The Charleston News.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1871.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

—Gold closed yesterday at 114 1/2.

—Cotton in New York yesterday closed weak and irregular; uplands 18 1/2; sales 1471 bales.

—In Liverpool cotton closed heavy; uplands 9 1/2, Orleans 9 1/2.

—Darwin is engaged on a work in which the facial expression of animals will be one of the chief topics discussed.

—The dramatic event of the week in New York has been the arrival of Southern, the great original of Lord Dundreary, who begins a season at Niblo's on Monday night.

—The Abbe Litz, the great master of the piano and eminent musical composer, has just been granted letters of nobility and a pension of six thousand florins ($3000) by the Hungarian Government, and will live hereafter alternately at Weimar and Pesth.

—The bed of the Mississippi River seems to be filling up at a rate which threatens in the course of time to seriously affect navigation during the dry season. This year at St. Louis, while the surface of the water has been four feet and one inch above the lowest stage of water attained by the river in 1863, there was at the same time only about five inches difference in the depth of the channel between these years, showing that the bottom of the river must be three feet and four inches higher than it was in 1863. So in 1856 the bed of the river was found to be two feet and three inches higher than it was ten years previous.

—The French autonomy as yet is a questionable matter. The recent elections indicate decided hostility to Red Republicanism, but Gambetta is consoled that Bonapartism received as positive a check. There is, however, a strong undercurrent of sentiment in favor of restoration. The present government, perhaps the weakest that France has ever had, apparently dreads the event, but in providing against it deals with diplomatic liberality. It suppresses insults to Eugene, gives safe conduct to Prince Napoleon through France to Corsica, and protects him from a radical mob, but sends soldiers into provinces suspected of hankering after the old regime.

—The combined squadrons of England have recently been having a great field day off the coast of Portugal. This evolutionary naval drill, on a grand scale, has elicited facts which are interesting as to the capabilities of iron clads in warfare. The rolling of some of this class of vessels in a heavy sea, as compared with the rolling of some of the older ships, is said to have been terrible. The Monarch, one of the new vessels, had a maximum roll of thirty-six degrees, while the less modern craft averaged from thirteen to fifteen degrees. An explanation from the designer of this vessel will doubtless be called for by the Britishers. The question as to whether England is poorer or richer in her naval resources is a difficult one to answer. She has the material, but it is a serious question whether it is not misapplied. Nelson's ships could weather any storm, but the captain was lost in a squall.

—There is erecting for President Grant one of the costliest stables in the United States, two stories high, pressed brick front, with Seneca stone trimmings, and a most elaborately finished and beautifully designed French roof, in the centre of which will be built a handsome tower. The outside measurement of the building is 59 by 78 feet. The building is now ready for the roof, which will be put on during the week. Marble dust will be used on the front with the mortar. Instead of white sand. This will give the joints a brilliant snow-white appearance, which will not have to be painted or oiled, as is generally the custom, as acid will be used to clean off all marks. The stable will cost, it is estimated, $50,000. With all the information that has so gratuitously been furnished to us by a Radical contemporary concerning the extravagance of the stables, said to be owned by some of the "Tammany Ring," it is a relief to think our Republican President is going to beat them all. He has, doubtless, more coin at his command than they!

—A party has just arrived at La Crosse, Wisconsin, who travelled for several days through and along the burning district of Dakota and Northwestern Minnesota. The description they give of their own suffering and the scenes they witnessed are heart-rending. They state that they found at different points the charred remains of three human beings, nothing left but the bodies, and those burned to a crisp. Nothing could be found that would in any way identify the burned corpses. The mail coach due in Yankton on Wednesday evening had an exciting race with the element. It was discovered that the fire was coming, and a race ensued. The driver piled his whip, and away the horses went on a gallop. Nearer and nearer came the fire. The red glare filled the sky; the forked tongue shot out; the terrible hissing of the demon were in the ears of the affrighted passengers. The driver gathered his horses, drew the leaders from the road, the horses gathered, jumped, a rail fence was beneath the wheels of the coach, the coach was on a piece of ploughed ground, and the fire went by with a roar like a cateract.

