of this State ventures to affirm that an official spider, reposing in the middle of a gigantic web and gorged to the throat with his plunder, is the only creature that can take care of the flies, the suspicion is naturally excited that he is the spider's purveyor, and expects his portion of the spider's prey. Hence, in the present apportionment, out of the revenues of the public, there is a congruity and a fitness which cannot but awaken the admiration of all concerned. The servicable lackey has often-times to do some odious work, and the master should not be ungrateful.

And so far as the laws of the State are concerned they might have a worse administrator. One who has tested their authority and braved their sanctions, may, perhaps, know the art of preventing others from violating them with impunity. Under the new regime we confidently anticipate an era of peace and good will. There will be no rowdiness in the streets, or the Council chamber. The carrying of concealed weapons will be strictly prohibited. An embargo will be laid upon that kind of morphia which decanters are used to keep in solution. "Jawing" may be overlooked in some cases, but jaw-breaking in none whatever. The ballot-box will be zealously guarded. And above all, no citizen will be allowed, under any pretext whatever, to shoot at an Alderman—not even if that liberty should be attempted with his brother's son. In short, the axis of (trial) justice will be extended over every civil and personal interest, and it may even come to pass that an honest, industrious native shall be found to have some rights which a Radical is bound to respect.

In the history of the world, and especially in that of the South, in recent times, we have met with instances of strange conversions and transmutations. The greatest of Cæsar was once a ship-carpenter at Greenwich; Gustavus, the hero of Sweden, was a miner in Dalecarlia; Louis Philippe taught school; Napoleon III was a tavern hawker; Butler proved for Jeff. Davis; Moses pulled down the old flag, and, for aught we know, used it as a pocket-handkerchief; Mackey used to be a grey. All these are interesting and encouraging examples. They forbid us to despair of any man. It may be true, as the poet sings, that the scent of the roses will cling round a broken vase, but vessels that are put to foul uses may be cleansed and disinfected. And possibly the judicial robe may also stand witness. Daniel Webster displayed the narrowness of an old fogey when, in eulogizing Chief Justice Jay, he said, that the ermine, in falling upon him, touched what was as pure as itself. We bespatter it, smirch it and trample it into the mire, and when it must be purified, intend to use soap.

Cause and Effect.

It must be said for our colored people that their proceedings on Wednesday last, in honor of the adoption of the Fifteenth amendment, were marked throughout by a good order and a decorum highly to their credit. Noise, of course, and cheering and hilarity there was in abundance; but we are glad to say that we have not heard of a single instance of drunkenness or unseemly conduct in all the various gatherings that marked the day. This gratifying result was doubtless due to the fact that the colored people had, in a great measure, the control of the arrangements all to themselves, the white adventurers who usually force themselves into the leadership and foment trouble and discord having, for the most part, on this occasion, vouchsafed to let the freedmen alone.

The Memphis Avalanche.

Mr. M. C. Gallaway, the originator of the Memphis Avalanche, and an editor and proprietor of the paper, publishes a card in the issue of the 30th ult., in which he states that a disagreement between himself and the other proprietor (Colonel Kellar) necessitates his withdrawal from any further connection with that journal. He adds that there is no interruption of personal friendship, and the difficulty is entirely in relation to the political course of the paper.

A Scrub Race.

Our puissant Governor has at last made up his mind about the First Congressional District, and ordered an election for Tuesday, the 31st of May, to fill the seat in the House of Representatives, out of which Whittemore was so ignominiously kicked. There will, we believe, be no nominating convention of "The Party," as all the candidates likely to take the field are avowed Republicans, and whatever fight there may be will be purely a family quarrel. The Congressional aspirant, who can individually crack the party lash with most vigor and perseverance will be most likely to win. Meantime, outsiders will watch with curious interest to see whether the Reverend Rogue from Massachusetts can indeed make good his boast to compel the freedmen of the district to insult Congress and the Nation by returning him to the seat he has disgraced, or whether some colored champion of the emancipated race will rise up, bold enough to grapple with the perjured parson, and strong enough to wrest from him the place that he would hold.
