

MISCELLANY

[From London Society.]
THE MAIL GUARD'S STORY.

CONTINUED.
"Think I, I've not done a bad stroke of business this evening. Mr. Moss and I will settle our little account now; so I went quietly home. Next afternoon, just after dinner, a message comes from the Bank for Mr. T—, our inspector. Telling me to be ready in case of being wanted; off he goes, and in about an hour he came back and said, 'We've got a job to-night,' he says, 'for a party has written another gentleman's name by mistake, and bolted with a large sum of money and his young woman, as is supposed, to America.' We had to start that evening by the 9 o'clock train for Liverpool, which we did, and arrived there about 4 the next morning. We immediately put ourselves in communication with the local authorities and searched several outgoing ships, but without success. Just as we were leaving one of the vessels, the captain said to me, 'It's a pity you didn't know a little sooner, for an American barque sailed yesterday's tide for New York.' 'The devil it did,' says Mr. T—.
"Yes," says the captain; "and you may depend upon it your man was off in that vessel."
"We're done, then," says Mr. T—, "and will have to go back with our tails between our legs."
"Well," says I, "I don't see that, by no means. When does the mail go?" I asked the captain.
"It's gone," says he; went last night."

JOSEPH CREWS, Sup't.

To the Dental Profession.
I HAVE PATENTED, and now desire to introduce, an important improvement in the construction of ARTIFICIAL DENTURES, whereby the strength, reliability and facility of repair, pertaining to swaged plate work, is communicated to moulded metallic or vulcanizable base. Strong Plate Teeth as firmly attached to the base as if soldered to swaged plate, are, by this process, substituted for those specially designed for moulded base. By their use the operator is left free to exercise his own judgment in their arrangement, and finds himself no longer confined to the sameness of the present style of blocks, or single teeth weakened by carving for moulded work.
No new appliances are required in this process. It is easily acquired by any one familiar with either moulded or swaged work. It gives to the operator confidence in the reliability of his cases, exempting him from the disappointment and perplexity often attendant on his most faithful efforts. It renders partial cases as reliable as full sets, and, consequently, will tend to ameliorate the present deplorable practice of extracting every tooth, sound or unsound, which stands in the way of the latter.
The method has been thoroughly tested, and is now submitted to the profession with the assurance that it will be found to fulfill all that is claimed for it. Its results are highly artistic, very beautiful, and afford the utmost satisfaction to operator and patient.
OFFICE LICENSES will be the system adopted, in relation to which—and other matters in connection—circulars will be furnished, on application to the subscriber.