—In England, where experimental agriculture is carried to an extreme almost unknown with us, the invention of methods of irrigation has been very ingenious. At Stoke Park a tract of twenty acres is irrigated by artificial rain, the system being quite successful. The water was applied every night last summer in showers, excepting when natural rain made it unnecessary. The apparatus consists of pipes laid in the ground, supplied from an elevated reservoir, into which water was pumped by machinery. The financial exhibit made by the result of the experiment is said to be a good one. The interest on the money invested in the necessary machinery, and the cost of operating it, aggregated $95 per acre for the entire tract of twenty acres. Likewise the income per acre aggregated $200, being made up of the proceeds of one crop of grass and grazing in the autumn of 1870, and two crops of hay in 1871. The net profit was thus $105 per acre. On land of the same tract and same character, used for the same purpose, but where the irrigation was omitted, the net profit per acre was but $45.

—Paris will not brook neglect, even though the charming city is in a comparatively dilapidated condition, and though its splendid palaces and parks are but the shadows of their former selves; and everything is being done to enclose strangers to the hospitable banks of the Seine for the coming season. For Paris needs money, and money she must and will have from her former patrons of England and America. To this end she is exerting herself to appear again in the old-time, radiant garb, and to dazzle and amuse, as formerly, her innumerable visitors; the work of completing the Grand Opera has begun again, and a great number of workmen are busy clearing out the ground floor; the first vestibule and lobby are finished, with the exception of four groups of celebrated musicians, and the interior and exterior porticos, remarkable for their brilliant ornamentation, are also completed; the ruins are still worth a visit; the feite de St. Cloud has begun; workmen are busy repairing the Palace of the Legion of Honor, the Palais Royal and the Tuilleries; the Prussians have evacuated the environs of the city; the theatres contend with each other to please and divert the public; roulette and rouge et noir, after the most approved style of gambling-houses in Nice, Monaco, Baden and Ems, are to be licensed at the Palais d'Industrie; the races at Longchamps come in for their share of public attention; and, in a word, the Parisians seem as determined as ever, like Figaro, to "laugh at everything immediately, for fear of being obliged to weep."

The Policy for the South.

General Frank Blair delivered a speech in Montgomery, Alabama, last week, in which he candidly expressed his opinions upon two subjects of great interest to the Southern Democrats, viz: whether the Southern States should decline to be represented in the next National Democratic Convention, but should accept whatever candidate the Democrats of the North may see fit to offer; and what are the prospects of overthrowing the Grant party—they can no longer be called Republicans—in the next election for President?

From the proposition that the South shall forbear to take any part in the councils of the National Democracy, Senator Blair dissents entirely; protesting against it, in the name of every Democrat in the North and West. Amongst the Democrats of the North there will be a struggle for the nomination. The contending factions will fight hard for their candidates. But the South have no personal favorites to advance. To the Southern States all Democrats are alike; their choice will fall upon him who is most likely to carry the banner in triumph. It is, therefore, the opinion of Senator Blair that if the South fails to send her prudent men to the Convention she will withhold from the North and West the benefit of "the wisest and most impartial counsel" they can have. And Senator Blair sees no force in the idea that the presence of Southerners in the Convention will be laid hold of, as in 1868, and used to the detriment of the Democratic party. He says boldly that the absence of the Southern States "will be 'claimed as a refusal to go with the Northern Democrats, because they have adopted the 'new departure,' and as an evidence that 'the spirit of rebellion still lingers and burns 'under the smouldering ashes.' But Senator Blair might have gone further. For our part we put aside all narrow questions of sentiment and fancy, and take the broad ground that the South cannot afford to brood over her own wrongs, and hold herself aloof from the rest of the country. We fear that we have indulged over-much in sectional sullenness. This is one country from Alaska to Florida, and from Texas to Maine; and we must learn to think of ourselves, and teach others to think of us, not merely as Southerners, but as American citizens. As States of the American Union, not merely as States of the South, these Commonwealths should send their delegates to the National Convention. As long as we think of ourselves, and speak of ourselves, as a race apart, there is no hope of escape from the myriad troubles which oppress us. The overthrow of despotism and the restoration of the Constitution, is the work of the whole country. We should join in the mighty contest, and take our part in its pains and labors, not as conquered rebels or as ruined slaveholders, but as free-born Americans, whom 'necessity, the tyrant's plea,' deprives of the protection which the Constitution guarantees to person and to property. When we speak as Americans, we shall obtain a hearing. Then, at all events, the conspiracy of which we are the victims, will be recognized as a conspiracy against the liberties of the American people!

Senator Blair, to whom we return, avows that he is no friend of the new departure, but declares himself willing to fight the Radicals in any shape the Democratic party may determine upon. He is confident that President Grant—who is now dictator in the Republican party, and aspires to be dictator in the country at large—will dictate his own nomination; but Senator Blair knows that "some of the most conspicuous, 'able and courageous men will leave the 'Republican party when Grant is nominated.' This is what Senator Blair would advise:

"Instead of going for a new departure, I would prefer to go for a man who represents the new departure. I would prefer to give that guarantee to the disaffected Republicans rather than to go back upon my own principles. I would prefer to make a choice of Republicans, and go for a man who would be nominated by the disaffected Republicans, or, what would be better, one who might be nominated by our principle in making a choice between candidates neither of whom may suit us. We could all vote for a Republican who was in favor of universal amnesty, against the Ku-Klux bill, and against the military laws. I would prefer to make a choice in the State of Alabama could vote for such a Republican in preference to U. S. Grant, and hold all the time to his very heart all that there would be of his Bourbonism."

Virginia adopted this policy. Missouri did likewise, and broke the bonds which bound her. The men of foreign birth, who are now American citizens, may be relied on in the coming struggle. They were led in Missouri by Carl Schurz, "the ablest representative" of his fellow-countrymen. The Germans of the West, although Republicans almost to a man, "have always voted against 'disfranchising those who were opposed to 'them during the war.' Of them Senator Blair says:

"They needed no instruction from anybody, and they resolutely maintained the doctrine that neither Congress nor the States could by a bill of attainder deprive men of the right of suffrage. They maintained that position in the last contest through which we passed in Missouri; they held it good against the blunders and threats of the administration; they stand firmly and squarely to-day, solidly to the last man, against all disfranchisement for universal amnesty; they are opposed to this Ku-Klux legislation; against the suspension of the writ of habeas corpus, and, in my judgment, if the Democratic party will now, instead of the adoption of any 'new departure,' put forward a man as the candidate of the party, or accept one who may be put forward by others, who is sound upon these principles, he will receive the support of the entire German vote in the United States, numbering, as I have been informed, from 500,000 to 800,000 men."

And Senator Blair is not discouraged. To his view the future does not look gloomy, "even under the losses we have suffered this 'summer and autumn.' The right man and the right platform will give the Democrats the victory."

The Political Refugees.

The Radical press cover over the fact that a large number of persons have fled from their homes, in the upper counties of South Carolina, since the suspension by General Grant of the writ of habeas corpus. Their flight is construed as a confession of crime; while, in sober truth, it only means that they are anxious to avoid an arrest without cause, and a conviction without proof of guilt. The courthouses in the upper counties are thronged with idling vagabonds who have been supported by the Radical politicians, and are now the paid spies of the Government. As witnesses they can earn two dollars a day, and no questions asked. No tale is too wildly absurd to be believed. The best men of the country are arrested, and subjected to nameless indignities, upon the bare affidavit of a greedy or malicious negro. There is no redress. For the unfortunate who is thrown in jail, there is no hope of escape. And they who are pure in life and character run the most risk, because the Government officials desire "to make 'examples' of those whom the people trust and respect. It is not surprising then that hundreds of men, conscious of their innocence, should abandon their hearths and seek safety in other States.

Current Literature.

THE DIAMOND ON THE HEARTH—A Novel. By Marian James, author of Ethel. New York: D. Appleton & Co. 1871.

This is a simple and rather common-place novel, which calls for no extended criticism. At least, it has the merit of being free from the ravings and rhapsodies in which so many writers like to indulge.

For sale at Holmes's Book House. Price fifty cents.

JOURNAL OF RESEARCHES INTO THE NATURAL HISTORY AND GEOLOGY OF THE COUNTRIES VISITED DURING THE VOYAGE OF H. M. S. BEAGLE AROUND THE WORLD. BY CHARLES DARWIN, AUTHOR OF ORIGIN AND SPECIES. NEW YORK: D. Appleton & Co. 1871.

Mr. Darwin's voyage round the world in the brig Beagle began in 1831 and lasted nearly five years, during which time the distinguished naturalist visited the Cape de Verde Islands, Rio de Janeiro, Montevideo, Buenos Ayres, Santa Fe, Tierra del Fuego, Valparaiso, Chili, Tahiti, Australia and the Mauritius. The object of the expedition was to complete the survey of Patagonia and Tierra del Fuego, to survey the shores of Chili, Peru, and of some islands in the Pacific, and to carry a chain of chronometrical measurements around the world. Mr. Darwin is an easy and exact writer, and this volume contains, in the form of a journal, a history of the voyage, and a sketch of those observations in natural history and geology which he thought would possess some interest for the general reader. The book is full of striking facts and picturesque descriptions, and is printed after the revised London edition, published under the author's direction in 1869. We have seldom met with a more attractive work of the kind.

Hostetter's Bitters.

THE MEANS OF ESCAPE—THEir fall has many perils for the weak and feeble, and its sudden atmospheric changes are trying to the constitutions of even the robust. The chilling temperature of the nights, as compared with the almost summer warmth of the days, necessarily exerts an unhealthy influence on all who are exposed to it. Hence dysentery, diarrhoea, intermittent fevers, bilious attacks and derangements of the system are common to us to meet season. The true way to escape them is to meet the causes with a protective and invigorating medicine. HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS are designed for this exigency. This powerful vegetable specific relieves the system of all acid humors, purifies the fluids, tones the secretory organs, promotes healthy evaporation through the pores, increases the activity of the digestive functions, cheers the spirits, and regulates the bowels. To do this is to make the whole body vigorous, and render it proof against the vicissitudes of temperature, and against malaria. A course of the great tonic and alterative is therefore in all cases advisable as a preventive at this season. If, on the other hand, he mischievous is already present, or the liver, bowels, or stomach disordered, there is no medicine so certain to effect a quick and thorough cure as our approved and agreeable preparation. oct12-stub3pac

HOME INSURANCE COMPANY,
No. 135 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

This Company had, and still has, an Agency in Chicago, and is now paying its losses there as promptly as the same can be adjusted. When these are all paid, the HOME'S assets will exceed those of any other New York Company.

Furthermore, the Board of Directors has unanimously resolved to call upon the Stockholders at the earliest practicable moment for enough additional Capital to restore its ASSETS TO NEARLY $1,000,000 AFTER EVERY CHICAGO CLAIM IS FULLY SATISFIED. Will this not furnish ample indemnity to all seeking insurance, and is not that Company entitled to the fullest confidence and support which thus, like 'THE HOME,' stands in the breach and fully protects many sufferers in the Chicago calamity, instead of boasting that it has no share in such a disaster?

Misrepresentations of the Company are in circulation by interested parties, but ANY STATEMENTS REFLECTING UPON THE SOLVENCY OF THE HOME ARE WHOLLY UNTRUE.

Your business is respectfully solicited.

East Bay street.

HOME INSURANCE COMPANY,
No. 135 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

This Company had, and still has, an Agency in Chicago, and is now paying its losses there as promptly as the same can be adjusted. When these are all paid, the HOME'S assets will exceed those of any other New York Company.

Furthermore, the Board of Directors has unanimously resolved to call upon the Stockholders at the earliest practicable moment for enough additional Capital to restore its ASSETS TO NEARLY $1,000,000 AFTER EVERY CHICAGO CLAIM IS FULLY SATISFIED. Will this not furnish ample indemnity to all seeking insurance, and is not that Company entitled to the fullest confidence and support which thus, like 'THE HOME,' stands in the breach and fully protects many sufferers in the Chicago calamity, instead of boasting that it has no share in such a disaster?

Misrepresentations of the Company are in circulation by interested parties, but ANY STATEMENTS REFLECTING UPON THE SOLVENCY OF THE HOME ARE WHOLLY UNTRUE.

Your business is respectfully solicited.

CHAS. J. MARTIN, President.
J. H. WARBURN, Secretary.
New York, 15th October, 1871.

LIVERPOOL AND LONDON AND GLOBE INSURANCE COMPANY.
CHICAGO FIRE.

Cash Assets of the Company, over $21,000,000 Gold Assets in the United States in the hands of American Directors (Stockholders).....$3,300,000

Shareholders personally responsible for the engagements of the Company.

The losses by the Chicago Fire a little under TWO AND A HALF MILLION DOLLARS. The Directors in New York are requested by the Home Board to draw upon London for the whole loss, and not disturb the American investments.

All losses will be paid in Chicago at sight, and without discount.

This Company has subscribed TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS to the relief fund.

We call attention to the specially large reserve held in this country, which was more than ample, in itself, to meet its loss by this calamitous fire.
